President Proposes Nationalization Of Welfare System

'New Federalism' Pitch For Basic Income To The Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon wants a "New Federalism" that will ship tax dollars and job programs out of Washington but nationalize the welfare system and give every poor family a basic income.

The heart of the President's domestic proposals, announced in his broadcast last night, is a federal income guarantee of $1,600 a year to a family of four, plus supplements until earnings reach $3,920—provided the breadwinner is willing to work.

His new "family assistance program" and other reforms would supplant the present aid to dependent children program, subsidize the working poor for the first time and add $4 billion a year to the present $4.2 billion federal welfare bill. Welfare recipients would more than double to 22.4 million.

The President called for gradual assignment of the $1 billion-a-year federal manpower program to state and local governments. Some $660 million more would be added to expand job training for welfare recipients and offer day-care centers for their children.

State and local governments would also share $1 billion a year in federal revenues with few strings attached, beginning in 1971.

Republican leaders in Congress generally applauded the President's program. But action on the welfare reforms may be a year or two away, they cautioned, and revenue sharing is sure to face rough going.

VOICES DOUBT

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee is one important Democrat who doubts Congress will shovel out money with few controls. His committee will consider the revenue sharing proposal, which House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford said could mount to $5 billion a year by 1975.

The President advocated federal payments of $65 a month for recipients of three adult welfare programs—aid to the blind, disabled and aged. The government now has a sliding scale of matching payments for the programs.

Nixon also announced executive reorganization of the anti-poverty agency for a new emphasis on experimental job programs rather than operation of proven ones.

States would save $735.8 million a year in welfare costs under his federalized program, the President said.

He described a "welfare quagmire" that is threatening to bankrupt state and local governments under a case load that has doubled in the last 10 years.

HITS SOUTH

It discriminates against certain areas of the country, against male-headed families and against the working poor, he said. Monthly payments range from $39 a month for a family of four in Mississippi to $263 a month for a like family in New Jersey.

The President said his family assistance plan rests on three principles: "equality of treatment, a work requirement and a work incentive."

"Its benefits would go to the working poor, as well as the

Bond Session Angers Two Councilmen

By BONNIE BARD

The joint meeting of four Petaluma taxing bodies to coordinate efforts in bond election has drawn fire from councilmen who were kept as much in the dark about the session as the public.

Councilman Phillip L. Joerger said, "It's disgusting that we're elected to represent the people and then we're ignored."

Only Councilman David W. Brainerd had been informed or invited to the meeting.

The session, called by Mayor Helen Putnam, included representatives from the city council, Petaluma Board of Education, Old Adobe School District board and the Hillcrest Hospital board.

Each board was requested to send only two representatives so that no quorum of any group would be present and the meeting then required to be announced to the public.

Mrs. Putnam said she phoned administrative officers of the districts to pass along invitations to board members. She said that Brainerd was selected because he serves as the council liaison to the Petaluma Board of Education Citizens Advisory Committee to promote the Oct. 14 $13 million bond election.

Joerger said he was upset because plans for another bond election had not been considered by the council and said that Mrs. Putnam's remarks to the group indicated council support for a $3 million bond election in the fall.

Joerger said, "It seems to me that she should have had some directives from the council before starting some type of joint meeting."

Also taking issue with the secrecy of the session was Councilman Robert A. Brunner. "The meeting may have been legal, but it sure gives the implication of secrecy," he said.

Brunner said that overlooking other council members in call-

ROBBERY SUSPECT — Christopher K. Mason, 19, of San Rafael awaits booking into Marin County Jail on suspicion of being the young man who robbed United California Bank in San Rafael of $1,348 yesterday. Mason, arrested this morning, is being held for possession of narcotics as well as the robbery. An accomplice is still sought by police. (Independent-Journal photo)

SAUSALITO TIP

Suspect Arrested In Bank Robbery

A San Rafael youth, who may have robbed two banks in Southern California, was booked into Marin County Jail today as a suspect in the $1348 robbery of the United California Bank in San Rafael yesterday.

Christopher Kendall Mason, 19, of 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, was pulled from a taxi by three Sausalito policemen at gunpoint at 3:30 a.m. as the cab headed out of Sausalito toward Golden Gate Bridge.

Shortly before the capture police received an anonymous call stating that Mason had just entered a cab in Sausalito and was headed for San Francisco Airport. Detective Brian E. Newlon spotted the suspect and radioed for assistance.

ORDERED OUT

Two other patrol cars joined Newlon and closed in on the taxi with red lights flashing. The officers surrounded the cab with drawn guns and ordered Mason out.

The slender, blond youth came out of the cab slowly and made no attempt to resist.

No weapon was found but two kilos of marijuana were found on him, police said. He also had $210 in cash.

Mason, a parolee from the California Youth Authority, reportedly intended to fly to Chicago last night.

He was booked on suspicion of bank robbery and possession of narcotics with intent to sell.

OTHER BANKS

San Rafael police said Mason is also suspected of being the bandit who made away with $540 from the Bank of America in Glendale July 24 and four days later hit the Crocker Citizens National Bank across the street for about $1,500.

Bail was set at $10,250 by Su-

France In New Crisis: Devaluation Of Franc

PARIS (AP) — Devaluation of France's franc brought warnings from French labor leaders today that they will press demands for all around wage increases.

Labor reaction was swift to the announcement yesterday that the franc was being devalued 12.5 per cent. Opposition mounted as President Georges Pompidou met with his ministers to discuss austerity measures to be taken to cope with the situation.

"The new situation can only reinforce our demand . . . for guaranteed increases in the workers' purchasing power and priority action for the poorest sections of the population, large families and pensioners," said Laurent Lucas, acting secretary-general of the non-Communist Workers' Federation.

Lucas also called for price controls and measures to stop speculation.

Georges Seguy, secretary-general of the Communist-backed General Confederation of Labor, France's biggest labor union, called devaluation governmental "blackmail" of French workers. He predicted a stormy labor climate when workers return from their annual vacations at the end of August.

Alain Savary, secretary of the French Socialist party, declared the workers are always the first victims of any devaluation. He said the Socialists are "determined to defend their interests" when austerity measures are announced.

The left wing Socialist Unity party warned that the government measures would undoubtedly include salary restructuring "thus amputating the purchas-

Legislature Adjourns; Approves Tax Rebate

Back In Session Sept. 8

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— The Legislature gave Gov. Ronald Reagan his election-year tax rebate bill early today then adjourned the 1969 session amid a carnival atmosphere of flying papers and exploding firecrackers.

The lawmakers will be back Sept. 8 for a one-week meeting to act on Reagan's vetoes. But they won't be able to pass any bills without the governor's permission. And for all practical purposes, they've done all they're going to for this year.

One of the Legislature's final acts was to pass Reagan's bill allowing Californians to deduct 10 per cent from their state income tax next April. The election year rebate will cost the state $87 million. The break is limited, however, to $100 for single taxpayers and $200 for married couples.

OTHER ACTIONS

The Legislature also came down hard on campus militants. It sent Reagan two bills increasing penalties for troublemakers and giving administrators more power to deal with them.

The last-minute action, the Legislature also:

Passed a bill invalidating gun control ordinances in San Francisco and Beverly Hills.

Wrote new state guidelines for use of pesticides.

Placed a $246 million bond issue for University of California medical schools on next year's ballot.

Gave Reagan and his aides a pay raise.

Sent Reagan a bill authorizing the Southern California Rapid Transit District to impose a one-half-cent sales tax for six months.

Placed a proposed constitutional amendment on next year's ballot requiring the U.C. Board of Regents to meet in public.

TAX REFORM FAILS

But the Legislature failed to come to grips with tax reform, an issue Reagan and Assembly Democratic leader Jess Unruh feuded over right to the end.

Reagan accused Democrats of "playing politics" when they temporarily insisted they wanted to stay in Sacramento and debate tax reform—even though all tax reform bills had been dead for days.

BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Three men and two women, including film and television actress Sharon Tate, were found shot to death today at Miss Tate's Bel Air mansion. The other victims were not identified immediately, and police said they had booked a houseboy, 19 or 20, as a suspect.

EXCITED ABOUT FUTURE

Retiring City Hall Clerk Recalls The Unhurried Days

By JOANNE GRANT

A bit of sunshine will leave San Rafael City Hall this month, as City Clerk W. C. Cornwell enters retirement.

Cornie is something of an institution at city hall, popping in and out of offices to say hello or to spin a yarn from his voluminous supply or to bring a little party to celebrate special holidays.

Mostly, though, he's at his desk in the clerk-finance office, where he's been since January 1965 when he was appointed clerk after serving as deputy clerk since 1963.

He was elected to a four-year term in April 1967 and announced last month he would retire, effective Sept. 1.

A native of Watoga, Ill., son of a doctor, he came west as a child and spent most of his grade school years in Bellingham, Wash. His mother died when he was born and he lived with his father for a time and then with a series of foster families.

The family that finally became his was Rev. and Mrs. Charles A. Ownes.

Owens, a missionary in Africa in the 1880s and later in the Philippines, had a small church at Bellingham when Cornwell went to live with them.

His younger years were marked by unusual experiences, such as the family practice of speaking only in a Filipino Spanish dialect at mealtime to help the young Cornwell learn it.

Before he finished grammar school, the family moved to Southern California and still later to St Helena where Cornwell graduated from high school.

He was living in St. Helena when he made his first trip to Los Angeles by car, a 1908 Ford. "It was a rattletrap," he recalled.

The trip took a week.

He studied engineering at the University of California for a couple of years and then took his first job — at the Gold Hill Mine at Virginia City.

He remembers vividly his days in the gold country; says only three places there in the 1920s are still there. "It's a tourist trap now," he said of Virginia City.

He left that job in 1924 and came to San Rafael where Reverend Owens was pastor of the Methodist Church.

There were about 6,000 people in San Rafael when he went to work as a surveyor for an engineering firm in the Cheda Building, one of the few office buildings in town.

Much of what is downtown San Rafael today was residential or small shops then, Cornwell said, remembering what was where, what wasn't built yet, what's been changed.

He got stuck on a couple and said ruefully, "The minute it disappears it's hard to remember."

Among the stores no longer here were two cigar stores where owners and helpers handmade the product.

He worked for various engineering firms until 1953 when he became deputy clerk under W. L. Morgan who was also finance officer and city assessor. "I knew the area, the county, backwards and fore-

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Editor Attacked

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper opened fire anew today on liberal editor Alexander Tvardovsky in what appeared an effort to force him out of his job.

Tvardovsky's magazine, Novy Mir (New World), is one of the last liberal publications in this country, and has published relatively unvarnished accounts of hardships in Soviet life.

Tvardovsky has come under attack from a number of publications, including Sotalisticheskaya Industria (Socialist Industry), a newspaper of the Communist party Central Committee. In its latest thrust, the paper accused Tvardovsky of taking an "insulting" attitude toward its criticism of him a week ago.

Hippie Roundup

TANGIER, Morocco (AP) — Police rounded up American, British and German hippies whom they considered "flea-bitten and dirty" and gave them a public bath and haircuts yesterday. Police said many had everstayed their three-month tourist visas.

Those who had money to travel were escorted to the airport or piers. The rest had their passports seized. Police spokesmen said the passports would be returned upon presentation of a valid, one-way ticket out of Morocco.

Seeks Divorce

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito's granddaughter applied for divorce from her commoner husband today, a spokesman for the imperial household agency said.

The spokesman said Princess Fumike Higashikuni, 22, and Kazuteshi Omura, an employee of a major Japanese metal firm, had asked for official permission to end their 17-month-old marriage because they could not get along together. They were wed in March 1968.

Trudeau Pelted

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A woman threw a banana peel at Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and hit him in the back with it last night after he gave up trying to address a group of antiwar demonstrators outside an armory.

Trudeau had agreed to speak to the protesters, some of whom carried signs condemning "Canadian complicity" in the Vietnam War. But when he tried, they drowned him out with shouting. Some pelted him with wads of paper.

Film Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cary Grant claims four of his movies were sold to television before their financial potential in theaters was exhausted.

The actor filed an $8.8 million lawsuit against Universal Studios and its parent company, MCA, in superior court yesterday, charging the studio did not use proper discretion in selling "Operation Petticoat," "The Grass Is Greener," "That Touch of Mink," and "Father Goose" for home viewing.

Border Charge

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea charged today that U.S. troops have sharply increased shootings across Korea's demilitarized zone since North Korea shot down a U.S. intelligence plane in April.

The North Korean Communist party newspaper Rodong Shinmoon said U.S. troops along the DMZ had fired on North Korea 436 times since April, using more than 74,000 rounds of bullets and shells.

Freedom Swim

TRIESTE, Italy (AP) — With some roughly learned Italian, their bathing shorts and a good swimming stroke, eight Hungarian students swam from Yugoslavia to Italy today and asked for political asylum.

In stammering Italian, the young men told police they reached Yugoslavia with a tourist group from Budapest and stopped at a camping site near Kopar, across the border from here.

Embassy Protest

TOKYO (AP) — More than 100 Japanese rightists staged a demonstration in front of the Soviet Embassy today demanding immediate return of northern Japanese islands held by the Soviet Union since World War II.

Police said they arrested one demonstrator who threw a homemade smoke shell into the embassy compound. There were no injuries or damage to embassy buildings, police said.

50,000 Deserters?

TOKYO (AP) — The Viet Cong's Liberation Press Agency said today that more than 50,000 South Vietnamese soldiers have deserted since early 1968.

Before turning themselves over to the Communists, the agency said, the deserters killed or wounded 6,000 officers, including 47 Americans; destroyed 43 aircraft, including 32 jet fighters, and sank or damaged 11 war vessels.

Office Rocked

ATHENS (AP) — An explosion rocked Olympic Airways' midtown Athens office at noon today slightly injuring nine persons.

Police rushed to the scene as passengers waiting in for the bus to the airport streamed out of the waiting room.

The nationalities of the injured were not immediately known.

12 Bus Deaths

ECIJA, Spain (AP) — A bus and a brick-laden truck collided near here yesterday and police reported 12 persons died and 22 suffered severe injuries.

Most of the 39 persons on the bus were workers returning to Barcelona from vacations in southern Spain. Ecija is about 50 miles east of Sevilla.

Typhoon Deaths

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — At least six persons perished yesterday in Formosa as Typhoon Betty swept through the northern part of the island, police reported today. Three of the victims were miners buried in a coal mine which collapsed at Taoyuan, 20 miles west of Taipei.

THE DEVALUATED FRANC

A disgruntled Frenchman does figuratively to the franc what the French government did actually yesterday — devalue it. Following an emergency meeting, Finance Minister Giscard D'Estaing announced 12.5 per cent devaluation figure to the country in a television address. (See story page 1.) (UPI Cablephoto)

11 Injured In Bombings On Trains

ROME (AP) — Eleven persons were injured today in bomb attacks on nine trains at the peak of the Italian tourist season. Police launched a nationwide hunt for a chain of terrorist commandos.

Suspected of organizing the overnight bombings, from Naples to Venice, were opponents of the imminent settlement of the longtime Alto Adige region dispute between Italy and Austria.

First investigation of the explosions on main tourist lines from midnight to dawn indicated all the bombs were alike. It was believed they had been placed aboard passenger coaches on a prearranged plan by commandos in Venice, Rome, Pescara and perhaps other cities.

Two found intact and bits of others which exploded indicated the homemade bombs contained high explosive wired through a small battery to wristwatches, at least two of which were German-made.

The blasts came during light traffic hours after midnight. Some of the explosions were in empty coaches. There were eight explosions in seven trains. Bombs were found unexploded in two other trains.

Pastor's Son Quizzed In Slaying Of Girls

SEASIDE (AP) — The son of a Presbyterian minister was questioned today by San Jose police investigating the knife slaying of two teen-age girls.

Charles D. Johnston, 19, was arrested yesterday driving what police in the Monterey County community said was a stolen van bearing traces of blood. He was listed as the son of Rev. Elbert W. Johnston of Sacramento.

The van was reported stolen last June 26 from a Sacramento auto dealer, officers said.

Inside the van, police said they found traces of blood, a small quantity of marijuana, a yellow hair-ribbon and some license plates from a sports car reported stolen from an auto repair shop in Monterey.

The San Jose detectives said Johnston was questioned about the murders of Deborah Furlong, 14, and Kathy Snoozy, 15, Sunday.

Johnston was arrested early yesterday when police officer George Peay said he started chasing a sports car down the main street of Seaside.

Peay said the sports car driver stopped, pointed to the van, which had been moving along the street beside the sports car, and said: "He had a gun or something on me."

The policeman took off after the van, and the sports car driver disappeared. Peay caught up with the van, and the van driver tried to flee on foot but was quickly caught.

Police said traces of hair were found on a boot inside the van.

Witnesses had reported seeing a white van near where the stabbed bodies of the two girls were found. Police had checked out and cleared two vehicles of that type that were in the vicinity at the time of the killings.

The van stopped by Peay was blue, but he said the blue paint was still wet on the top.

The two girls were buried yesterday. Debbie in Los Gatos and Kathy in San Jose.

They had left their homes in the Sunrise subdivision by bicycle to picnic among the oak trees on a hill nearby last Sunday morning.

They were found that eveningt, dead beneath a tree. Chief of Detectives Barton Collins of San Jose said they had been knifed more than 400 times.

There was no blood on the ground and Collins believed they were killed inside a vehicle and their bodies dumped near the tree.

The girls' bicycles were chained to a fence at the foot of the hill and the lunches they carried were gone.

Johnston was scheduled for arraignment Monday morning on charges of possession of marijuana for sale, and possession of stolen license plates. His bail was set at $6,250 and he was assigned a public defender.

Isolation For Apollo 11 Team Could End Sometime Tomorrow

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Doctors plan today to take final blood samples from the Apollo 11 astronauts to determine whether the spacemen are free to leave their quarantine quarters.

If astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins are as healthy as they look, they'll be released from isolation late tomorrow or early Monday.

The 21-day quarantine period, which began the day Armstrong and Aldrin closed the hatch of the lunar landing vehicle on the moon, normally would end at 2 a.m. EDT Monday.

The decision on early departure will be up to the International Agency for Back Contamination, the group which set the quarantine period. Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' chief physician, will report to the committee members Sunday.

Berry will review the condition of the Apollo 11 pilots and the findings made during the examination of the rocks they brought back. No harmful organisms have been discovered in the moon soil.

Dr. Charles Fischer, space agency doctor isolated with the astronauts, reported: "We're highly encouraged with what we've seen so far. Everyone appears in excellent health."

Two previous blood samples taken from the astronauts showed nothing unusual.

The 20 persons with the astronauts include a 23-year-old woman biology technician who accidentally contacted lunar material while working with the rocks in another section of the building.

The astronauts spent most of yesterday working on the pilots' report of their historic mission in which Armstrong and Aldrin spent nearly 22 hours on the moon. They also looked at films of the flight and saw a movie, "The Chairman of the Board."

After their release, they will spend a day with their families. On Tuesday, they will hold a news conference here and then will start a whirlwind round of festivities honoring their feat.

A FIRST LOOK — Newsmen got their first look yesterday at a lunar rock sample at the Space Center in Houston, Tex. The rock was in a vacuum jar and behind a double glass so as not to be contaminated. The rock, a light gray stone covered with pits and thousands of sparkling crystals, was picked by the Apollo 11 astronauts, who may get out of their isolation chamber tomorrow. (UPI Telephotos)

Drowning Inquest Scheduled Sept. 3

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — A court inquest is to open Sept. 3 into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, drowned July 18 when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car ran off a bridge into a tidal pool.

The date was set by Judge James A. Boyle yesterday after a meeting with Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis, who invoked the law that allows district attorneys to "require" courts to conduct inquests in accidental deaths.

Dinis said he called for the inquest to determine positively the cause of the death and the circumstances surrounding the accident.

Judge Boyle met with Dinis in his chambers, then announced the date in open court.

He said the law allows him to hold the inquiry behind closed doors, but said he had decided to open it to accredited newsmen.

Dinis had said earlier he planned to call Kennedy as a witness along with others who attended the cookout party the night of July 18 on Chappaquiddick Island.

But he said yesterday that Kennedy was not among the 15 witnesses he plans to call. He said he would not rule out the possibility of calling the senator, however.

Kennedy has said he will cooperate with an inquest in every way possible. He cancelled a planned trip to Europe to be on hand if needed.

Dinis has spoken with Pennsylvania authorities about exhuming the body of Miss Kopechne for an autopsy. She was buried in her home town, Plymouth, Pa.

When Miss Kopechne's body was recovered from the sunken Kennedy car the morning after the crash, she was pronounced dead of drowning, and an aide in Dinis' office released the body without an autopsy.

READY, WILLING TO RUN, BUT NOT UNTIL '92

TORRANCE (UPI) — There may still be some question about who is in the running for the next presidential election, but one candidate has already announced for 1992.

Ed Segal, a 20-year-old junior at California State College, Dominguez Hills, made his announcement yesterday, saying, "I feel that it is time that this country had a candidate who was serious enough to declare himself so early."

Employees Of Pan Am Eye Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The giant jets of Pan American World Airways sat silent at airport terminals as striking Teamsters Union ground employees today considered a tentative contract agreement.

The nation's largest overseas airline said it would restore full service early Tuesday, provided the three-year contract is ratified by the union rank-and-file.

The settlement, with the help of federal mediators, was reached shortly after midnight. Details were not disclosed. Assistant Secretary of Labor William J. Usery Jr. said union bargainers "will recommend adoption of the proposed contract."

Ratification meetings are to be completed by Monday afternoon, Usery said.

Pan Am canceled all outbound flights early yesterday after 7,500 cargo handlers, ticket and reservations clerks and other office personnel walked off the job.

Travelers waiting to board planes for Europe, South America and the Far East scurried to book reservations with other carriers. Aside from long lines at ticket counters, little difficulty was reported at terminals throughout the country.

Pan Am said U.S.-bound flights were not affected. Cargo flights for the Vietnam War were exempted from strike action by the union.

The airline, which carries an average of 30,000 passengers a day on 460 flights, serves 119 cities, including San Francisco, in 31 countries.

Teamsters Local 732, designated in February as bargaining agent for the ground personnel, was authorized to strike with expiration of a 30-day cooling off period set by the National Mediation Board.

The union had demanded for its first contract a 16 per cent annual wage increase over three years, a shorter work week, improved pensions, vacations and other benefits for its members who now average $3.30 an hour.

Four Slain Before Man Kills Himself

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)— A man living on a church campground, enraged over attempts to evict him, went on a two-hour shooting spree yesterday and killed four people before apparently committing suicide.

Two of the victims were his parents.

Charles Haygood, 34, went on the rampage after he learned officials of the local Church of God parish had called a meeting with the sheriff to discuss ways of evicting him and his parents from their small home on the campground owned by the church.

He had been living on the campgrounds for about four months and although unemployed, Haygood managed to come regularly with the $25 a month rent.

COUNTERS CLEANED

Novel's Sales Zoom Since Hoax Disclosed

NEW YORK (AP) — Sales of "Naked Came the Stranger" have zoomed since columnist Michael McGrady disclosed that he and 24 friends wrote it as a gag, to show that a sex novel doesn't have to be good to sell.

The day after the hoax was revealed, orders flooded the publisher, and the second printing was doubled quickly to 20,000 copies. Bookstore managers who still have copies say it is selling faster than Jacqueline Susann's "The Love Machine" and other books that "Stranger" was written to satirize.

The book, written under the pseudonym "Penelope Ashe," had been selling well even before the hoax was disclosed, bookstore managers say. McGrady said he was told it was just below the best-seller lists, and that he "fought for weeks" to keep the story bottled up, hoping it would prove his point by showing up on the top 10 before the truth got out.

But Wednesday he admitted that he had dreamed up the basic plot and that 24 friends, mostly writers and editors on the Long Island newspaper Newsday, had written different chapters without knowing what the others were doing. "True excellence in writing will be blue-pencilled into oblivion," he warned them.

With the hoax revealed, 7,200 orders flooded the publisher, Lyle Stuart, Inc., before 11:30 a.m. Thursday. A second printing of 10,000 copies had been planned, but Robert Solomon said, "We jumped it to 15,000. Then half an hour later we went to 20,000."

'Bishop' Says Accused Co-ed Slayer Has Repented 'Sins'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A county prosecutor says a "cursory investigation" will be made of a former mental patient who claims to be a bishop and who was allowed by jail officials to visit John Collins, a student charged with slaying a co-ed.

Joseph Pasci, 62, said yesterday that he had talked with Collins and that "he had repented, come to God with his sins, laid himself before God and asked for forgiveness."

Pasic said he did not ask Collins to specify his "sins."

Collins, 22, has been held under maximum security for more than a week on a charge of strangling Karen Sue Beineman, 18, an Eastern Michigan University freshman, in late July.

Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey of Washtenaw County said Collins authorized Pasic's visit last Monday and state law requires the sheriff to let a minister see a prisoner if the prisoner is willing. He said Pasic has not been allowed to return because Collins, who was reared a Roman Catholic, said "he does not want to talk with him again."

County Prosecutor William Delhay said an investigation would be made. He said Pasic was committed to Ypsilanti State Hospital in 1961 and was released recently.

Pasic says he is Bishop Bartholomew in the Doukhobors, a religious group that was formed in Russia and has been active in western Canada since the early 1900s.

Authorities, meanwhile, are seeking to determine whether there is any connection between Miss Beineman's death and those of six other young women in southeast Michigan in the last two years.

Andrew Manuel Jr., 25-year-old factory worker wanted for questioning in the slayings, was returned to Michigan last night from Phoenix, Ariz., where he was arrested Wednesday.

Manuel faced court arraignment today in Ypsilanti on a larceny charge in connection with a trailer that authorities said he rented in Michigan and left in Salinas.

Officials said Manuel made the California trip with Collins. Manuel agreed to waive extradition yesterday on a federal fugitive warrant in connection with the larceny charge.

Tankers account for one-third of all the merchant shipping in the world, says the Encyclopedia Britannica.

A BIRTHDAY BUMMER

Stephen Hedge of 20 Shell Road, Mill Valley, sits stunned in his small car after swerving to miss another vehicle at Third Street and Lincoln Avenue, then striking a utility pole. Following the accident at about 8:15 a.m. today, Hedge was treated for a head cut at Marin General Hospital. Today is Hedge's 20th birthday. (Independent-Journal photo by Roger Bockrath)

Bill To End Operation Of Bolinas Panel To Governor

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to carry out the dissolution of the Bolinas Harbor District and turn its jurisdiction of the lagoon to the County of Marin cleared its last legislative hurdle last nignt and has been sent to the governor for his signature.

The final action came with Assembly concurrence with minor amendments by the Senate.

The bill, introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, at the request of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, requires the county to submit plans for the lagoon within three years to the State Lands Commission. If the commission rejects the plans, the lagoon would revert to state jurisdiction.

The bill includes provision for a possible harbor of refuge, an amendment to the original bill urged by the California Marine Parks and Harbors Association which opposed the bill till so amended.

Marin's Plans For Fire Taxing District Crumble

The County of Marin has learned that its plans to create a taxing district for fire protection in areas now served by the county fire department have crumbled.

Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows has reported to the board of supervisors that, under the state Public Resources Code, timber lands capable of being harvested cannot be included in such districts.

Barrows said the restriction, brought to the county's attention by the state Division of Forestry, would exclude major portions of West Marin from joining a fire protection district.

Because of this, Barrows will recommend to the supervisors Tuesday that plans to proceed with formation of a taxing district be stopped.

The restriction against harvestable timber lands is owed to a successful effort by lumber interests against paying special fire taxes on their huge land holdings. Many large lumber companies have their own fire equipment, backed up by forestry division firefighters.

The Marin Local Agency Formation Commission had approved formation of the district July 10, recommending that the board hold a public hearing. The matter would then go to the polls.

Barrows said a fire protection district would upgrade service in certain areas without tax burden on all communities in the district and enable possible consolidation of some fire districts in Marin.

He recommended to supervisors that the possibility of corrective legislation in the resources code be explored. He explained that county staff had missed the code restriction during earlier review.

MARIN FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

10:52 a.m., Forest Knolls — Flash fire during the melting of food preserve wax in the kitchen of Mrs. John Alvarado, Castro Street; damage estimated at $50.

12:30 p.m., Larkspur — Smoke removal from house at 7 Heather Way; caused by food fire on stove. No damage.

2:32 p.m., Fairfax — A 5,000-square-foot grass fire behind Christ Lutheran Church on Sir Francis Drake Road; possibly set by children playing with matches.

3:22 p.m., Novato — Small grass fire at Los Cedros and Vineyard roads; possibly caused by cigarette thrown from car.

4:03 p.m., Marinwood — Paper fire in tree near 775 Miller Creek Road. No damage; deliberately set.

4:39 p.m., Tamalpais Valley — Grass fire at Princeton Avenue. About half an acre. No damage.

7:54 p.m., Marin City — Two small spot grass fires next to the ball field. Apparently set.

SESSION

ing the meeting would cause a disruption among the council. He said that other boards notified all members, and that leaving most councilmen in the dark gave him "an uneasy feeling."

"Dammit, something should be done to let her know she isn't running the whole show," Brunner said of Mrs. Putnam.

"There's so much criticism about the secrecy of the council meeting, it seems kind of funny to do something like this," he said. Brunner said he felt the council should win the confidence of the voter to get bond elections passed and that public confidence is not inspired by secret sessions.

Vice Mayor John W. Cavanagh Jr. said he had no knowledge of the meeting. "All I know about it was what I read in the Independent-Journal," he said. "I was never consulted about it."

He said that such matters tend to divide the forces on the council and make the passage of bond issues even harder. "It kind of gets you shook up," he said.

Mrs. Putnam said, "I didn't feel it was absolutely necessary to mention the meeting to the council since the session was just to explore the future of bond elections in the city."

She said she called the meeting because each taxing agency should have an awareness of what must be put before the people because it is the same taypayer who will be asked to support the different elections.

Mrs. Putnam said no one in the group was speaking as a representative of his respective board, but only as individuals. She said she felt the only reason that secrecy was being charged was because the meeting was held at city hall. "It wouldn't have been different than the councilmen getting together in a coffee shop," she said.

"We weren't bypassing the council, but if some of them feel that way — well, that's life," Mrs. Putnam said.

Brunner said he expected to bring up the joint meeting at the council study session Monday at 7:30 p.m.

ADJOURNS

Monagan, R-Tracy, finally flexed all his party's muscle and added one Democratic vote to push through the adjournment resolution, 42-17. The Senate already had adopted it.

But when midnight came, both houses literally "stopped the clock" and continued passing bills. The Assembly called it quits at 12:40 a.m. and the Senate followed at 1:29 a.m.

Unlike the rest of the hostile seven-month-long session, the end resembled a mutual admiration society with Democrats and Republicans publicly praising each other.

The Senate was not quite as cordial as the Assembly, however. The upper house in recent months had gone throught a traumatic "young turk" purge of the "old guard."

After the final gavel had fallen, new Senate president pro tem Howard Way, R-Exeter, cited "the change of leadership and the change in the power structure" as the most significant event of the bitter session.

Reagan Gets School Tax Ceiling Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill maintaining the existing school tax rate ceilings moved to Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk today over protests that the limits don't work. (See another legislative story, page 1 and Sacramento Summary, page 20.)

The Assembly passed the measure by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach, 42-9, late last night after an unsuccessful attempt to kill it.

The Legislature passed a bill in 1967 permitting school districts to set their own tax rates without voter approval after July 1, 1971. If signed by the governor, Burke's bill would repeal that law and maintain the present ceilings.

Burke's bill initially would have delayed enactment of the law permitting districts to set their own rates for two years—but it was amended in the Senate to repeal the entire law.

Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, and other supporters of the bill said school districts would raise taxes once the ceilings were lifted.

But Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said, "I think we're fooling ourselves and the people when we adopt limits that we know won't work."

He said there were 44 tax overrides — raising of rates by a vote of district residents — this year "and if we put a limit on it we'll have 44 overrides again.

"Much more sensible, my friends . . . would be an expense limit that is realistic, not a rate limit that is unrealistic and unworkable," Bagley said.

ing power of the underprivileged . . . while allowing the big corporations to increase their efforts even further without much effort."

The devaluation announcement, which stunned European financial circles, gives foreign tourists more for their dollar and makes French goods cheaper in world trade.

Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing told a nationwide television audience that alternatives to devaluation would have been bankruptcy or deflation leading to massive unemployment.

The decision was taken initially by President Pompidou, Premier Jacques Delmas and Giscard d'Estaing, who are emerging as a kind of triumvirate following the disappearance of former President Charles de Gaulle from the political scene.

Pompidou called in several Cabinet ministers for a one-hour meeting today to discuss government austerity measures and agricultural prices after the devaluation.

The new value of the franc, effective Monday, will be 17.5 U.S. cents as compared to the present 20 cents. The dollar becomes officially equivalent to 5.55419 francs instead of 4.96706.

The official devaluation figure is 12.5 per cent — that is how much a Frenchman will lose when he trades his francs for dollars and how much a foreign tourist will gain when he trades other currencies for francs.

Washington and other foreign governments were quick to say that the French move would not affect their currencies.

London said the pound sterling would not be devalued and Bonn said the Deutsche mark would not be revalued upward.

wards," he said.

He recalled one of his first duties was making out the payroll, by hand, for the approximately 70 city employees. Today there are about 220 employees and machines.

He also began attending council meetings "so I would know what was going on" and figures he has attended at least 1,725 since then. "You can imagine how tired of going to council meetings I am," he said.

However, that faithful attendance has made him a fount of information in the city and what he doesn't know immediately he can find quickly in the records.

It's also given him a somewhat proprietary interest in city affairs, marked by occasional pronouncements at the meetings. "He always says exactly what he thinks," a fellow employee noted.

His council meeting nights and working days almost over, Cornwell is becoming excited about the future.

He and his wife, the former Myrtle Jepsen, daughter of a long-time San Rafael family, plan to move immediately to the shores of Knockti Bay on Clear Lake.

They've been going there for years, enjoying fishing and boating, staying in their small trailer. A new, larger mobile home is expected to arrive soon to become their permanent residence.

Cornwell, long a serious amateur photographer and holder of several awards, plans to devote much more time to his hobby.

He's been making pictures for years and does his own darkroom work.

He's even tried his hand at travelogues and recalled one of Death Valley when he drove more than 1,000 miles in the valley in two trips there.

When he's tired of fishing and photography, he will travel.

In between, it's a good bet he will keep up with what's happening.

"I've always been interested in anything new that happens," he said, recalling how transportation has gone from the horse and buggy to moon rockets in his lifetime, and how San Rafael has expanded from its valley out toward the bay and over the hill to the north.

Kentucky Lake is the largest of the lakes of the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) with a shoreline of 2,380 miles.

perior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner in Marin Superior Court today. FBI officials said a federal complaint would be filed against Mason Monday.

Mason is accused of walking out of the bank at 830 Third Street with $1,348 in a paper bag after threatening a teller with what police today said was a light bulb simulating a gun in his pocket.

He and another man were seen leaving the area in a white sports car after the holdup.

The driver has not yet been located.

Plea Date Set In Grand Theft Case

Dan Hayden Willoughby, 30, and Marilyn Pearl Robbins, 25, both of San Rafael, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of grand theft and forgery at the Emporium in Northgate. They were ordered to appear Aug. 18 to plead to the charges.

The two are charged with using stolen credit cards June 30 to buy $280 worth of merchandise.

non-working," he said. "To families with dependent children headed by a father, as well as those headed by a mother; and a basic federal minimum would be provided, the same in every state."

Every recipient, except mothers with children under age 6, would have to register with the employment service and accept either training or a job to qualify for aid.

The day-care centers would both encourage mothers to work and provide them employment, the President said. In addition recipients would receive a $30 a month bonus for job training. They could also keep the first $60 a month of outside earnings with no reduction in aid, plus 50 cents of every dollar beyond that.

President Nixon described these benefits for the working poor: "A family of five in which the father earns $2,000 a year—which is the hard fact of life for many families—would get family assistance payments of $1,260 for a total income of $3,260. A family of seven earning $3,000 a year would have its income raised to $4,360."

President Nixon described the "New Federalism" as "turning the tide of power and responsibility that has flowed to Washington for 30 years and giving states a greater measure of responsibility—not as a way of avoiding problems, but as a better way of solving problems."

He used the shift in manpower programs to emphasize his point.

Youth Booked In Concealed Weapon Probe

An 18-year-old Novato youth was booked into Marin County Jail early today following an altercation with a police officer at Denny's Restaurant at 7339 Redwood Highway, Novato police reported.

Booked on investigation of carrying a concealed weapon and assaulting an officer was Michael Robert Rundle of 2012 Center Road, police reported. Rundle remains in jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Police said they went to restaurant at 1:08 a.m. following a disturbance complaint. Rundle at first refused to be checked for weapons, but later police found a billy club on him, they reported. Further details were not available.

Boy Fractures Leg In Fall From Bike

John Meyer, 6, of 9 Eucalyptus Lane, San Rafael, was reported in good condition today in Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with a fractured leg suffered yesterday when he fell off a bicycle.

Meyer, son of Peter Meyer, assistant county clerk for elections, was riding on the back of a bike driven by James W. Kubum, 11, of 39 Mary Street, San Rafael, last night when it swerved to avoid a car turning off Grand Avenue to Second Avenue, which the boys were crossing. The bicycle and auto

Meredith Spends Two Days In Jail

NEW YORK (UPI)—James Meredith, the civil rights crusader who integrated the University of Mississippi, was released from jail yesterday after serving a two-day term for harassing tenants in a Bronx apartment house he owned.

Meredith, who was convicted of the offense in June, was sentenced by Criminal Court Judge J. Howard Rossbach to "time served"—The two days he had spent in jail since he submitted to arrest Wednesday night.

Kennel Club Sets Obedience Classes

The Pacheco Kennel Club of Novato will sponsor conformation and obedience classes starting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in Olive School, according to publicity chairman Lois Johnston.

Lynn Woods will teach the conformation class and Ce Ce Manning the obedience class during the eight week course. Further information may be obtained from the club at P.O. Box 1049, Novato.

In Fair Condition

Wayne F. Lockabey, 17, of 1028 Los Gamos Road, San Rafael, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital after he had taken an overdose of barbiturates and alcohol yesterday, sheriff's deputies reported. Lockabey was taken to the hospital at 7:10 p.m.

Two Hanoi Units Mauled In Big Raid

SAIGON (AP)—Two North Vietnamese units were mauled by bullets, rockets, artillery and bombs today after they apparently were driven from hiding north of Saigon by the biggest B52 raids in five weeks.

Of the more than 100 North Vietnamese caught in the open, 64 were killed and six were captured, a military spokesman said. There were no American casualties.

Elements of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, the 11th Armored Cavalry and the South Vietnamese 9th Division were chasing the remnants in an area of the Cambodian border called "The Fish Hook" about 70 miles north of Saigon. Only light contact was reported.

Up to 50 of the Stratofortresses had laid a carpet of bombs on suspected enemy troop concentrations 65 to 75 miles north of Saigon. Then the North Vietnamese were spotted moving out.

They were attacked immediately by fighter-bombers and helicopters as U.S. and South Vietnamese infantrymen hurried into the area.

Intelligence officers were questioning the six prisoners to determine if they were simply trying to escape the B52s' bombs or were moving into position for strikes in the border provinces next to Cambodia.

A spokesman for the air cavalrymen said the two units had been identified as elements of the North Vietnamese First and Ninth divisions, which have been operating in the area from bases in Cambodia.

The size of the B52 raids—the sky giants dropped 1,000-1,500 tons of bombs—reflected allied concern over enemy infiltrations in the region in the eighth week of a battlefield lull.

Girl Reports Two Attacks

A 16-year-old Detroit girl, visiting in Marin City, was raped twice today, sheriff's deputies reported.

Officers are investigating the case but no arrests have been made, they said.

The girl told deputies she danced with a youth, about 17 years old, at a Marin City party and that at about 12:45 a.m. he drove her in his car to Kappas Yacht Harbor in Sausalito and attacked her. He then drove her to San Francisco, where she was attacked again, deputies were told.

The girl told officers whe was then taken back to Marin City to the apartment of friends where she is staying.

Wrist Sprained In Auto Crash

Merritt James Wider, 46, of 15 Chickasaw Court, Corte Madera, was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for a sprained left wrist following a three-car accident at 10:10 p.m. on the Golden Gate Bridge.

California Highway Patrol officers said a car driven by Frederick Eugene Buck, 50, of Honolulu, and a third car which left the scene of the accident were also involved in the mishap.

No further details of the accident were available today.

Victims Of Wreck In Good Condition

Two Navy men were reported in good condition today at Hamilton Air Force Base hospital following an accident at 6:15 p.m. yesterday when their car skidded on gravel on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near the southern entrance to Point Reyes Beach and rolled over a bank, California Highway Patrolmen reported.

Driver Freddie H. Duncan, 19, a student at the guided missile school at Mare Island, Vallejo, suffered a broken left leg and his passenger, Richard L. Hardin, 20, of Vallejo, scalp cuts.

Charge Is Dropped

A charge against John Edward Brown, 19, of Petaluma, of stealing a car June 2 in San Rafael was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

OBITUARIES

John B. Poncia Dies At 86

John B. Poncia, 86, a Tomales dairy rancher for 61 years, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of Italy, Poncia moved to the United States in 1901 and started his own dairy ranch in Tomales, known as the Poncia Ranch. He worked on it until his retirement in 1961 when he moved to Cotati and resided at 7405 Derby Lane up until his death.

The ranch remains in the family with Poncia's son, Eugene, living there now.

Poncia was a member of Aerie 333, Eagles Lodge, Petaluma.

He is survived by his wife, Mary; four sons, Emil of Rohnert Park, John of Sebastopol, and Eugene and Andrew Poncia, both of Tomales; four daughters, Mary Mather of Santa Rosa, Margaret Matteri of Marshall, Amy Ransom of San Leandro and Theresa Gobbi of Tomales.

Also surviving him are two brothers, Angelo Poncia of Fallon and Martin Poncia of Tomales, as well as 22 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Requiem Mass will be celebrated for Poncia at 11 a.m. Tuesday, at Our Lady of the Assumption Church, Tomales. Rosary will be recited at 8:30 p.m. Monday at the Sorensen Mortuary, Petaluma. Entombment will be at Tomales Catholic Cemetery, Tomales.

The family prefers that tributes be made in contributions to Our Lady of the Assumption Church, Tomales.

INGWER BAHNSEN

Ingwer P. Bahnsen, long-time Cotati poultry man, died yesterday of a heart attack at his home at 10266 Redwood Highway North. He was 72.

Born in Germany, he came to the U.S. in 1923, working on a farm in Iowa until moving to California in 1930.

He worked for many years on the Arfsten poultry ranch, later operating his own ranch for about eight years, until 1961 when he joined Rief and Brody chicken producers. He retired three years ago.

He was a member of the Hermann Sons Lodge of Petaluma.

He is survived by his wife, Anna Bahnsen, and a brother, Nicolay Bahnsen of Burbank.

A service will be conducted by the lodge at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the garden chapel of the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma.

Private funeral and inurnment will be Monday morning.

ISABEL KRIEG

Isabel Ann Krieg of 118 Acacia Avenue, Larkspur, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. She was 57.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Marin for 50 years.

Survivors are her son, Robert S. Krieg of Larkspur; her father, George Gambarini of Palo Alto, and a sister, Mrs. Zelma Cordone of San Anselmo.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Patrick's Church, Larkspur, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

LAURA ROBIN

Laura Ann Robin, 13-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Robin of 24 Nave Court, Novato, died yesterday at a local hospital.

Death was attributed to natural causes but an autopsy is to be made, Coroner's deputy Richard W. Madigan reported.

Funeral is pending at Keaton's Mortuary, Novato.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl Of 19 Should Be Allowed To Stay Out Past Midnight

DEAR HELEN:

My parents wouldn't let me date until I was 17, and then they put big restrictions on me. I could never stay to the end of a dance, or see the last of a movie, because I had to be home by 11:30, even on Saturday nights. Now that I'm 19, I still have to be in before midnight. And then submit to a grilling, as if I were a kid, and not working full time.

The other evening we had a flat tire and I wasn't anywhere near a telephone. When my boy friend brought me home at 12:30, my Dad wasn't home. Mom said he was out looking for me!

He came back about fifteen minutes later and, Helen, you won't believe this, but he was carrying his gun. If he had found me and the boy, no telling what he might have done.

My parents are insisting that I get a physical examination, as they are sure the worst happened.

I can swear it didn't, but if this keeps up, I'm going to leave. Do you blame me? These are just a few examples. I could tell you worse. — JAILED IN

DEAR J.I.:

I can't blame you for wanting to break jail. A girl of 19, with a full time job, is ready for her own apartment. Start looking! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Don't you think 15 is old enough to have casual dates with boys, like meet them at chaperoned dances, and have them over to see you? My folks won't agree with you, but I wish you'd say so anyway. — CAN'T CONVINCE THEM.

DEAR C.C.T.:

Consider it said. And I hope your folks soon agree with me! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I haven't seen much from adopted children in your column. I'm 17, and I have a wonderful family. I'm so grateful they chose me.

When I was young, my mother cut out a poem in the paper which reads as follows:

Not flesh of my flesh,
Not bone of my bone.
But still miraculously my own.
I'll never forget for a single minute,
You didn't grow under my my heart, but in it!

I keep this in my purse with her picture, always.

My adopted parents are the best. Now that they raised me, they've got another problem. My sister was killed in an automobile accident and they've taken guardianship of her little son. I know they'll do a great job for him, too.

It takes a special kind of couple to be as great as my parents are. I hope I can be that kind of parent, too.—BOBBI

Man Loses His Temper

The average man loses his temper about twice as frequently as the average woman, reveals an investigation of anger at Columbia University.

The report indicates that the average man loses his temper six times a week, against about three tantrums for the average woman.

It was also noted that while women tend to lose their temper when someone has done or said something they consider disagreeable, men seem to take personal grievances rather calmly. Instead the stronger sex tends to get upset over things: flat tires, faulty razors, traffic jams and so on.

Julie Hanrahan Becomes Bride Of Michael Kelly

Julie Hanrahan became the bride of Michael Kelly last Saturday in a ceremony at St. Rita's Catholic Church in Fairfax.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Hanrahan of San Anselmo are the bride's parents.

Mary Hanrahan was her sister's maid of honor. Another sister, Katie Hanrahan, Gail Sivori of San Anselmo and Laurene Pelleriti of Fairfax were bridesmaids.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother-in-law James Shea of San Francisco. Gary Griffin of Belmont, also the bridegroom's brother-in-law; the bride's brother, Tim Hanrahan; and John Kennedy of San Francisco ushered.

A reception was held at the Non-Commissioned Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base. Following a wedding trip to Yosemite National Park the couple will live in San Francisco.

The bride is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and Grace Ball Secretarial School in San Francisco. She is employed by Occidental Life Insurance Co. in San Francisco.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kelly of San Francisco. His sisters are Mrs. James Shea and Mrs. Gary Griffin. The bridegroom is a graduate of Reardon High School in San Francisco and City College of San Francisco. He attends San Francisco State College and is employed by the Post Office in San Francisco.

Moving Day Needn't Be Traumatic

AP NEWSFEATURE

To the adventurous, a move may bring the challenge of things to come — a new locale, a new home, new friends, new pastimes. But to the insecure homemaker, the prospect of a move can be paralyzing.

The key to a smooth move lies in the planning. Here are some hints to help make moving day as painless as possible.

For a long distance move, all moving companies advise professional packing services. If it's a local move and you're doing some of the packing, be sure the job is well done. Cartons used by professional packers can be obtained at small cost from the mover.

When the moving estimator calls, be sure to show him all articles that will be a part of the move. Check objects in garage or attic that otherwise may bob to surface only on moving day.

Check in advance to make sure you understand the mover's liability under basic transportation rates and that the liability is sufficient to fully protect your shipment.

Get rid of unwanted belongings before moving. Don't pay to move them, only to dispose of them at the other end.

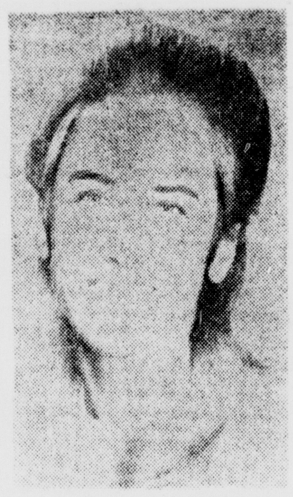
As moving day draws near, tend to the neighborhood necessities: inform the utilities, arrange to stop milk and newspaper deliveries, close checking and savings accounts, close local charge accounts, notify post office to forward mail and pick up or arrange to have forwarded important school and medical records.

On moving day, don't be in the way. Be available if the moving crew has a question. But it's to your benefit to keep children and dogs out of the way, and let the crew get about its work.

Paint Brush

The National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association advises the best way to hold a paint brush is to grasp the brush comfortably near the base of the handle. Hold it rather loosely. Do not bear down hard on a brush, but exert only enough pressure to make the bristles flex slightly toward the tip.

Louise Skowronek To Be Bride In January



LOUISE SKOWRONEK

The engagement of Louise Skowronek and William (Bill) R. Koenig was announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Skowronek of Novato at the home of the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. Stephen Skowronek in Amsterdam, N. Y.

The Skowronek family and Bill were in New York on vacation.

Louise is the sister of Cheryl and Joanne Skowronek of Novato. She was graduated from Novato High School, attended College of Marin and received a B. A. degree in history at Sonoma State College. The future bride will be working toward her teaching credential this fall. She is employed with Dean's Rexall Drug in Novato.

Bill is the son of Mrs. Alex Koenig of Reno, Nev., and Joseph Osborn of Alameda. He is the brother of Hansel and Gretchen Koenig of Reno and Mrs. Charles Hoag of Novato. Mrs. Irene Osborn of Alameda is his grandmother. He was graduated from Novato High School and is employed with Marin Landscape Materials in Novato.

The couple plan to be married on Jan. 25.

Suellen Riley Is Married

Suellen Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Riley of Pt. Reyes Station, and Michael J. Alberigi, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Alberigi, were married last Saturday at Sacred Heart Church in Olema.

The bride's sister, Sheila, was the maid of honor. James Alberigi Jr., brother of the bridegroom of Bolinas, w as the best man and the usher was Tobias Giacomimi Jr., of Inverness.

After a reception at San Geronimo Country Club the couple will travel in Southern California and then return to San Rafael to live.

Suellen was graduated from San Domonico School for Girls and attended Dominican College. Her sisters are Mrs. Timothy Reardon of San Francisco, Mrs. James Schnabel of San Rafael, Sheila, Debbi, and Brigid Riley of Pt. Reyes. She has a brother John of Pt. Reyes and Rory in Vietnam.

The bridegroom is employed by Murphys Inc. of Oakland. He was graduated from Tomales High School and attended College of Marin. His two sisters are Beverly of Pt. Reyes and Mrs. James Gibson of Bolinas.

Permanent Pleat Before Hemming Sheer Fabrics

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I just love the sheer pleated fabrics that are being used for dressy clothes and am fascinated with the way the hem sort of ruffles out. The dress I tried to copy was very expensive, so I decided to make one.

I had my fabric permanent pleated but was so disappointed when the hem didn't curl out but was pressed in very sharp and tight. Will pressing change the appearance or did I do something wrong when I had it pleated?

MARY C.

DEAR MARY:

My guess is that you hemmed the sheer fabric before you took it to be permanent pleated. If you did this, you would naturally have a sharp look at the hem because it would have all been pleated together. What you should have done in order to get the soft ruffled look at the hem is to actually roll the hem after the fabric was pleated.

I think you can still change your dress since you would only have to make it about ½ inch shorter than it is now. Cut off the original rolled hem and re-do it. I can see your painful expression about having to do it twice, but I think the end result will be worth the extra work.

Evelyn Spooner, Worcester, Mass., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her suggestion:

"I find it helpful to use white thread in the bobbin when using colored thread in the needle when I do my stay stitching. In this way I can quickly tell which is the wrong side of the material, the white thread being on that side and the color on the right side. This, in most every case, is a real gem, saves lots of time and trouble since so many fabrics look almost the same on both sides."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have been wanting to make a washable double knit, but a friend told me the only double knit to buy is a washable dacron and polyester combination. The only knits I have found at our stores are marked 100 per cent polyester. Is one kind more desirable than another? I'm at a complete loss with the new fabrics.

MRS. R. O. N.

DEAR MRS. R. O. N.:

I have found equal satisfaction with many of the better quality washable double knits. I have purposely noticed the content of some of the ones we have actually used and find they use the following descriptions. Arnel and nylon polyester, 100 per cent polyester or dacron polyester, and I can honestly say that they are all comparable in washability as well as wearability.

Naturally, there are many qualities of these synthetics just as there are many qualities of wool, cotton and silk. A better quality fabric cannot be compared with one that looks the same and might have the same content but definitely not the same quality. You usually get what you pay for in fabrics as well as any product.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have noticed that on so many patterns, whether there are facings or sleeves, the seam allowance is larger under the arm. I find this very confusing when you try to get the facing to fit the armhole after stitching it on this deeper seamline. What is the reason for the large underarm seam allowance?

MRS. J. L. O.

DEAR MRS. J. L. O.:

The reason you have two seamlines under the arm is because you use one for the sleeveless version and the other when you apply sleeves. I have found this to be a very confusing detail for beginners to understand. A sleeveless dress must have a higher armhole than the one used for sleeves.

Carefully mark your fabric on the correct stitching line for whichever version you are going to use. Be very careful if you cut the pattern itself. I have seen some women cut the pattern on the stitching line instead of cutting it ⅝ inch above the stitching line. If you have stitched the armhole on the correct stitching line, the facing should fit perfectly.

Eunice Farmer tells you how to set-in sleeves in her helpful booklet "All About Sleeves." To obtain your illustrated copy send 10 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Rita Lago's Engagement To Les Furnanz Is Told

The engagement of Rita Therese Lago to James Leslie Furnanz Jr. was announced at a party at the San Anselmo home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lago.

RITA LAGO

The future bride is the sister of Mrs. Richard Caldwell and Carleton Lago of Novato, Marcia Lago of Hollister and Phillip and Marietta Lago of San Anselmo. A graduate of Marin Catholic High School, she is a senior at Dominican College and employed at Macy's in San Rafael.

Mr. and Mrs. James Leslie Furnanz of San Bruno are the future bridegroom's parents. He is the brother of Carol, Michael, Lynn and Laura Furnanz, all of San Bruno. Les, as the future bridegroom is known, is a graduate of Capuchino High School in San Bruno and the University of San Francisco and is doing graduate work in electrical engineering at the University of California at Davis.

A wedding next summer is planned.

West Germans Seek Mates Through Classified Ads

MAINZ, GERMANY (GF) — For 230 years, Germans have been advertising in newspapers for marriage partners and the ads now form a standard part of reading in the claassified section. They are also fairly effective — about 350,000 marriages in West Germany, two per cent of the total, result from contracts through such ads, a survey recently revealed.

But the tenor of the ads has changed through the years and an analysis of the change forms the basis of a new sociological investigation by Dr. Peter Kaupp, of the University of Mainz' sociology department.

The first marriage ad appeared in a small Frankfurt paper called the "Question and Classified News" in the 18th century. It was placed by a lady and, in stilted German, said "honest woman of single status and good shape seeks marriage partner."

The emphasis now is on the qualities of the partner being sought with a minimum of words wasted about the person placing the ad. As such the ads are able to give an insight into the type of men and women considered ideal marriage partners today.

Thus, a few years ago and especially just after World War II, qualities such as "reliable, honest, industrious, thrifty and with means" stood in the foreground. Today human virtues weigh heavier than material security.

The picture marriage-seeking women give in ads of the man they'd like to find most frequently includes three qualities: strong character, good humor and intelligence. Less in demand these days are maturity, solid position, understanding and overly demanding.

Men who advertise place good humor at the top of the list in the women they're seeking. Then come "tolerant" and

"with vitality." Men say they are looking for nice, charming and natural women. "Good housewife," "fond of children" and a "happy family life" are less in demand among today's men.

Another changing characteristic of marriage ads revolves around the sex placing them. At the turn of his century, most of such ads were put in papers by men. Now women account for the lion's share — men place only about 38.6 per cent.

The average age of people advertising for a partner: 37.1 years among women, 39.3 years among men. According to Kaupp, this suggests most of these placing the ads are people who've looked around for partners for a long time without success and turn to the classified method as a last resort.

DRAMA REVIEW

Audience Plays Big Role At Melodrama

By GARY TISCHLER

The best thing about the Terra Linda Players' production of the old-time melodrama "Pure As the Driven Snow," which opened at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts last night, is the audience.

The small group of lively people who watched this venture into an ancient, not so honorable and slightly ridiculous relic of American dramatic art, really got with it, perhaps spurred on by an ample supply of champagne and pretzels.

That is what is supposed to happen with a thing like this, although the audience was a lot more inventive than the production. They supplied some beautiful punch lines and counterpoints to the marvelously complicated and beautifully dumb plot, which I refuse to go into. Other than to say that it had the classic array of characters — snarling villain, detergent-white heroine, brawny, good and stupid hero, wicked temptress, a baby in swaddling clothes, etc.

I will say that it could have been better, and for this I blame the male members of the cast. To make the melodrama a success, it has to be a total exercise in exaggeration. There is a certain art involved in making entertainment entertaining. It is not good enough for the hero to stick his chest out, for the villain to simply walk around like the hunchback of Notre Dame. You have to be able to hear them.

Hal King as Mortimer Frothingham, the villain, simply wasn't nasty enough. He looked nasty, but he didn't sound that way. Deep in my trembling heart, I knew he wouldn't dare do anything wicked to the heroine, much as he'd like to. He simply wasn't delighted enough in all his wicked plots and shenanigans.

To get to the women, they were superb. Bobbie Freeman had every nuance of the heroine, Purity Dean, down pat, with trembling hands, either folded or stretched out in supplication, eyes forever lifted upward. When she got to the line "for God protects the working girl" you just had to admire her courage for even getting through it without a hitch, let alone doing it with such a beautiful straight face.

Come to think of it, Bette Jarboe, who played the distaff villain, might have made a good Mortimer. Now there was one nasty woman, snarling, growling at the audience all night long. She was beautifully awful.

All the rest of the girls — Mona Horwitz as Mrs. Ethelinda Hewlitt, a haughty grand dame with false pride, Justine Welch as her man-hunting daughter, Muriel Brinker as the kindly, gruff aunt, did well and seemed to know what the whole thing was about. I'm not quite sure what to say about Mary Walker who played Mortimer's bulging wife like a latter-day Mae West. It was funny, so I won't argue about it.

All in all, every one had a grand time, except during part of the second act, which dragged, possibly because the audience was trying to get a second wind.

There was even a funny child in the audience, who, after it was discovered that Mortimer was indeed married, chastised him with "you dirty two-timer."

Now that's an audience.

Canada's French-speaking province of Quebec spans 594,860 square miles, almost three times the area of France.

Renaissance Pleasure Faire Starts Sept. 6

The third annual Renaissance Pleasure Faire, re-creation of an Elizabethan fair at harvest time, will be held Saturdays and Sundays beginning Sept. 6 and 7 in a wooded area on San Pedro Point, off North San Pedro Road.

More than 100 California craftsmen, including artisans from Marin are scheduled to participate in the festival, working in the traditional materials of the 16th Century, according to the show's promoters.

Marin craftsmen will include David Adams, maker of stained glass, from Fairfax; Fred Berensmeier, maker of wood cuts, block prints and collographs, Lagunitas; David Carlin, woodcarver, Corte Madera, and William Clerk, potter, San Rafael.

Displaying and selling their wares from rustic stalls will be puppet-maker Gerald Denman of San Rafael, woodcarver James Downer of Lagunitas, potter Jeanne Glaser Ellner of Mill Valley, and Lyn Elder, maker of ancient musical instruments, of Mill Valley.

Concert Tomorrow

There will be a concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Santa Venetia Presbyterian Church, 635 Adrian Way, Santa Venetia. Performing will be violinists Lynn Mehlinger and Ray Oakley Jr.; cellist Christopher Brann; violist Jean Harris and pianist Margaret Oakley.

Winnie Judd Tearfully Pleads Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — "I love it here. I want to stay."

Winnie Ruth Judd, Arizona trunk murderess of the 1930s, made the tearful plea yesterday at a hearing to determine whether she should be returned to an Arizona mental hospital from which she escaped.

Mrs. Judd, who has lived the past seven years in the San Francisco Bay area as Marian Lane, appeared in Gov. Ronald Reagan's office with her attorney, Melvin Belli of San Francisco, to fight extradition.

Herbert Ellingwood, legal affairs secretary for Reagan, said he would make his recommendation to the governor in a couple of days and expected a decision from Reagan within 10 days.

Mrs. Judd, dressed in a pale blue summer suit with her hair tinted a dark red, tearfully dabbed at her face with a tissue and nearly broke down several times during the hour-long hearing.

"This woman who stands before you now has been rehabilitated as much as any woman can be," Belli said. He said if she were not, "rehabilitation is a mockery."

He pointed out that Mrs. Judd had served 34 years in the Arizona mental hospital. She was ruled insane after being convicted of murdering two female roommates in Phoenix and shipping their bodies in a trunk to Los Angeles in 1931.

Mrs. Judd, speaking rapidly under Belli's questioning, told of her work taking care of an elderly lady in Danville and earlier studying practical nursing in Oakland. She escaped seven years ago for the seventh time from the hospital.

Teens Discover Summer Employment Is Difficult

By SUZANNE WOOD

Although job opportunities awaited many of Marin's students when they left school this spring, the majority of youths have spent an idle and financially unprofitable summer.

Three-month jobs, scattered throughout the county, are limited. Consequently, most of the more than 14,000 working age (16 and older) high school students and numerous college students may find themselves short on needed cash for school this fall.

Federally and county aided programs, like the Neighborhood Youth Corps and Economic Opportunity Council, have located jobs and are paying the salaries for about 300 youth from low income families. But these programs have fund limitations which cause the rejection of many applicants every summer.

This summer NYC was forced to turn down 40 applications — all from economically disadvantaged high school students. EOC has had organizational problems which delayed its job interviewing, and its funds, which were directed solely toward Marin City last year, are now equally distributed throughout the county.

The scarcity of summer jobs in Marin City prompted about 150 youngsters to appear at an EOC meeting earlier this summer to protest job shortages.

Marin Municipal Water District's summer program is not designed primarily for students from any economic bracket. It hired 32 college students and placed some in jobs related to their college majors like landscaping and mechanical engineering.

City park and recreation departments maintain summer programs like the one in San Rafael with jobs ranging from lifeguarding to pulling weeds. Belvedere has hired youths to clean up fire hazards. Other communities which employed youths are Tiburon, Mill Valley, Sausalito, Fairfax and Petaluma.

But city programs also have money problems. San Rafael hired 125 but turned down 250 more because of fund limitations.

"With more funds we could expand the youth personnel in the summer to staff all playground areas instead of the present 12 locations," said Andrew J. Snyder, San Rafael director of parks and recreation.

Private employers too often simply do not need or cannot afford the luxury of summer help. Many do not want to orientate a new person to a job just for three months.

Some of the frustrated youths who encountered overcrowded programs and employers not needing additional help, commented on the difficulty of finding a job and the consequences.

Cynthia Vetelli is an 18-year-old graduate of Tamalpais High School who needed funds to attend college in February. Miss Vetelli lived in Mexico one summer and speaks Spanish fluently. She, like many youths, advertised in the newspaper for a job.

"The main problem is a lot of people don't trust kids my age, so they give jobs to older people because they seem more responsible," she said.

She, along with several others, suggested the county aid young peoples' efforts next summer by publishing employment brochures with biographical data about youngsters needing jobs.

A few youths simply doubted that employers are willing to help youngsters unless somebody else, like EOC or NYC, pays the salaries.

Otis Ames, a 20-year-old student at the College of Marin who has worked three summers for federally funded EOC's Project Breakthrough, expressed this feeling.

"Some employers are not willing to break down their schedules to give a kid a job for $4 or $5 a day," he said.

Mary Compton, a 16-year-old student at Redwood High School has a job at the child care center at NYC in Marin City, but she summed up most youths' feelings about the difficulty of locating three month jobs.

"I want to be a teacher, so I checked with schools for any kind of job," she said. "But they're looking for experienced and how are you going to get experience without first having a job?"

There are thousands of insects in the world today but only bees, wasps, ants and termites care for their young by feeding and sheltering until they are able to fend for themselves.

The MAKING OF A HETEROSEXUAL will be performed at Browns Hall, 390 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, on Sundays at 8:30 p.m., August 10, 24, 31. No reservations necessary. Donation $1.50, students $1.

Golden Gate Bridge Traffic Hits 31 Million

A record-breaking 31,251,968 vehicles crossed Golden Gate Bridge during fiscal 1968-69, Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring reported yesterday.

The record was an increase of 958,175 vehicles, or 3.16 per cent, over the previous fiscal year.

But Luehring noted that in 1967-68 the percentage went up 6.85 per cent over the previous year. He said the lower rate of increase probably was due to a decrease early this summer in tourism, to a changed method of counting traffic under the one-way toll system, and to diversion of traffic because of construction on Highway 37.

Toll revenue totaled $6,565,118, up 2.4 per cent from the previous year.

Greyhound bus crossings dropped 1.37 per cent to 139,350, probably because of the recent strike, Luehring said.

Trucks crossing during the fiscal year totaled 361,472, an increase of .04 per cent. Military and police vehicles, which pay no toll, totaled 662,630, an increase of 6.81 per cent.

Commute book sales increased 6.81 per cent to 228,604, and a total of 28,297 pedestrians were registered through the dime turnstiles — a marked decrease from the 43,227 during the previous fiscal year. Luehring said the drop was because the sidewalk was closed weekdays for maintenance during part of the year.

More than 452 million vehicles have crossed the bridge since 1937.

Alto Firemen Get Pay Raises

The Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District board Thursday night gave its firemen an unexpected pay raise to bring them into line with firemen in other parts of the county, Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported yesterday.

The board earlier had granted a 5 per cent salary increase to firemen while departments in the rest of the county were getting 7.5 to 10 per cent, Heynen said.

As a result, so the Alto-Richardson Bay district would not be "at the bottom of the barrel again," Heynen said the board reclassified its firemen into higher salary ranges.

First Place Balloon Is Found In Yosemite

A balloon discovered in the Yosemite wilderness two days before the deadline has won the San Rafael balloon trip competition.

The balloon was one of more than 800 released June 27 by participants in the city's summer recreation program. Postcards with the senders name were attached to the balloons with a request that the finder return, by Aug. 7.

The winning balloon was released from Santa Margarita School by Bob Moran, 10, of 73 Vallejo Way. He will receive a $5 gift certificate at Taveggia-Brusati Sport and Saddle Shop, San Rafael.

A note on the postcard returned by Don Buerkel of San Mateo, a teacher, indicated it was found on a backpacking trip near Kibby Lake Tuesday.

The second place balloon was found six miles from Sonora in a chicken yard. It was released from Oliver Hartzell School by Beth Ford, 8, of 916 Los Ranchitos Road.

Third place winner, whose balloon also traveled to near Sonora, is William Presley, 10, of 623 B Street.

Second and third place winners will also receive gift certificates from the sport shop.

Only 23 of the more than 800 postcards were returned. Last year about 45 came back. Most of this year's came from a path southeast of San Rafael.

Single most popular place for the balloons to land was almond orchards in the Central Valley.

The postcard that actually came the greatest distance was one from Wisconsin. A fisherman reported finding it there the day after it was released in San Rafael.

Recreation officials were skeptical of the report but problems with it were solved when the boy who "released" the balloon moved out of state.

Tiburon Council To Study Budget

The Tiburon City Council will discuss its 1969-70 budget at its meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall.

The council also will receive the annual report of the parks and recreation commission and reports on cable television, urban development and the police department.

Also on the agenda is consideration of an ordinance concerning complaints of odor from the sanitary plant at Trestle Glen and Tiburon Boulevard.

Drug Arraignment

Maurice A. Schwartz, 24, of Lagunitas, has been ordered in Marin Municipal Court to appear Aug. 18 in Marin Superior Court for arraignment on charges of having marijuana and resisting arrest April 26 on Highway 101.

New Slope Policy To Be Proposed

A new slope policy will be proposed by the Sleepy Hollow Homes Association, members have agreed.

The association will ask that the current one-third acre requirement for lots be increased to two-thirds of an acre to prevent crowded hillsides, Mrs. Donald Anderson, recording secretary, reported yesterday.

The association learned Thursday that its request for more barriers on fire trails leading in and out of Sleepy Hollow had been approved by the county Fire Department. The department will also repair existing barriers, Mrs. Anderson said.

In a change from a longstanding policy, the group agreed to buy a diving board for the community pool and to offer diving lessons. Previous attempts to have a diving board were defeated because residents felt it would be dangerous, Mrs. Anderson said.

Public Hearing For Alto Bowl Proposal

A public hearing on a proposal by Cal Fong Investment to increase density for the Alto Bowl from three dwelling units per acre to 5.4 will be held by the Mill Valley Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the city council chambers at city hall.

The commission also will hold a public hearing on the city's 701 general plan and will set a public hearing for the North Ridge Major Street Plan.

IF YOU LIKE TAHOE YOU'LL LIVE INCLINE

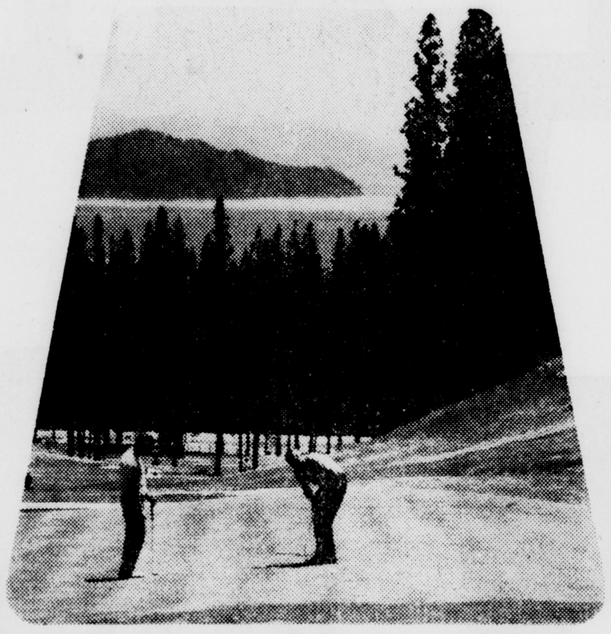
Incline is naturally Tahoe. A thoughtfully-created recreational community that's a perfect part of its lake, forest and mountain setting. Here, on Nevada's unspoiled North Shore, you'll find every facility. Excellent restaurants, convenient shopping center, fine clubs and a truly remarkable golf course. Even a smoothly-manicured family ski area with handsome lodge, three chairlifts and a T-Bar. And Incline stands alone. There can never be another. Its great natural bowl, sweeping bay and sunny southern exposure cannot be duplicated anywhere in the Tahoe Basin.

Happiest of all is that you and your family can be a part of this. Prime vacation homesites are available in Incline's many individual neighborhoods.

Now is the time to look into your family's future at Incline. Call us collect at (415) 327-6220 and we'll arrange an early personal appointment for you and your family to inspect these choice new Incline properties.

The selection is excellent right now, so we look forward to welcoming you soon. Of course, you might like more information first. In that case, the coupon below is your key to quick service—complete facts and figures on Incline, its properties and advantages, its todays and tomorrows. Mail it today.

Deep blue, crystal clear Lake Tahoe is at Incline's beach-lined doorstep—a wonderworld of boating, swimming, sunning and water-skiing. Or just to look at, in the cool quiet, and be glad you chose Incline.

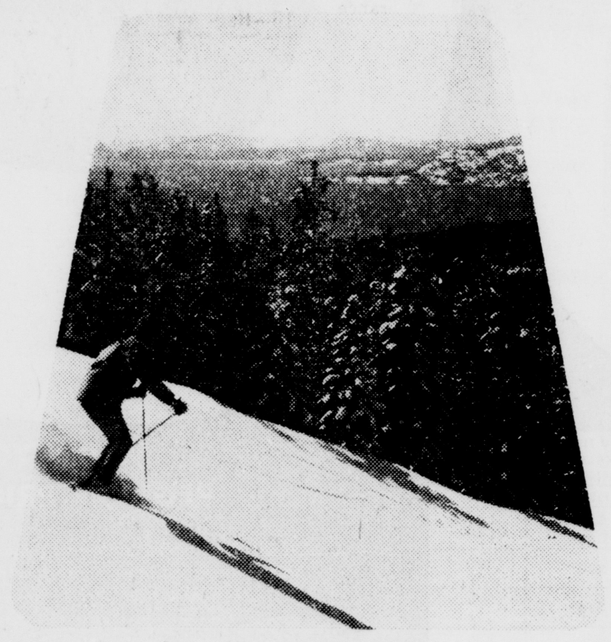


Incline's magnificent, lake-view golf course was designed by nationally-famous Robert Trent Jones. Leading sports writers rank it among the nation's finest. Its spectacular setting makes it difficult to keep your head down!

A lakefront heated pool is one of many features at Burnt Cedar Beach, a facility for the exclusive use of Incline property owners and their guests. Your whole family will enjoy active sunny days here.

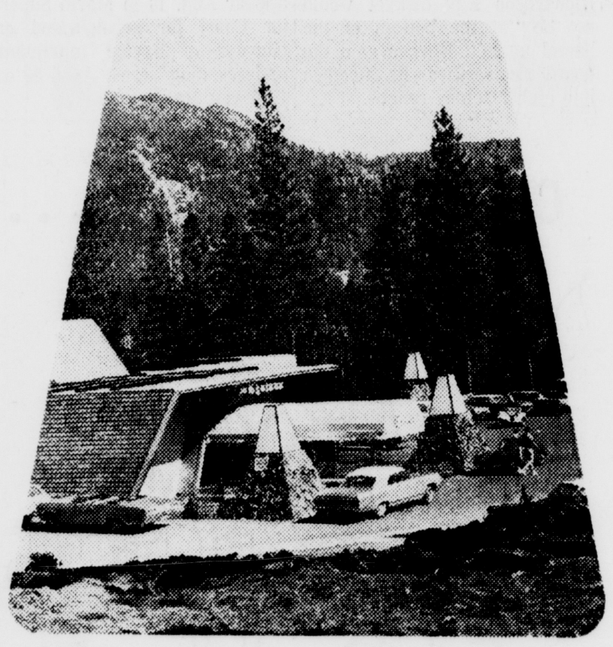
Lake Tahoe is where the action is. And Incline is where it centers. Waterskiing, cruising, scuba diving, lake and stream fishing. Try them all at Incline, Tahoe's finest, most distinctive recreational community.

Wide, gentle and scenic, Incline beaches are clean, inviting and uncrowded, too. Some are safely set aside for swimmers, others open to boats and skiers. And the picnicking is perfect.



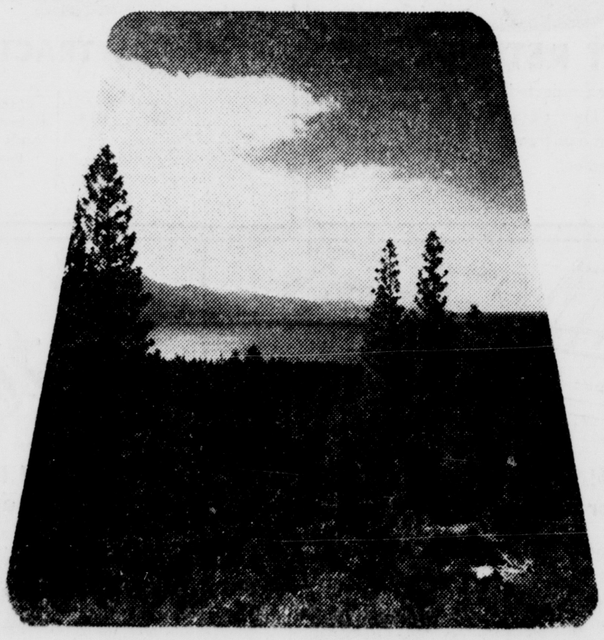
When beach umbrellas are packed away, the boats docked and Incline is under a blanket of snow, the fun goes on at Incline's own family ski area. And it's right at your back door. A well-appointed ski lodge, 120 acres of interesting, well-groomed runs, three chairlifts, a T-Bar and latest snow-making equipment so you can ski as early as Thanksgiving!

The Sierra sun slants down on Incline's sweeping beachline. Inshore, your bird's eye view would show a network of paved roads linking sports and shopping facilities, offices, new elementary and high schools, and wooded, secluded neighborhoods. The World of Incline is complete. One of a kind.



Fine country club facilities are here for a smart combination of sports, dining and gracious socializing. Incline's restaurants and guest accommodations are unsurpassed in the Tahoe area.

The home you may choose to build or buy at Incline will neighbor desirable residences like this. Utilities are in. Police protection is constant, courteous and efficient. And a well-rated fire department keeps insurance rates sensibly low. Complete architectural and contracting services are available right in the Village.



Pick your place. Every Incline homesite is a prime recreational property. Most are wooded, many have spectacular views.
There's a wide variety of homesites available, in a wide range of prices.

INCLINE

A sign of the times. Exciting times at Incline, now under the direction of Boise Cascade Properties, Inc. Here's how to get here...
Take Interstate 80, exit on California Highway 267 (just after Central Truckee exit) to Kings Beach and left to Incline.
Stop at the Sales Information Office on Tahoe Boulevard.

Before driving up, we'd like more information about Incline, the new homesites for sale, the terms, and property owner facilities.

GOOD – BETTER – BEST!
The original owners of this 7 year old hillside home have added many extras that make it a delight to show! Starting with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, they have added a lovely raised hearth fireplace, a large separate workshop and have landscaped this ¼ acre site. If you desire, they'll leave the range, refrigerator and washer & dryer as well. One thing they couldn't improve on — the view! San Anselmo, Ross Valley, the Berkeley Hills to Mt. Diablo. At $31,950, see it!

★MILL VALLEY LODGE★

At least, that's our opinion of this delightfully spacious home on a tree covered, sun bathed lot, just above the tennis and swim club and overlooking the golf course. Tile entry, separate library, private dining room. Large comfortable all-electric kitchen with barbecue, spacious family room, living room we couldn't begin to do justice in describing and you wouldn't believe unless you saw it, an upper story balcony halfway around the living room. The master bedroom a real dream with dressing room and Roman tub in bath. 3 full bedrooms and 2½ baths in all. Would you believe almost a 50 ft. all glass wall with a view through the trees to the golf course. One of a kind, a true pace setter, the home of and with a future, brand new and due for completion in 30 days. The style home for 1970 and cannot be duplicated for the asking price of $75,000.

AND SO THERE WERE 14 FOR DINNER

Champion Ronakers Delta Queen seems content with her litter of 14 golden retrievers. Ronakers, owned by Esther Dodge of 3560 Paradise Drive, Tiburon gave birth to the brood — the size described as "most unusual" — Sunday. Mrs. Dodge, who was expecting nine, supplements the mother's feeding with canned milk formula from baby bottles and said, "Half the time I'm in the whelping bed, too."

Protests On Developing Bay Site Due

Protests over the Marin County Planning Department's plan for Richardson Bay development are expected to continue at a hearing before the county planning commission at 10 a.m. Monday.

Richardson Bay property owners have criticized the plan, whose prominent feature is an open body of water in the center of the region as too restrictive against development.

The hearing opened July 28, but was continued so that all property owners could be heard.

The commission, whose all-day meeting will begin at 9 a.m., will hear developer P. J. Tarrant ask for design approval of a 48-unit apartment development in Santa Venetia and study plans for a Colonel Sanders Kentucky Fried Chicken take-out restaurant at Richardson Bay.

The Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee has recommended denial of the restaurant application because of traffic and parking problems, poor building appearance and lack of landscaping.

Stunt Sends Two Into Hospital

Horseplay in a pickup truck driving on Grand Avenue in San Rafael sent the driver and his passenger to Marin General Hospital Thursday night.

Steve R. Cain, 21, of Verdi Street, and his passenger, Fred C. Chambers, 21, of 124 Park Street, both San Rafael, were treated at the hospital for cuts after they fell from their truck when it struck another vehicle driven by Simon P. Johnson, 63, of Tacoma, Wash.

Cain and Chambers, according to police, said that Chambers grabbed the steering wheel of the truck and swung it sharply into Johnson's car as they drove near the Acacia Street intersection. Chambers said he did it to scare Cain but did not see the oncoming car.

Both vehicles and a cyclone fence on the property of the Dominican College on Grand Avenue were damaged. No cost estimate was given.

Pope Approves New Latin Test For The Psalms

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI has approved a new Latin text for the Book of Psalms—the first step in a planned revision of the official Latin translation of the whole Bible by the Roman Catholic Church, the Vatican announced today. The new psalter was also released for sale today.

Pope Paul set up a special commission of experts in 1964 to correct and update the Vulgate translation of the 150 Psalms that St. Jerome did in 387-388. This had been asked by the Vatican Ecumenical Council in its "constitution on the liturgy."

In 1965, Pope Paul set up a new enlarged commission, with the wider task of revising the Latin Vulgate text of all the books of the Old and the New Testament. He instructed the commission to correct those points where St. Jerome mistranslated the Bible and re-examine others in the light of modern research and discoveries.

The Vatican had released an alternative text of the Psalms in 1945. That translation met with the disapproval of many because it replaced the early Christian Latin used by St. Jerome with classic literary Latin.

The new revised texts will be used in Church rites in Latin and serve as official texts of reference for translation into modern languages.

The announcement said the revised Latin texts of the Gospels were expected to be published before the end of the year.

Woman Hurt As Gas Pedal Sticks

Rosemary Leno, 37, of 20 Carmelita Avenue, Mill Valley, was injured slightly Thursday when the accelerator on her car stuck and the car hit a parked car and a guard rail, then rolled, Sausalito police said yesterday.

She was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises on her left thigh and scratches on both knees.

Sausalito police said the accelerator stuck while she was attempting to park on Easterby toward Bridgeway. The car hit the parked car, crossed Bridgeway and bounced off the guardrail, went back across Bridgeway, then rolled when she tried to stop it by running the car into a hill.

HOT LINE, TOO

Nixon's Aides Will Follow Boss To West

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Richard M. Nixon moves to California today for a month. And a big part of the executive branch will go with him, Moscow hot line included. (See another story, page 1.)

The President, Mrs. Nixon and their elder daughter, Tricia, 23, were to leave on Air Force One this afternoon. They will live in their new $340,000 Spanish-style estate overlooking the Pacific at San Clemente.

It will be a working holiday. Nixon's schedule calls for Cabinet meetings, two sessions of the National Secuurity Council and sessions with the Urban Affairs Council and the Environmental Quality Control Council.

He plans to send to Congress three messages next week, on welfare, manpower training and revenue sharing. It is possible an announcement will be made sometime in August on a possible new troop pullout from Vietnam, and it is considered likely he will fill a Supreme Court vacancy.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell expect to spend so much time in San Clemente that they have leased homes there.

So have key White House staff members—National Security Asst. Henry A. Kissinger; Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods; John Ehrlichman, counsel to the President; H. R. Haldeman, assistant to the President; Dwight L. Chapin, appointments secretary; Kenneth R. Cole Jr. staff secretary; and Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler.

Other cabinet officers and advisers will fly in frequently because Nixon has decreed it will be pretty much "business as usual."

About 900 special telephone circuits—including the Moscow hot line, which permits the President to make immediate contact with Soviet leaders in case of an emergency—have been installed.

A crash program is under way to put up two temporary masonite buildings at the Coast Guard Loran (Long Range Aid to Navigation) adjoining his estate to house the temporary offices.

A six-foot wall has been built around the Nixon estate to assure his privacy and a helicopter landing pad has been built at the Coast Guard station.

The government is footing most of the bill for the extra facilities and the travels. No cost estimate has been revealed. The move is not unprecedented. Most presidents have had their "summer White Houses."

Eight-Year Sentence To Silverthorne

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Don C. Silverthorne, of Tiburon, former president of the short-lived San Francisco National Bank, was sentenced yesterday to eight years in jail for manipulation and mismanagement of bank funds.

U. S. District Judge Albert C. Wollenberg sentenced the 69-year-old former banker to five years in prison on five counts of misapplication of bank funds and three additional years for conspiracy, falsifying bank records and two other misapplication counts.

The portly, silver-haired Silverthorne remained free on $15,000 personal bond pending appeal of his conviction by his attorney, George C. Martinez.

Wollenberg rejected Martinez' request for probation because of Silverthorne's age, poor health, and his wife's poor health, but said federal prison officials would be free to parole him at any time.

Silverthorne was convicted July 12 on nine of 12 charges he faced. Silverthorne's first conviction was overturned by an appellate court on the grounds that pre-trial publicity was prejudicial to the case.

He was convicted of misapplication of funds totaling $182,500.

Proposed Camping Ban Due Discussion

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission will discuss a proposed ordinance banning camping and lodging in public places at its 8 p.m. meeting Monday in the board room of the Mill Valley Library.

The commission also will discuss the Marin County Youth Commission's request for joint funds and review the state's policy on bicycle trails near highways.

Minigarden Of Pot Is Found

A minigarden of marijuana has been confiscated in Marin, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Ronald Milton Nowell, 21, of 20-C Villa Garden Drive, Tamalpais Valley, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of growing marijuana at his residence. He was told to appear Monday to plead to the charge.

Deputies reported they peered through a window of Nowell's apartment Thursday night and saw two marijuana sprouts growing with a potted citrus tree. On being admitted by Nowell, they reportedly also found 50 marijuana seeds in an envelope in another room.

Pleads Innocent

Charles E. Lawder, 43, of Houston, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of committing a lewd act and committing an unnatural sex act with a 7-year-old Novato boy Tuesday in Novato. Preliminary hearing was set for 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

101 To Be Shut For Girder Work

Highway 101 will be closed for 60 to 90 minutes beginning at 2 a.m. Tuesday while highway crews erect the girders for the pedestrian overcrossing for Coleman School.

Northbound traffic will be detoured at the Irwin Street exit to Mission Avenue, then west on Mission to Lincoln Avenue and out Lincoln to pickup the freeway.

Southbound traffic will be detoured off the highway at Lincoln Avenue, follow it to Second Street and then go east back to the highway.

To Superior Court

After a preliminary hearing yesterday in Marin Municipal Court three San Rafael men, George E. Myers, 22, and brothers Jeremiah Jerome St. Martin, 23, and Michael Vincent St. Martin, 18, were held to answer Monday in Marin Superior Court on charges of burgling a San Anselmo antique shop July 21.

Booking Made On Failure To Pay

Frances May Borreson, 52, former secretary in the Fairfax School District, has been booked into Marin County Jail on a bench warrant issued in January when she failed to repay $7,000 she embezzled in her Fairfax post in 1965.

The sheriff's office said they recently learned Mrs. Borreson's address in Shingle Springs, El Dorado County, and the warrant was served there. Mrs. Borreson was ordered to repay the money in December 1965, after she pleaded guilty to the charge.

She was booked Thursday night and is held in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear Monday morning in Marin Superior Court.

Dog Is Hunted In Biting Case

A San Rafael mother is hunting for a dog that bit her 2-year-old daughter yesterday hoping to find it before the girl must begin a painful treatment for rabies.

Mrs. Penny Mumy of 17 Wolfe Avenue, reported a large, black Labrador, whose name may be George, bit her daughter, Melea, at 9:45 a.m. while she was playing near San Rafael High School.

A swimming instructor who pursued the dog told Mrs. Mumy the animal ran into nearby hills and a boy who said the dog frequents the area said he though its name was George.

Pact Pending In Church Purchase

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board hopes to reach agreement by the end of the month to buy the Santa Venetia Presbyterian Church for recreational use, Marguerite F. Clark, district secretary, said yesterday.

Church activities, including Sunday services, would continue, although most of the time the district would use the property for recreational activities, Mrs. Clark said.

The district board discussed purchase of the property at a special meeting Thursday night.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Too Much Needless Worrying Can Create Too Much Tension

VAN DELLEN

Half the battle is won when the individual knows what he is worrying about. This is the way to become master of the situation. The recommendation is: "Think — adjust — make repairs."

Some tensions are good, such as the kinds that come from striving for the best. This is not true of Mr. Big who has no time for thinking or relaxing because he is constantly fuming, fretting, or fussing. This fellow paces up and down while waiting for a train, plane, or bus. He doesn't realize he is harboring a bomb that may go off any moment.

THE HYPOCHONDRIAC is overwhelmed with worries about health problems. He has every symptom in the book and is so certain he has heart trouble or cancer that he is shivering, shaking, and sweating most of the time. If this description fits you, see the family physician and get to the root of the trouble. Chances are it will be found in your personality and not in any organ.

Feelings of inadequacy often go unrecognized. These personality types do more harm than we realize. They become despondent, feel miserable and inefficient when they fail to receive approval from others. They ought to concentrate on their strong points and not the weak ones.

NEVER OVERRATE or underestimate your ability. Competition is stimulating when it does not involve resentment, jealousy, and hate. The emotionally immature individual who becomes overly competitive usually is ruled by the motto: "Anything he can do, I can do better." These men and women are never successful because they work against and not with their associates. Take stock of your motivations and act accordingly if they are responsible for tension.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MENTAL ILLNESS

W. W. writes: Does a mentally ill person know he is that way?

REPLY

Many do but cannot help themselves. They have reached the point of no return and need outside help. On the other hand, those who have lost contact with reality for some time are living in another world and are oblivious to the rest of us.

TUMOR

S. D. writes: Is a brain tumor always visible on X-rays or are other tests needed to confirm the diagnosis?

REPLY

Other tests may be required, some in conjunction with X-rays. These include electroencephalography, angiography, pneumoencephalography, lumbar puncture, and scanning with radioisotopes. These procedures are not so bad as they sound.

DIABETIC NEURITIS

T. B. writes: Does diabetes cause neuritis?

RELY

Yes. The cause is not clear except that a nutritional deficiency usually exists. Relief follows the use of vitamin B, improvements in the diet, and bringing the diabetes under control with medication.

ASAFETIDA BAG

Mrs. G. writes: Generations ago, mothers tied a bag of asafetida around the necks of their children. What was this supposed to do?

REPLY

Its foul smell was said to repel germs.

CITRUS ERUPTION

W. N. writes: Whenever I take citrus fruits or juices, my face breaks out. Is this an allergy?

REPLY

Yes.

SPIDERY VEINS

E. R. M. writes: Please write an article about broken veins — the little purple spidery kinds. What causes them and can the person do anything to dissolve or get rid of them?

REPLY

The arterial spider consists of a tiny red dot from which blood vessels radiate. Why they develop is not clearly understood. Treatment is not needed, but when unsightly they can be removed via electrolysis or electrodesiccation. This, however, is rarely recommended. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this disorder.

Today's Health Hint — Nausea, fatigue and headache are symptoms of heat prostration.

Today is Saturday, Aug. 9, the 221st day of 1969 with 144 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1831 the first train in the United States to be powered by steam made a run between Albany and Schenectady, New York.

In 1902 the Prince of Wales was crowned King Edward VII following the death of his mother, Queen Victoria.

In 1945 more than half of the Japanese city of Nagasaki was destroyed when America dropped its second atomic bomb.

In 1962 Judge James Parsons of Chicago became the first Negro to be named to a U.S. Federal District Court.

A thought for the day: Adm. Chester Nimitz said, "A ship is referred to as a 'she' because it costs so much to keep one in paint and powder."

Retiring Center In Florida Spot

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Nearly one-third of the population of Pinellas County, which includes St. Petersburg, Clearwater and Dunedin, is 65 years of age or older, according to a recent report from the University of Florida.

The Bureau of Economic and Business Research at the university placed the ratio of senior citizens in the county at 32.3 per cent, or 145,200 out of the county's 450,000 population.

The 1960 U.S. Census registered only 24.9 per cent of the county's population then as over 65 years of age.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Use Low Cards Wisely To Reach Dummy For Good Tricks

Anybody can get to the dummy by winning a trick there with an ace or king, but experienced players habitually use a nine or an eight as an entry to the dummy. Only in the big leagues and in bridge columns will you encounter hands in which you must lead a three to dummy's four to make your contract.

DUMMY'S QUEEN

West opens the jack of hearts, and you put up dummy's queen hopefully. But East covers with the king, and you win with the ace. Now you must take nine tricks on the run since otherwise the long heats will defeat you.

Your only chace is to get four diamond tricks, and you should arrange to get to dummy three times to finesse through East. This is simple enough if you make your arrangements early enough.

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts you cash the ace of clubs and continue with the eight of clubs to dummy's queen. Both opponents follow suit, much to your relief, and you know that you will be able to reach dummy as often as necessary.

HOLD YOUR BREATH

You return a diamond from dummy and hold your breath as you try a finesse with the queen. When this succeeds, you lead the nine of clubs to dummy's king. You return another diamond to take a finesse with the jack.

By this time niether defender has any clubs. You can lead the three of clubs from your hand to dummy's four. This does not alter the number of club tricks you can win, but it does put you in dummy so that you can return another diamond.

TAKE FINESSE

You take a finesse with the ten of diamonds and cash the ace of diamonds as your ninth trick. West then takes the ace of spades and the rest of the hearts, but you have already made your contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ J 8 4 3
♥ K 5 2
♦ K 9 7 6
♣ 10 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since you have only seven points in high cards you know that the combined count can be only 25 points at most. It doesn't pay to try for game when you know that the partnership is short of the 26 points usually needed for game.

Defense Links Pot Smoking To Religion

By ALAN JONES

A Marin court hearing yesterday tracked its way through the roots and nature of obscure and popular religions as a Lagunitas man defended his right to smoke marijuana as a religious rite protected by the U.S. Constitution.

Witnesses in municipal court for Jeffery Neil Stallard, 28, included Sausalito philosopher Alan Watts and San Francisco clergyman Robert Cromey, former secretary to Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike.

Stallard is charged with possessing marijuana, a charge he invited when he went to the Marin County Jail April 1 and dumped a marijuana cigarette out of his boot.

But the questioning sometines resembled something out of a heresy trial as Deputy Dist. Atty. Josh Thomas tried to pin down Stallard on the rites and physical aspects of his marijuana religion.

Stallard said smoking marijuana in small meditative groups was the only way he could reach a state of heightened communication and love for fellow humans, which he said is at the root of all major religions.

Thomas objected repeatedly, but with little success, to Stallard's description of his religious background — which includes a semester at Union Theological Seminary in New York. Thomas insisted that prior case law says the only relevant issue is whether the religion is part of a collective practice of religion, but Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. overruled his protests to learn Stallard's own religious beliefs.

Stallard was supported by Watts, who testified after hearing the defendant that he felt Stallard had had a genuine mystical experience with marijuana. Watts said Eastern religions have used marijuana since 1500 B.C., and said he had taken part in the Orient in Buddhist and Brahmin rites using marijuana.

Stallard said he usually smokes marijuana with a small group of friends. The group always sits in a circle, he said, and always passes and shares the weed.

The smoking continues, he said, until everyone involved reaches a state of acceptance and communion with each other. Then they turn to other activities such as singing, playing music or creating art, he said.

Thomas asked if the group was incorporated, whether it has a name, whether there is a written doctrine, a repository for sacred articles used in the rite, and a regular meeting place. The answer was no in each instance.

Taking the marijuana cigarette from an evidence folder, Thomas gave it to Stallard and asked: "Dou you believe that a deity, a God, exists in marijuana?"

There was a puzzled pause. "Can you define God?" Stallard asked.

"Do you believe Jesus Christ, or God, or a deity exist in this as a physical fact?"

"No."

"Is marijuana worshiped as a religious object in any way?" Judge Goldstein asked.

"Not in the sense of an icon, no."

"Is there anything religious in the marijuana plant?" Goldstein asked.

"Certainly, or it would not have been endowed as it was," Stallard said. He said one must believe the universe is an accident, or else accept that everything has a purpose and design.

After Watt's testimony Judge Goldstein ordered the hearing continued to Sept. 10 for more testimony.

$220 In Cash Is Taken In One Burglary

Four residential burglaries were reported yesterday by Marin sheriff's deputies.

Burglars who entered between 1 and 3:40 p.m. Wednesday took $220 in currency from the residence of Donna L. Solin, 2029 Huckleberry Drive, Marinwood.

Another burglar took $160 in currency from the residence of Patricia A. Frederick, 397 Alameda del Prado, Loma Verde, between Monday morning and Wednesday night, deputies reported.

Between noon and 5 p.m. Wednesday, a burglar entered the residence of Randy English, 190 Almonte Boulevard, Almonte, and took a television set, stereo equipment and cash valued at $1,150.

In Muir Beach, deputies said, a burglar entered the home of J. C. Finnegan, 44 Starbuck Drive, on Wednesday and stole three rugs, five blankets, a flashlight, four tool sets, a spyglass and a coffeepot.

Car Stolen From San Anselmo Lot

A 1966 Chevrolet owned by David W. Minto of 34 East Manor Drive, Mill Valley, was stolen Thursday night while driver Ian Lorence Minto was at the Tamalpais Theater in San Anselmo, police reported yesterday.

Minto told polcce he had parked the car in the Sprouse Reitz lot at 80 Center Boulevard about 8:15 p.m. and discovered it missing shortly after 10 p.m.

Loggers On Ridge Ranch Respond To Debris Order

Loggers on the Righetti Ranch at Bolinas Ridge have responded in earnest to an order by the board of supervisors to remove debris from neighboring land and to correct fire hazards, Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said yesterday.

"They really went to work up there," Bloom said.

The Oregon lumber firm of Mathews, Humbert and Walker was instructed by the supervisors Tuesday to clean debris from adjoining Marin Municipal Water District property and to surround accumulated debris on the Righetti Ranch with fire breaks.

Bloom, who had warned the supervisors of the critical fire danger in the area, said the logger had cleaned a 5,000-foot stretch of water district property that was littered with logging refuse and had begun work on building fire breaks.

Bloom, who has been making daily inspections of the logging site — subject of criticism by conservationists — said he plans a final inspection tomorrow. The board had threatened court action Monday if no remedial action was taken by the lumber firm.

Bloom said progress of the work indicates at this time that no legal steps will be necessary. A report is to be made to the supervisors Tuesday.

County Receives Road Tax Share

Marin County received $133,910 as its share of the July apportionment of highway users taxes, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, with the following cities and towns receiving these amounts:

Belvedere, $3,203; Larkspur $8,125; Ross $3,319; Sausalito $7,046; Corte Madera $8,087; Mill Valley, $11,690; San Anselmo, $12,522; Tiburon $6,623; Fairfax $7,514; Novato $26,454 and San Rafael $31,716.

Sonoma County received $179,453 with Petaluma getting $21,601.52; Cotati $2,497, and Rohnert Park $6,697.

Athletes Hit 'Rotten AAU'

LONDON (AP)—The U.S. track and field team last night lifted its threat of a boycott of the Britain-United States meet next week, but team members served notice of their determination to revolutionize the Amateur Athletic Union.

"The Union is rotten right through," said one of the athletes' spokesmen at a meeting in their hotel, "and unless we change things, the Europeans will swamp us at the 1972 Olympics."

The noisy meeting was attended by most of the 125 athletes who are here to compete with Britain next Tuesday and Wednesday as part of a European tour.

Speaker after speaker charged that the Union system was making them second class citizens and liable to make them second class athletes, too.

CALIFORNIA MEETING

The athletes are going to call a meeting next month in California of all interested parties, including former American Olympic champions and former officials, to set out a plan of action.

The athletes' committee, which includes star sprinter Willye White, Californian hammer thrower George Frenn and 5,000-meter runner Gerry Lindgren, were drafting a letter to President Nixon.

The present trouble blew up at Augsburg, Germany, where the athletes complained about supposedly poor accommodations. But Frenn said that this dispute "was just the tip of thei ceberg."

"The trouble is that once we get back to the States, we split up and can't organize anything. Here we are all together and united," he said.

"The whole system is bad," said Olympic star John Carlos.

DEAD WOOD

"There is too much dead wood in the Union and not enough money and thought going in the right directions.

"But we are going to alter all that."

Asked about allegations that the dispute was only the work of a few hotheads, Frenn said: "When we have finished drafting the letter to the President, everyone will be invited to sign and I guarantee they all will. Everyone is fed up."

Jesse Pardue, the president of the AAU, declined to comment on the views expressed at the meeting.

"All I want to say is that I was confident that sense would prevail and that the track meet against Britain would take place," Pardue said.

"I'm sure it will be a very fine meeting."

Katzenjammer Kids Live

By GARY TISCHLER

For a long time now, I have been wondering what happened to Tom Sawyer.

Where did the Beaver go? Where were the Katzenjammer Kids? What happened to the Dentyne teeth, the blue-jeaned boys who chased Tony the Tiger, the boys and girls in tennis shoes who used to jam a certain corner of the Five and Ten, wait in line at the mid-week matinee, grovel like groundhogs in the sandlots, write misspelled words on the sidewalk in chalk? Where were the heads of bright red and blond hair, the acres of freckles, the little legs, black and white, always running in a burst of noise?

I found some of them yesterday, spilling over the uncut grass of San Rafael High School's football field, all the young, young eager beavers, some 250 of them, running, waiting, jumping and throwing at the San Rafael Recreation Department's annual Junior Olympics for the little kids, ages 6 through 12.

People who like their Olympics in impressive uniform style, with trumpets blaring and a thousand athletic bodies marching and flexing in awesome rows, would have turned their noses up at this little affair. It was about as uniform as a mud-baking contest, as solidified as jello. But the veteran of a makeshift touch football game in somebody's back yard where you can smell the garbage burning would have recognized himself instantly and felt right at home once again.

Most of the children not competing on either the track, the long jump pit or a ready-made

MILWAUKEE OPEN

Also-Rans Grab Golf Headlines

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Ed Moehling, who once left the tour "with a credit card and a nickel," used the wind and a wedge to climb into a share of the top spot in the $100,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Moehling, a 28-year-old who dropped off the tour when he ran out of money in 1963, fired a three-under-par 69 yesterday and moved into a tie for the 36-hole lead with Fred Marti, a long-time also-ran.

Each had a 141, three under par for 36 holes on the 7,075-yard, North Shore Country Club course, a layout made doubly tough by the high, gusty winds that have plagued the event for two days.

Marti, a tall, rangy blond, had a second round 70 that he described as "kind of uneventful."

One stroke back in this event that was passed up by most of the great names of the game were four players tied at 142. They were rookie pro John Miller, who slipped to a 74, Steve Opperman and South African Allan Henning, each 73, and Peter Townsend of England, the first round leader who went to a 75.

SIX GROUPED

South African Gary Player had a 70 and headed a group of six at 143. The others were Phil Rodgers and Rocky Thompson, each 71; Jerry Abbott, 72, and Jim Wiechers and Bob Lunn, each 73.

Arnold Palmer rallied with a 71 for 147, but was well back. Defending champion Dave Stockton shot a 73 for 150 and failed to make the cut for the final two rounds. It took a score of 149 to make it.

Moehling, who plays out of Golf, Ill., has made only $166.67 on the tour this year, and shot a 74 in Monday's qualifying round to make it into this one.

"There's a mental adjustment you have to make when you're qualifying," he said. "You have to practice it like you practice your shots. You have to talk to yourself a lot."

Marti, 28 and still lacking a victory after six years on the tour, made more than $30,000 last year, and has pulled down $17,591 this season.

He bogeyed the first hole, when he was in the water, but rallied with birdie putts of 10 and 12 feet, and chipped to within 2½ feet for another.

Giants Buy Vet Hurler

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Veteran reliever Don McMahon was purchased by the San Francisco Giants from the Detroit Tigers last night for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The 40-year-old McMahon had a 3-5 record and 3.89 earned run average with the world champion Tigers in 34 relief appearances.

A veteran of the Milwaukee Braves' pennant-winning teams of the 1950s, the well-traveled McMahon has played also with Boston, Cleveland and Chicago in the American League and for Houston in the National League, compiling a 61-53 lifetime record.

To make room for McMahon, the Giants shipped rookie right-hander Rich Robertson to Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League, where he won 18 games last year. Robertson was 1-2 with a 6.00 ERA for San Francisco.

Is Drysdale All Through?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 14 year pitching career of Dodger ace Don Drysdale may be over because of a recurring injury that's making it too painful for him to pitch.

The decision was apparently reached last night after a meeting between Drysdale and Dodger executive vice president Peter O'Malley.

"I don't want to go on the disabled list again," Drysdale said. "I've had many great thrills and enjoyable years and I can't see any sense in fighting the inevitable."

Softball Scores

Jerry Crews and John Coleman knocked successive home runs to lead Hiller's Men's Store to a 19-7 victory over the Cobras last night in the San Rafael Softball League's C-II Division at Albert Field.

In the evening's other game the Eagles downed the Post Office, 8-5.

Top Auto Racers At Sears

Tomorrow's 150-mile "Sta-Power" late model stock car race at Sonoma County's Sears Point Raceway has taken a mysterious turn. The latest entry to challenge a talented field of drivers is something of a gnost.

He's identified only as "The Spirit Of Sonoma," as Sears Point officials have dubbed him.

The driver is known to hold a full international license and has competed in and won races during a lengthy career. The "Spirit" will be guiding a 1967 Ford.

He probably won't frighten the list of favorites, who include Jack McCoy of Modesto, Ray Elder of Caruthers, Johnny Steele and Jim Cook of Norwalk, Marty Kimerk of Tucson, Ariz., and Scotty Cain of Fresno.

Tickets for tomorrow's race are $5. Children under 12 are admitted free when with an adult.

A dragster exhibition is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. with the 150-mile main event to follow. The morning schedule will be devoted to qualifying from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

Redskins Owner Marshall Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Preston Marshall, owner and president emeritus of the Washington Redskins of the National Football League, died today in his sleep at his home in Georgetown. He was 72.

Marshall stepped down as executive head of the Redskins after he became seriously ill in 1962. He was succeeded by Edward Bennett Williams, noted trial lawyer.

Rookie Giant-Killer Gives Cards Big Lift In Stretch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If the St. Louis Cardinals stage a miraculous comeback and recapture the National League pennant, much of the credit should go to 28-year-old rookie right-hander Chuck Taylor.

Unknown to Giants' fans until St. Louis opened a three-game series at Candlestick Park last night, Taylor hurled a six-hitter and defeated San Francisco, 4-3, giving the torrid Cardinals their 12th win in 15 games since the All-Star break.

The sudden surge has pulled the Cardinals to within nine games of eastern division leader Chicago. The Giants embroiled in a tight western division race, dropped 1½ games behind Cincinnati.

Taylor, who was 18-7 at Tulsa (PCL) last season and 5-1 with the same club before being promoted to the majors this season, boosted his record to 5-1 and registered his third complete game in four starts.

BIG LIFT

"Chuck hurt his arm and knee as a youngster," said Cardinals' manager Red Schoendienst. "That's why it took him so long to reach the majors. But he's sure given us a big lift this season.

"The thing I like is that he can relieve, too. His biggest asset is his control. I plan to use him in the starting rotation the rest of the way."

Giants' manager Clyde King, who sent southpaw Mike McCormick against the Cardinals' Nelson Briles in today's game, also was impressed with Taylor in his first work against San Francisco.

"He (Taylor) was throwing much harder tonight than when I saw him at Tulsa," said King, who managed Phoenix last year. "He kept the ball down real good against us."

PERRY LOSER

Loser Gaylord Perry, 14-3, was staked to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Don Mason, Willie McCovey and Ken Henderson. But the Cardinals scored three runs in the second.

Joe Torre's double started the rally, which included a run-scoring single by Tim McCarver, a passed ball and a two-run single by Dal Maxvill.

McCovey's walk, Henderson's single and Tito Fuentes' grounder added a run in the fourth. The Cardinals scored the winning run in the eighth. When Vada Pinson was hit by a pitch, Torre singled and McCarver doubled.

Taylor had retired 16 batters in a row before McCovey crashed a 400-foot homer with one out in the ninth, boosting his N. L. leading total to 35.

Willie Mays, who had a seven-game batting string snapped, left the game in the sixth inning after his injured knee stiffened. Fuentes also injured his right foot on a fielding play.

NEWEST NINER — First draft choice Ted Kwalick, who ended a holdout Thursday, donned his San Francisco 49er jersey for the first time yesterday in Seattle where the team will meet Cleveland in their opening exhibition game tomorrow. The rookie tight end will not see action, however, as he hasn't had time to digest the team's complicated offensive system. (AP wirephoto)

Bills Shock Redskins; Rams Win

COMBINED AP & UPI

John Rauch is the first to admit it wasn't the Super Bowl but his initial victory over a Vince Lombardi-coached team has to rank as the super surprise of the young professional football season.

Rauch, who like Lombardi, accepted the challenge of rebuilding a perennial loser, got even with his 1968 Super Bowl coaching rival last night when the brash Buffalo Bills stopped the Washington Redskins 21 - 17 in an exhibition game played at Buffalo.

The former Oakland Raider coach, gracious in victory, said he didn't consider it a "personal" triumph over the ex-Green Bay genius because "after all it wasn't the Super Bowl."

But victory-hungry Buffalo fans will take a win anytime and success over a team coached by one of the game's most highly respected mentors may be just the tonic the Bills need to regain respectability.

In the only other exhibition activity last night the Los Angeles Rams opened their tuneup campaign by edging the Dallas Cowboys before 87,381 fans at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Buffalo's triumph evened the Bills' exhibition record at 1-1 and gave the American Football League its initial success of the campaign at the expense of an NFL club. Last week the NFL had a 2-0 log against AFL teams.

Rauch, a loser to Lombardi in pro football's second Super Bowl championship game, said he was pleased with the fact "our kids didn't give up when they were behind."

Quarterback Tom Flores flipped a five-yard touchdown pass to Haven Moses with five minutes left in the game to provide the Bills with the winning margin and their initial triumph under Rauch.

Washington had taken a 17-14 lead with 39 seconds gone in the final period on a 19-yard pass from Sonny Jurgensen to Jerry Smith.

The Bills, who could muster only 23 yards rushing in their season debut a week ago against Houston, showed an improved running game with little Max Anderson the top ball carrier with 59 yards in 10 carries. The former Arizona State fullback also caught two passes for 36 yards.

Lombardi, who watched his Redskins even their record at 1-1, said, "Our defense played very well but the offense didn't do anything. Buffalo was the more aggressive ball club," he said.

The largest crowd in 10 years, 87,381, watched the Rams beat the Cowboys in the annual Los Angeles Times Charity game.

An 85-yard touchdown pass play from Roman Gabriel to Wendell Tucker and a blocked punt recovery for another TD gave the Rams a 24-3 lead in the third period, a sufficient cushion to offstave the Cowboys' two touchdowns in the last period.

Craig Morton, taking over at quarterback for the retiring Don Meredith, threw two 68-yard touchdown passes for the late Dallas scores. One was to Bob Hayes, the other to Lance Rentzel.

Raiders Battle 'Old' Colts; 49ers Hurting For Opener

Familiar Faces In Oakland Game Tonight

OAKLAND (AP) — Look along the Baltimore Colts' bench and you see very few young or unfamiliar faces.

That's what worries first-year Oakland Raider Coach John Madden as he thinks about tonight's exhibition game against the defending National Football League champions.

Starting at quarterback, where No. 1 Earl Morrall and No. 2 Johnny Unitas are beginning their 14th season, the Colts have two or more veterans at every position.

"That's what makes playing a team like the Colts so difficult," Madden said. "And it's especially tough in a preseason game.

"I realize they want to get a look at their reserve people, just like we do. But when you have been as good as they have for so long your reserves are mostly veterans — like Unitas."

13TH SEASON

Ten of the Colts have played at least nine years. Linebacker Don Shinnick is entering his 13th year, while wide receiver Jimmy Orr, defensive back Lenny Lyles and kicker Lou Michaels are embarking on their 12th.

However, the Colts have some impressive young players.

Second-year man Terry Cole, who gained 418 yards last season, will start in place of the injured fullback, Jerry Hill.

Ray Perkins, a former Alabama star in his third season, hopes this will be the year he takes over Orr's job.

Jeff Beaver, a 15th round draft choice in 1968 from North Carolina, will back up Morrall and Unitas.

TOP DRAFTEES

Three top draft choices this year should see action against the Raiders, says Coach Don Shula. They are flanker Eddie Hinton from Oklahoma, linebacker Ted Hendricks from Miami of Florida, and defensive back Tom Maxwell from Texas A&M.

The Colts, who join the American Football League in 1970, defeated San Diego 26-6 last week and play four out of their remaining five exhibition games against AFL foes.

Oakland, on the other hand, is expected to play more youngsters, including scrambling second-year man Eldridge Dickey, who appears to have moved ahead of 41-year-old George Blanda as the Raiders' No. 2 quarterback.

Dickey performed well running and passing for the AFL Western Division champs in a 33-0 victory over the Dallas Cowboy rookies and a 23-17 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs.

Oakland is considered a veteran team in the AFL but 14 of its 22 starters have four years or less of experience.

Few Receivers For S.F. Game In Seattle

SEATTLE (UPI)—San Francisco's trio of quarterbacks may run into problems tomorrow trying to get a passing game going against the Cleveland Browns in their 1969 exhibition opener.

Kickoff is 3 p.m. on the Astroturf-covered field at the University of Washington. The game will be televised nationally by CBS (Channel 5.)

John Brodie, George Mira and Steve Spurrier of the 49ers are sound and ready to throw against a Cleveland secondary which led the NFL in interceptions last year with 32. However, the 49ers find themselves at bit short of receivers.

Clifton McNeil, who came to San Francisco from the Browns in a trade before the start of the 1968 season, won't be playing against his old mates. McNeil, best pass snatcher in the league last season, is still a holdout.

WITCHER HOBBLED

Split end Dick Witcher is hobbled by an ankle sprain and may only see limited action. San Francisco's top draft choices, Ted Kwalick and Gene Washington, both receivers, hardly have had time to acquaint themselves with the team's complicated play book. Washington has been working out for one week while Kwalick signed with the club only this past Thursday.

That leaves only flashy free agent Bill Wondolowski, Bob Windsor and Leo Johnson for receivers. So the 49er quarterbacks may start throwing more to their running backs or concentrate on a ground attack.

In addition to Witcher, defensive tackle Kevin Hardy and guard Don Parker will sit out the game with knee troubles.

Cleveland also has its problems at quarterback. Frank Ryan has a pulled hamstring muscle, Bill Nelson a chronic bad knee and Jerry Rhome is suffering from a sore throwing arm.

ORANGE CRATE DERBY

Boys and girls 10 through 15 years of age are invited to participate in an "Orange Crate Derby Race" to be held September 13, 1969, on San Marino Drive in the Peacock Gap area of San Rafael. Contestants will be divided into two (2) categories: Jr. Division, 10 to 12 years and Sr. Division, 13 to 15 years.

Each contestant is to build his own car (parents may help). Cars must have four (4) wheels, dependable brakes, adequate steering system (rope steering may NOT be hand held), and SAFETY is a MUST. The car must not be more than Seven (7) feet long and Four (4) feet wide. All wheels must be on the outside of the body, with at least Six (6) inches clearance. Cars may not be pushed or powered.

A $25 Savings Bond will be awarded to the first place winner plus an opportunity to participate in the State Orange Crate Derby Race.

Applications may be obtained from Mr. James L. Baker, 417 First St., Apt. #4, San Rafael, or phone 456-1472, and should be returned no later than August 15.

Fun for the whole Family

Southpaws Still Plague Athletics

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite losing to another lefthander, the Oakland Athletics have narrowed the gap to 1 1-2 games between themselves and leader Minnesota in the American League West.

This is about the closest the A's have gotten to Minnesota since early in July.

Southpaw Al Downing blanked Oakland 5-0 on a four-hitter in the nightcap of a doubleheader yesterday after the A's took the first game 5-3 on catcher Larry Haney's run-scoring double in the 10th inning. It was only the fourth time this season Oakland has been zeroed.

Chuck Dobson (13-7) and the Athletics tried to stop Yankee ace Mel Stottlemyre from notching his 16th victory this afternoon.

BANDO HITS

Downing, now 3-3, struck out five and walked two in pitching his first complete game of the season and his first shutout since Sept. 25, 1967. He retired the first 12 men he faced before Sal Bando singled to lead off the fifth, and Downing allowed only one runner as far as third base.

On Tuesday another lefthander, Sam McDowell of Cleveland, beat the Athletics. This means that Oakland will probably be seeing more portsiders in the future.

Catcher Thurman Munson made his major league debut for the Yankees in the second game and drove in two runs with two hits.

HUNTER LOSES

New York scored three runs in the seventh off starter and loser Jim Hunter (9-10) and reliever Jim Roland. They added their final two runs in the eighth off Rene Lachemann when Munson singled home Bobby Murcer and Jimmie Hall.

With the score tied 2-2, Rick Monday and Dick Green singled in the 10th off former teammate Jack Aker. Haney doubled home Monday for the go-ahead run and the other two runs scored on Paul Lindblad's pinchhit sacrifice fly and a single by Bert Campaneris.

In the bottom of the 10th, the Yankees scored once on a solo home run by Frank Fernandez off Lindblad, the third Oakland hurler. Lindblad picked up his seventh win in relief, three in the past week, against two losses.

New York appeared to have won the game earlier when Joe Pepitone slammed his 23rd homer in the seventh inning off starter Vida Blue for a 2-1 lead, but the A's tied the score in the ninth on a double by Ted Kubiak and two infield outs.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

San Rafael, San Jose Teams Clash

The rampaging San Rafael Braves, tied for the top spot in the San Jose Travel League, take on the San Jose Sandlotters in a doubleheader at Albert Field, San Rafael, tomorrow at 1 p.m.

The Braves have won five in a row in piling up a 6-2 won-lost league record. The Sandlotters, true to their name, have not been so fortunate, owning a 2-6 mark. The Braves are tied for the lead with Fontinetti Sporting Goods of San Jose.

Amazing Russ Dillon will pitch one of the games for Joe Anselmo's bunch. The second game will be in the hands of former Marin Catholic ace Ben Burch.

LIKE GANGBUSTERS

Dillon has moved into the semi-pro ranks like gangbusters. The recently graduated Novato High School southpaw has pitched 14 innings, given up no runs, struck out 29 batters, allowed just three hits and has already hurled a no-hitter and two shutouts.

Catcher Rocky Shone leads the San Rafael muscle department with 35 hits in 75 at bats for a whopping .467 average.

Junior Olympics: Acres Of Action

softball throw area behind the opposite field bleachers were huddled in the main bleachers, under very loose control by a flock of youthful, tanned San Rafael Recreation Department summer workers who looked like Peace Corps Volunteers in their blue tops.

Bruce D'Ambra, a veteran of San Rafael High football, basketball and baseball seasons, was the announcer for the afternoon, churning out the names of little would-be-heroes and winners.

EAGER RABBITS

They came scurrying out of the bleachers to report to the starters like eager rabbits, the little girls somewhat shy and already breathless, pigtails flying, eyes bright. And they raced down the homestretch smiling, something you will never see Jim Ryun or John Carlos do again, if they ever did it.

They came from parks, playgrounds and schools, already imitating high school as they cheered their respective teams. On the backs of sweaters and T-shirts, they had scratched in team names, sloppily in a proud sort of way. Bret Harte, Bahia Vista, Laurel Dell, San Pedro, Oak View, Albert, Hartzell, Gerstle, Victor Jones, Santa Margarita, Sun Valley, Nova Albion — they were all there, always running past the bleachers, past the bright hula hoops put together to make an Olympic emblem.

TRY AGAIN

They all think they will win, or try again. No all of them do, and disappointment sometimes runs deep, even at this age, although it doesn't last long. Not when you have a grandfather in suspenders to console a six-year-old little girl who climbs into his lap. Not when there is another race to run.

In the broad jump pit, a little fellow who has already won the event, begs for another jump, just for the heck of it. There is some disorganized squabbling about the number of jumps he's had. He flies through the air, maybe all of 10 feet.

"You've already won," the supervisor tells him. He smiles and walks away, shoulders squared off.

In the first 440-yard race, a grueling stretch run in the sun around the field, Fred Ireland of Nova Albion is leading all the way in cut-off blue jeans and black tennis shoes, hair flying, breathing hard, coming into the stretch. Tony Lorenzo, a taller boy, running smoothly, passes him near the finish as Fred makes one last lunge, totters and slides past the tape, stomach and knees first, to end up on his back, in second place.

It's like the last grand Olympian effort. A supervisor walks him around the grass, now cut, as much to console him as to let him catch his lost breath.

GAMELY, WEAKLY

In the softball throw area, the six to eight-year-old girls are at it. It is something new for them, an art that most girls will never master. Some throw underhanded, most gamely, but weakly.

Lynn Rothman gets one off 11 feet, but the short, dark-haired girl isn't a bit disappointed.

"I didn't practice too much," she says brightly. "Anyway, I got second in the race."

You sit and watch all this, listen to the beautiful noise, all the white teeth in place, the young speed and enthusiasm. You think you couldn't possibly have been that young as you sweat after walking across the field.

You feel a little stuffy and the tie hurts. You feel a little old.

Commissioners Issue Joint Statements

NEW YORK (AP) — The established National Basketball Association has taken official cognizance of its young rival, the American Basketball Association.

This was the interpretation given today to the joint announcement of Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the 24-year-old NBA, and James Gardner, president of the 2-year-old ABA, that discussions have been held that "ultimately might lead to a merger."

The announcement yesterday said that Kennedy and Gardner "and their attorneys have begun exploring the possibility of cooperative arrangements between the two basketball leagues. The form of such arrangements has not been agreed upon, but it is hoped that they will be shaped to conform to the needs of the various cities in the leagues as well as to any applicable law."

STAGE SET

The stage thus is set for a possible repetition of what happened in pro football when the old NFL and its young rival, the AFL, merged.

"As far as I'm concerned, there'll be nothing further done at this time," Kennedy said. "We talked about several possibilities that ultimately might lead to a merger."

Kennedy said the discussions, which confirmed a report last week by Paul Caruso, attorney for the Los Angeles ABA club, had been held with three club owners of the NBA and three owners from the ABA.

OWNERS IDENTIFIED

He identified them as Ned Irish of the New York Knicks, Sam Schulman of Seattle and Richard Block of Phoenix for the NBA, and Gardner, Ray Boe of the New York Nets and Joseph Gear of Dallas for the ABA. Gardner also heads the Carolina ABA Cougars.

The NBA has teams in New York, Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Phoenix, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle.

Teams in the ABA represent New York, Kentucky, Indiana, New Orleans, Dallas, Los Angeles, Denver, Carolina, Pittsburgh, Miami and Oakland.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

To maintain good approach balance, extend the left arm away from the body (see illustration). This should become automatic. It helps balance the bowler against the weight of the ball on the right side. Those who don't extend the left arm will probably sag to the right.

Piro, Boro Pace Schafer Quintet To Summer Title

Jerry Piro scored 26 points and John Boro contributed 22 to lead Schafer's to an 86-73 victory over the Riordan Crusaders of San Francisco last night in the playoff for the championship of the Drake High School Summer Basketball League's high school division.

Schafer's, which also won the title in 1968, is composed of Redwood High School players Kevin Restani scored 37 points for Riordan.

In the playoff for third place, Pier 15 (Wilson High, S.F.) downed the Lowell Cardinals, 49-44. Ron Dale scored 17 for Wilson and Gary Dunn 12 for Lowell.

Miss Walsh Wins Two In Nationals

Seventeen-year-old Sharon Walsh of San Rafael chopped down her first two opponents in the National Girls Tennis Tournament at Philadelphia yesterday.

Sharon, seeded sixth, downed Jane Kincaid of Washington, D.C., 8-6, 6-2 and Ann Lebedeff 6-3, 6-2.

She was scheduled to play Tam Tiegarten today. The tournament is for girls aged 18 years and younger.

MARIN BOWLING NOTES

10 Strikes For 275 Game

It didn't look like it at the time, but Bill Henderson, the head machanic at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, came pretty close to a 300 game this week.

He came in with a 275 game, best game of the week anywhere, but there was none of that intense pressure and whispering that usually surrounds a near-miss.

Henderson spared in the sixth frame, brushing off any thoughts of a perfect game early. He also left a pin in the final frame to finish with 10 strikes.

He finished with a fine 866 four-game set, high for the week at Country Club Bowl.

Leo Schwab had an 815 set, topped by a 223 game. Also making the 800 set at Country Club were Mike Weddell of the 555 Trios with an 808, topped by a 234, and Lee Stetson with an 806 topped by a 218.

THIS AND THAT — Top three-game series at Country Club was turned in by Ron Baccei, who had a 614 in the adult juniors.

Paul Panholzer was tops at Nave Lanes near Ignacio with an 809 while Dennis Chase had the best single game of 234. John Doherty had a 620-series with a 237 game. Chuch Farris checked in with a 605 while George Pfautch had a 604.

Top gal at Nave Lanes was Jackie Newsome with a 551, while Beth Marston had a 541.

At Greenbrae Lanes, Charles Hinkel, a steady 177 average bowler, soared to a whopping 268 in the Monday's Men's Trios. Roy Haugen had a 251 game in the Woodcutters League.

Gayle Chu, who not too long ago bowled her first 600 series, continued to do a good, steady job of things in the Adult Juniors League at Country Club Bowl. Her latest efforts resulted in a 546 and a 541 series, for first and third-best ladies efforts this week. Rea Hoffman had a 536 in the Sleepers while runnerup honors went to Josi Kwan with a 545.

PERRY LITCHFIELD topped the juniors, breaking up what looked like a 600 series, when he bowled a 206-206-171—583 three-game set. Cathy Naghdi, holder of a 128 average, came in with a 469 series topped by a 186 game.

Also at Country Club, Audrey Morris, who holds a 143 average, hit it big with a four-game 720 series, topped by a 217 game. So did Marion Ray, normally a 164 bowler, who had an 805 series for four games, with games of 210, and 225.

Troppmann Joins Marines; Suyderhoud Gains Finals

SPORTS SHORTS

COMBINED AP & UPI

Jim Troppmann, son of Redwood High School football coach and athletic director Bob Troppmann, has left his job as freshman football coach at Stanford University.

The former All-Northern California quarterback at Redwood High School has joined the Marine Corps. Replacing him will be Bill Maultrie, the only Negro member of the Stanford football coaching staff, who was elevated from a defensive backfield coaching spot.

WATER SKIING

COPENHAGEN — Mike Suyderhoud, 19, of San Anselmo, defending world's champion, has qualified for tomorrow's trick skiing finals in the 11th World Water Eki Championships on Lake Bagsvaerd, Bruce Cockburn of Australia leads the men's combined list after the slalom and trick skiing qualifying events.

TENNIS

SAN FRANCISCO — Prize money — more than $20,000 worth — will be offered for the first time in the Pacific Coast International Tennis Championships, officials of the sponsoring Northern California Tennis Association said yesterday.

Already lined up for the tournament Sept. 27-Oct. 5 at the Berkeley Tennis Club are U. S. Davis Cup team members Arthur Ashe, Stan Smith and Charles Pasarell, plus former U. S. touring pro Barry MacKay and Australia's No. 1 player, Bill Bowrey.

New rules of the International Lawn Tennis Federation allow the prize money to be offered this year.

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. — Clark Graebner, New York, beat Patricio Cornejo, Chile, 6-3, 6-2 and Bill Bowrey, Australia, defeated Gene Scott, New York, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3 to reach the semifinals in the Meadow Club $12,000 Invitation Grass Court Tourney.

AUTO RACING

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Parnelli Jones, Ed Leslie and Mark Donohue all bettered the Trans-Am sedan lap record during yesterday's qualifying session in preparation for tomorrow's race to be held on the 2.3-mile Watkins Glen grand prix course.

Current point standings after seven races of a 12-race series show Chevrolet leading with 49 points. Ford has 46, Pontiac 21 and American Motors 11. Jones will be doing his bit for Ford in a 302 Mustang, while Donohue and Leslie will be driving Penske Camaros.

GOLF

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio — Sharon Miller, Marlene Hagge, Murle Lindstrom Breer and Sandra Spuzich tied at 71 for the first round lead in the $20,000 LPGA Springfield Open.

VANCOUVER, B.C. — Bob Cox, Richmond, B.C., posted a second-round 68 to take the 36-hole lead at 134 in the Canadian PGA Championship.

Redwood Highway Gains As Route For Vacationers

IF YOU HAVEN'T driven up the Redwood Highway at least as far as Eureka in the past couple of years, you would be amazed at the changes.

The most disagreeable sections of the old route — those lined with disintegrating roadside stands and those with the sharpest, most numerous curves, narrowest pavement and steepest grades — are now bypassed by new sections of four-lane freeway.

No longer do you get stuck behind a smelly diesel logging truck for endless miles. The chance to pass is never more than a few minutes away.

THE REDWOOD EMPIRE Association reports that of the 270 highway miles from the Golden Gate to Eureka, 160 are now expanded to four lanes. Twelve miles of new freeway are under construction — again bypassing one of the toughest-to-drive sections of the old route. That still leaves 98 miles of two-lane road. Most of this, the association predicts, will be four lanes by 1980. An 18-mile section which is relatively straight and level, north and south of Laytonville, may still be two lanes in 1980.

For reasons difficult to find out, much less understand, the California Highway Commission has long assigned a low priority to Redwood Highway construction.

During most of the half century since the idea of a Redwood Highway was conceived, the highway commission has included a representative from the Redwood Empire area. When Pat Brown was governor, he broke that tradition, replacing the Redwood Empire incumbent with an outsider.

Governor Reagan has thus far followed Brown's example.

Chances for getting the highway commission to advance priorities for the Redwood Highway therefore seem slim.

Senator Collier, Congressman Clausen and others have mentioned the advisability and advantages of getting the Redwood Highway included in the system of interstate routes, thereby qualifying it for more federal construction funds. So far, that development has appeared remote.

In 1980, we may still be driving over two-lane sections of the Redwood Highway while the main arterials in the rest of California are being converted from four or six to eight or 10 lanes.

As Carney Campion, general manager of Redwood Empire Association, has put it: "We'll take all the help we can get in stepping up time tables."

IN SOME INSTANCES, the new four-lane routes bypass the magnificent drives through superlative old giant redwood trees.

Those grand old sections are preserved as the "Avenue of the Giants." Getting off the freeway and meandering through the big trees is better than ever. Commercial traffic, including logging trucks, keep to the freeways, as do those in a hurry to get from one place to another. As a result, the pace along the Avenue of the Giants is unhurried and traffic is relatively light.

You can safely slow down a bit to look more closely at something beside the road without being honked at by an impatient truck driver.

It will be a great day when the remaining 100 miles from Eureka to the Oregon border is similarly bypassed by freeway. Those in a hurry can move along unimpeded on the freeway while those who wish to drive leisurely among the groves of redwood giants will be able to do so in safety and comfort.

SHORTLINE RAILROADS ALONG the way are big visitor attractions.

The "skunk" trains between Willits and Fort Bragg are known nationwide, deservedly so.

The Mad River railroad out of Arcata initiated sightseeing runs this year. They are widely advertised and the number of passengers grows with each trip.

The longest available passenger train ride in the Redwood Empire — from Willits to Eureka aboard Northwestern Pacific — continues to go largely unpublicized.

Despite orders from the California Public Utilities Commission to keep its Willits-Eureka passenger service operating and PUC orders to advertise and promote it, NWP does little or nothing to attract passengers.

The ride is beautiful, following one branch of the Eel River some distance from the other branch of the Eel which Redwood Highway parallels. The NWP self-propelled diesel car is air conditioned.

A favorite among those who have "discovered" this little-publicized railroad is to drive to Willits, take the train as far as Scotia, stay overnight at the Scotia Inn, and return to Willits the next day via air-conditioned Greyhound bus.

The Scotia Inn was built before 1900 but its age shows only in its atmosphere. It is well maintained and must be among the cleanest hostelries in the world. Its dining room is no place for weight-watchers; the food is far too tasty and plentiful.

Until this pleasant circuit is discovered by too many people, it will continue to be a favorite among those who know about it and have experienced it.

A Fitting Memorial

A fitting memorial to Caroline S. Livermore has been devised in the wall which was dedicated this week at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

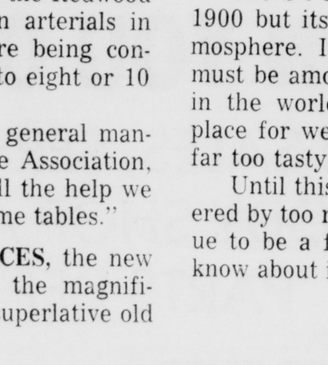
The serpentine wall of brick adds to the distinction of the center which was so much the project of Mrs. Livermore, Marin's "grand dame of conservation." The ornamental gates at the entrance add to that distinction and symbolize that the center is open for the enjoyment of Marinites, while the wall secludes it from the traffic of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The center itself is largely a memorial to the unflagging dedication of Mrs. Livermore. The wall named for her is an appropriate completion of that memorial.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A PAIR OF OCTOGENARIANS were bemoaning the decline of the Broadway theater. "I remember," cackled one, "when no man or woman who counted would dream of going to an evening performance unless they were dressed for the occasion." "I remember even further back than that," sighed the other. "I remember when the actors and actresses dressed, too!"



TEEN-AGER TO CLASSMATE: "I've discovered that having my own telephone isn't all gravy. Now when I don't get up when the alarm rings, my mother phones me."

A mean old curmudgeon who didn't drink, smoke, or even smile — just worried continuously about his exasperatingly continuous good health — had finished his fourth complete hospital check-up in six months. "Tell me, Doctor," he implored anxiously, "do you think I'll live?"

"I do," answered the doctor wearily, "but I don't advise it."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Golden Gate Bridge Safety Suggestion

one-way toll collection on the Golden Gate Bridge seems to work beautifully, but somebody should always be available for communication by northbound travelers. Inconvenience and even tragedy can result from there being nobody now manning those lanes.

For one thing, a person assigned to the easternmost toll gate with the role of "information officer" would provide a needed courtesy to tourists on this highly traveled entrance to Northern California.

More important, however, is the fact that whereas many of us "veterans" of the bridge used to be able to report autoists in distress so that police or tow-car could aid them, today there is no toll collector to whom a northbound motorist can pass this vital word. Some approaches south of the toll gates have dangerous turns for those whose car breaks down. Speed in getting out flares and moving stalled vehicles is a vital safety need.

I hope sincerely the bridge district may work something but before a bad accident occurs which might otherwise have been averted if northbound motorists could promptly report dangerous situations to a person on duty.

Response To Story Saves His Job

I wish to express my gratitude for your attention to my problems with Safeway Stores. It was due to your report of my situation that I am still employed. Actually, I was completely unprepared for the response to your article. The customers of the Tiburon store as well as concerned people throughout the county filed verbal and written complaints of the proposed action of Safeway. Enough public reaction eventually persuaded my employers that it was not harmful to continue to employ me.

Naturally, I am thankful to the Independent-Journal. Suzanne Wood, the reporter who came to interview me, was extremely kind and professional and went to great personal effort in performing her duties. Unfortunately, I've forgotten the name of your photographer who accompanied Miss Wood, but she, also, was wonderfully charming and efficient. (Ed. note: The photographer was Jackie Hartman.)

I don't know what the Independent-Journal's opinion is on the issue of hair. But I believe my continued employment as a positive step, small, but in the right direction.

LINES ON LIVING

Communion With God Can't Be Wired For Sound

By RABBI HAIM KEMELMAN

Perhaps the saddest thing that can happen to us is not that business becomes a religion (that was always so for many), but that religion becomes a business. When religion becomes so organized, so computerized, as to turn into a commercial ritual, it is in danger of becoming a mundane enterprise.

The temptation to offer discount salvation, whosesale redemption and quick answers to complex human problems is not new. We have listened for a long time to the prophets of peace and serenity telling us of the tranquilizing creed of relaxation which is made easy to come by in a self-induced passivity. Now there is something new added on the market. Dial-a-Prayer has gained a new companion in ministry. It's dial-a-message for comfort and solace. And it has become a big business.

This new system of "religious communication" makes use of the instant impulses of electronic gear by making it possible for its user to gain immediate access to the honey-dripping voice of the cleric — tape recorded and delivered — parson to person. Like a dial-a-Prayer device, this remote control operation promises the individual never to be left alone in time of need, always gaining the earphone of hallowing human sound. At the same time, it offers the clergyman the convenience and dispatch of a quick and valuable service, sparing him the time and physical effort of a personal visit by simply making a congregant move his fingers along the yellow pages and dial a message of reassurance. In short, it's effectual and efficient.

WHAT A FEAT of modernity! What an accomplishment of instant communication! What a triumph of the machine! But, for God's sake, who needs it?

The desire for anchorage, for a firmer support inherent in prayer and spiritual yearning will not be turned on by a dial. The quest for refuge and certainty in the midst of life's uncertainties and in the roaring flux of things will not be answered by mechanical incantation, repeating a prayer like a broken record. The longing of one's individual frail self to merge into the corporate whole of God and man will not be fulfilled by being wired to sound.

Communion with the Divine is not communication by dial; prayer efficacy is not instant efficiency and faith cannot be packaged and delivered C.O.D.

HAVEN'T WE BEEN mocked enough by the machine that often appears to replace the personal touch of humanity, the warmth of the living individuality with robot-like insensitivity? Why allow the machine to mock God and us by delegating to it the most sublime and intimate of human thoughts, our need to find oneness in the strong arms of the everlasting?

The most precious things in life don't come our way by the asking; and are certainly not advanced by proxy. And if prayer and spiritual introspection means anything to us at all, it is in its self-application and self-extension. It isn't perfunctory lip-service; it isn't mechanical superstition and magical enchantment. Its main power lies in that it is a service of the heart, a dynamic stirring of person and personality, awakening a unity and an identity and a sense of oneness with all divine. It is a person to person, person to God relationship — not a mechanical hook-up.

Too much perfume, someone has keenly observed, is in bad taste; and even the odor of sanctity can be overdone. This is especially true when sanctity is overdone by wire, by sound, by commercial means.

THE ACOUSTICS of prayer are not best echoed in wired sound and in instant delivery; the sweet mellow message of faith is not best conveyed in a telephone dial and in a tape replay; the comforting thoughts of human sympathy are not best ministered by remote control.

Prayer, introspection and human sympathy can best be advanced in self-service both of ministering parson and of individual person. And while it takes character to know for what we stand, it takes fortitude to know before whom we stand. Both are human qualities, not mechanical responses.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Minutemen's Arrest Gives Hint Of Preparations For Civil War

WASHINGTON — The arrest of the founder of the extreme right Minutemen, Robert Bolivar Depugh, and his lieutenant, Walter Patrick Peyson, in Truth or Consequences, N.M., deserves more consideration than it has had for two highly significant reasons.

Despite an intensive search for the two men by the FBI on charges of violating federal firearms regulations and conspiracy to rob Seattle banks, it was a year and a half before they were apprehended. Then their arrest seems to have been due to chance recognition by a local law enforcement officer of the 1957 Jeep station wagon they were driving. The FBI had sent out an alert for the Jeep.

DEPUGH AND PEYSON boasted of their skill in evading capture for 18 months. They were passed along and concealed by the right-wing underground. Their own intensive training in survival tactics saw them through several tight spots.

More important was the extraordinary cache of weapons they had built up. As uncovered by the FBI after the arrest, it included 48 rifles, carbines, shotguns, pistols and a variety of other weapons. Thousands of rounds of ammunition, high explosives, dynamite bombs, fuses, cans of tear gas, rifle scopes, a signal pistol for flares, even bows and arrows equipped with impact grenades were stored in the hideout. It was equipment enough to launch a small guerrilla war.

Depugh and his followers say they are building up these arsenals in anticipation of a Communist takeover in the United States. Then they mean to take to the hills and resist to the last man.

In the charge involved in the Seattle bank plot, their tactics strongly resemble those of the revolutionaries in Czarist Russia in the first years of this century. They are alleged to have concocted a plot to rob banks to get money for more arms, much in the same way Stalin in his native Georgia blew up banks to get funds to carry on the underground revolution.

THE MINUTEMEN may be no more than the paranoid lunatic fringe. It must be added, however, that no lunatic fringe apparently as well organized as the Minutemen has been seen before. At least two other Minutemen caches have been uncovered, one in the New York area, one at Collinsville, Ill., the latter larger even than the New Mexico find.

J. Edgar Hoover puts a low estimate on the number of recruits in this militant rightist organization. But if two conspicuous leaders wanted on a variety of charges can hide out for so long, thanks to their own underground, this estimate may be far too low.

IN ST. LOUIS, a Nazi-like campaign pursued over many months finally forced a book store owned by Edward L. Block to close. Bricks were repeatedly thrown through the windows in the store, red paint was sprayed on exterior walls, and small foreign cars parked in the neighborhood were sprayed or had windshelds smashed. Shouts of "sieg heil" came from passing cars displaying Nazi flags. The owner gave up when three bullets smashed through a store window.

A similar campaign was directed at the Peace Information Center, specializing in anti-Vietnam war propaganda and advice on how to avoid the draft. The center also has displays of the United Nations and the United Nations Children's fund, and these seemed to draw the most virulent shouts and obscenities of the attackers.

Again, it may be merely the kook fringe responsible for the atrocities.

HOOVER RATES the Black Panthers as the most threatening revolutionary body in existence today. At least one Black Panther arms cache has been uncovered. In Oakland shooting forays with the police threatened at one point to break into open warfare. Eldridge Cleavers imprisonment, his parole and his flight from the country were an outrowth of this confrontation.

Arms on the extreme left, arms on the extreme right — here is the stuff that could explode into something like civil war.

ART BUCHWALD

Never Take Wife To Rome If You Don't Want Her Spoiled

(Art Buchwald has gone into quarantine for a few weeks so that he doesn't give the astronauts any germs. We are reprinting some of his all-time favorites.)

The big mistake was taking my wife to Rome in the first place. Any American husband in his right mind should know better than to bring his spouse to Italy, particularly for the first time. But I underestimated the Italians, which is kind of hard to do.

It all started when my wife came back to the Excelsior Hotel from a shopping trip to the Via Condotti. She had a big grin on her face.

"WHAT'S SO funny?" I wanted to know.

"Three Italians flirted with me on the street today," she said, pleased with herself.

"Well, don't let it go to your head," I warned her. "They flirt with everybody."

"Don't be too sure," she said. "Besides, the Roman men make you feel like you're really a woman."

"I make you feel like you're a woman, too," I said angrily.

"Did you ever call me blue eyes?" she wanted to know.

"No, and for a very simple reason. You don't have blue eyes."

"That's not the point. Even if they lie, they do it beautifully. I think Italian men are wonderful."

I DECIDED to drop the subject before I really lost my temper. But the next day, after another shopping tour, there she stood with the same smile on her face.

"OK," I said, "what happened today?"

"A traffic policeman stopped all the traffic on the Via Veneto so I could cross the street."

"Big deal," I said. "It so happens that traffic policemen are supposed to stop traffic so people can cross the street. That's their job."

"When the light is green?" she asked. "Then, as I crossed, he tipped his hat and all the cars were blowing their horns. It's never happened to me in any other city."

"Of course, it hasn't. In most cities traffic cops are trying to save people's lives," I said.

"DON'T BE so smart," she said. "If you want further proof that Italian men really care, this morning I ordered a coffee at Doney's and the waiter couldn't have been nicer."

"So what? Some waiters are nice. What does that prove?"

"Nothing, except he picked up the check."

She was getting impossible, and the next afternoon I was afraid to come back to the room.

The smile was waiting for me.

"I KNOW," I said. "You went to Bulgari's and the salesman gave you a diamond necklace free."

"Nothing that dramatic," she said. "But a taxi driver asked me to go dancing with him tonight."

"Wait a minute. You don't speak Italian. How do you know he asked you to go dancing tonight?"

"He held up his hands as if he were holding somebody in them and he hummed a waltz."

"What's so great about that?"

"The cab was moving while he did it."

THERE WAS nothing I could say to that, so I tried to walk out of the room.

"I think you're absolutely terrible," she said. "Everyone has been so nice and all you want to do is to throw cold water on me. American men just don't know how to appreicate a woman."

"Is that so?" I said. "Well, it so happens I have a cousin who went up to a girl on Fifth Avenue in New York and told her she had the most beautiful figure he had ever seen, and he's now doing 20 years in Sing Sing. Since then, I've kept my thoughts to myself."

SHOWS THE SCHISM

Bishop, Rome Split Over Birth Control

By LOUIS CASSELS
By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Most Rev. James P. Shannon, auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis, is a devoted Catholic, a good priest and an honest man.

He comes as close as anyone I know to deserving the description "Christ-like."

That he should now be embroiled in an agonizing confrontation with his superiors is an indication of how far the Catholic Church has drifted during the past year toward a disastrous schism.

PERSONAL TRAGEDY

The personal tragedy of Bishop Shannon—and the larger tragedy of his church—began to unfold last July 29, when Pope Paul VI issued an encyclical asserting that "each and every marriage act must remain open to the transmission of life."

Like many other Catholics, Shannon was dismayed by the Pope's stand on birth control. But the habit of loyalty and obedience, developed during 23 years in the priesthood, made him try to uphold the Pope's views in his pastoral counseling sessions with Catholic couples.

Last Sept. 23, after what he described as "weeks of anguish, days of prayer and hours of fear," he wrote a confidential letter to the Pope, stating that he had found the birth control teaching "simply impossible of observance by many faithful and generous spouses."

'KEEP FAITH'

"I cannot believe that God binds men to impossible standards," the bishop said. "In seeking to counsel such persons, I have found myself resorting to all sorts of casuistry and devious kinds of rationalization, in the hope that I might both keep faith with Your Holiness and with the people of God.

"I must now reluctantly admit that I am ashamed of the kind of advice I have given some of these good people . . . because it has not been an honest reflection of my inner convictions."

In reply, the 48-year-old bishop received a letter from the Vatican Secretariat of State advising him to reconsider the matter thoughtfully and prayerfully.

On Nov. 23, Shannon formally submitted his resignation as auxiliary bishop of St. Paul-Minneapolis and pastor of St. Helena's parish. This was done in a confidential communication to his superior, Archbishop Leo Binz, who evidently forwarded the resignation to Rome.

Subsequently, Shannon was summoned to Washington, D. C., for a conference with the Pope's representative, Archbishop Luigi Raimondi. Raimondi indicated the Vatican would accept the resignation if Shannon would go into voluntary exile in a foreign country.

DECLINES JOB

Shannon declined to go along with this arrangement, after ascertaining that he would be given no work to do abroad but would merely be hidden away in a remote place.

The story of Shannon's ordeal was revealed last month by Willmar L. Thorkelson, religion editor of the Minneapolis Star. The archdiocesan chancery at first issued a flat denial that any resignation had been submitted, but reversed itself after Shannon confirmed Thorkelson's report. The Vatican did a similar flip-flop, at first denying any knowledge of the case and later putting out a report of the Pope's "kind" attempts to "calm" Shannon.

Whether the resignation has ever been accepted is still cloaked in official secrecy. Shannon evidently feels that it has, for he has accepted a secular job teaching at St. John's college, a nondenominational school at Sante Fe, N.M.

In a recent letter to a friend, Shannon described himself as "a deeply troubled man."

"Please pray for me," he said.

Prayer also would seem to be in order for the Catholic Church.

PRAISES WORK

"Bishop Shannon has shown himself the most effective spokesman of the American Church to the young, the troubled, the alienated, the intellectuals at a moment when they and so many others find religion declining in influence," the Catholic magazine America said in an editorial this week.

"What is happening in the Church when it can be deprived of the official services of a man who would easily find himself the popular choice for bishop by the laity and clergy of almost any diocese in the country?"

VERSATILE MINISTER—Rev. Al Carmines, seated at the piano, admits he has an "odd ministry." Greenwich Village Clergyman Admits To An 'Odd Ministry'

STANFORD (UPI)—Rev. Al Carmines admits he has an "odd ministry."

In addition to preaching and counseling, the 32-year-old Methodist minister acts, sings, plays piano and operates a lively theater producing new, and often far-out, plays.

While these activities are part of his ministerial duties, Carmines has been forced literally to moonlight to compose his five off-Broadway musicals.

The Greenwich Village clergyman writes his music between 1 and 5 a.m.—leaving him time to preach and perform during the daylight and evening hours.

"I'm lucky, I only need six hours sleep," said the heavy-set, long-haired Carmines during an interview at Stanford Summer Festival, where he appeared in his musical version of Gertrude Stein's "In Circles."

Despite his success as a popular composer—two musicals, "Peace" and "Promenade," are now playing off-Braodway—he has no plans to leave the ministry.

ASSOCIATE PASTOR

Carmines, who became associate pastor at Judson Memorial Church in Greenwich Village after graduating from Union Theological Seminary in 1961, finds the two fields complement each other.

"I like dealing with people of all ages and of all backgrounds . . . and we have a very diverse congregation," he said. "It helps me in my composing. It keeps me from becoming too academic and esoteric."

SETS UP THEATER

Carmines, who did some acting while a student at Swarthmore, was hired by his church to set up a theater which would perform original works by New York playwrights.

Judson Poet's Theater, located in a 100-seat choir loft, has since produced 80 plays, including the first "Happenings" and some productions with total nudity. Six plays, including five Carmines musicals, moved into commercial production off-Broadway.

THEOLOGIAN QUESTIONS NIXON RITES

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, the theologian and philosopher, says President Richard Nixon's Sunday worship services in the White House have won him seeming religious approval for his policies and appear to defy the constitutional mandate for separation of church and state.

Niebuhr, 77-year-old retired professor of Union Theological Seminary, said the President had established a "tamed religion" which "seems even more extravagantly appreciative of official policy than any historic establishment feared by our founding fathers."

Niebuhr said in an article in the interdenominational journal "Christianity and Crisis:" "It is wonderful what a simple White House invitation will do to dull the critical faculties."

SOARING COSTS

Church, Mexico Working To Restore Guadalupe Shrine

MEXICO CITY (AP) — 1531, the Virgin of Guadalupe reportedly appeared on a hilltop before an Indian peasant, telling him to pass on to the bishop of Mexico her request that a sanctuary be built upon the site.

Now, centuries later, it is apparent that, for construction purposes, she could have chosen a better location.

The sanctuary, which originally was a small chapel at the foot of Tepeyac Hill, since has grown to huge proportions and still is growing.

Its problem is that it rests on a slippery clay subsoil, and buildings are sinking at disproportionate rates. The Catholic Church and government are now engaged in a massive program to restore the center, raise sinking buildings and make the site more beautiful.

Jose Cano, engineer in charge of the project which began six years ago, said he doesn't know when it will be finished. Original estimates set the cost at $1.6 million, but it is certain to be much more, Cano said.

The unit, located only about four miles from downtown Mexico City, ranges over the foot of Tepeyac Hill and up onto the hill itself. The government of the federal district—Mexico City—and the Banco Nacional de Mexico are working to clear the grounds around the shrine of decrepit dwellings and vendors' stalls, replacing them with hillside gardens, parking areas and roads from which the shrine can better be seen.

While work continues, an estimated 15,000 daily visit the shrine, many traversing its huge courtyard on their knees. On Dec. 12, Day of the Virgin, more than one million devout visit the shrine.

The first restoration to be all but completed is that of the chapel of the pool, built over a sulphurous spring near which the Virgin is reported to have appeared to the Indian Juan Diego for the fourth time. In 1963, when restoration got under way, one side of the building was 1.86 meters lower than the other.

The original chapel of Tepeyac is being restored now, but will require much work. Part of its walls and foundations still stand and will be reinforced after excavation beneath it, where Juan Diego and others were said to have been buried, is completed by archaeologists.

Next to the basilica, begun in 1691 and finished in 1709, stands the convent of the Capuchin Order, erected between 1780 and 1789. Its rear to the north rests on bedrock of the hill of Tepeyac, while its southerly front is sinking. Its eastern side also has sunk markedly, giving it a definite east-west list, when viewed beside the basilica, the western end of which has sunk.

The cant of the basilica will not be tampered with because of the excessive cost, said Cano. Instead, the engineers are trying to prevent it sinking any more.

Contributions By Lutherans Show A Hike

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Members of the Lutheran Church-Missouri synod in the United States and Canada contributed $29,463,387 in 1968 for all purposes, an increase of $1,137,019 over 1967.

The average per communicant, however, dropped from $119.56 in 1967 to $118.59 in 1968.

Of the total, $180,964,191 was given for home purposes, an increase of $9,840,913. Contributions for work at large were $48,499,095, while the budget of the Synod received $25,801,497. There was a special "Make Things Happen" offering of $1,091,868.

70 Commissioned In Foreign Field

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Approximately 70 candidates for foreign service have been commissioned by the Assemblies of God School of Missions after completing intensive training in missions methods, relationships and goals.

Within a year the candidates expect to be in the countries to which they are assigned. They will join 969 missionaries of the denomination already under appointment in 82 countries of the world.

Theologian Explores Gap Between Ages

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—One reason for the generation gap, according to a famed theologian, is that the youngsters are turning to Eastern philosophies.

Dr. Frederic Spiegelberg, Stanford professor emeritus and author of many books on the world's religions, this week called on America's parents to realize "the enormous impact of Oriental culture on present day civilization."

Spiegelberg addressed the opening session Thursday of a three-day University of San Francisco symposium on Asian philosophy.

He was asked by a long-bearded student: "How do you tell an American businessman about the spiritual insights of the East? How do you explain why a 14-year-old will go half-naked in the Haight-Ashbury?"

Spiegelberg said the only way was to "wait and try to let him discover it himself."

Another speaker was Dr. Sirjit Singh, who teaches Christian philosophy at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Pension Payments Increased 10 Pct.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Pension payments to retired pastors and teachers or their widows have been increased 10 per cent by The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, effective Sept. 1.

This will boost the minimum pension for full-participation retirees from $150 to $165 per month; for widows from $90 to $99.

Shortage Eases

HELSINKI (UPI)—The Lutheran Church of Finland reports that the shortage of pastors has eased in the past two years. In January 1967, there were 70 vacant pastoral posts. This year only 17 out of 1,200 posts were empty.

Dutch Celibacy Poll

UTRECHT, The Netherlands (UPI)—An opinion poll published by the Dutch Roman Catholic Bishops shows that 75 per cent of the priests and priest-candidates in Holland are opposed to the requirement of celibacy.

MARIN ACTIVITIES

Churches Unite For Bible School

A joint vacation Bible school, sponsored by Grace Lutheran Church and St. Francis Episcopal Church, both of Novato, will be held for two weeks, beginning Monday at the Lutheran church education building, 1787 Grant Avenue.

Daily classes, from 9 to 11:30 a.m., will be held for children, kindergarten age through the sixth grade.

Theme of the two-congregation school is "Living God's Way." Included will be worship services, Bible lessons, handicraft activities, recreation and a refreshment period.

SABBATH RITES

Merrill Ring, member of Congregation Kol Shofar, will conduct Sabbath services next Friday at 8:30 p.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

He will conduct part of the service, playing the guitar for a group of melodies from the Conservative Sabbath prayer book and other Jewish folk melodies.

NEW SECRETARY

Frank Pulice of Sleepy Hollow has been installed secretary of the St. Francis chapter of the Archdiocese of San Francisco Knights of Columbus.

Pulice is past grand knight of the San Rafael Council. The St. Francis chapter is composed of the 32 councils in Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties.

TO PREACH

Dr. Roland P. Wiederaenders, first vice president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, will preach at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow at Trinity Lutheran Church, 333 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael.

Dr. Wiederaenders has served as first vice president of the synod for more than a decade and was re-elected for another term at the church's recent biennial synod in Denver. His offices are in St. Louis.

BIBLE SCHOOL

Registration for a two-week daily vacation church school beginning Monday is now being taken at the Mill Valley Methodist Church, Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue.

The school, open to children ages 5-12, will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. weekdays through Aug. 22.

IDESST LEADER

Manuel Silva of Mill Valley was installed last Sunday for another term as president of IDESST (Brotherhood of the Holy Ghost and Holy Trinity) Lodge in Sausalito.

Other officers installed at the organization's monthly meeting at the IDESST Hall in Sausalito were Joseph Souza of Muir Beach, vice president; Tony Brazil of Petaluma, marshal; Joseph V. Hedge of Mill Valley, master of ceremonies; Manuel P. Silva of Mill Valley, inside sentinel; John F. Cunha of Tiburon, secretary; Tony Mederios of Sausalito, treasurer; Thomas A. Nunes of Lucas Valley, junior past president and Manuel Brazil of Petaluma and Manuel Almeida of Sausalito, directors.

MIDWEEK RITES

Midweed services will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday each week during the remainder of this month, September and part of October at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 240 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon, Rev. William M. Perdue has announced.

The services are experimental in nature, somewhat less formal than Sunday services and will provide opportunity for conversations about scripture, faith and life in the 20th Century.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Hiatt, missionaries from Argentina, will be featured in a special service at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Southern Marin Assembly of God, East Blithedale and Sycamore avenues, Mill Valley.

Hiatt will discuss the January 1969 gospel invasion of Western Argentina.

MODERN AUTOGYRO — Those old enough to remember the 1930s will easily recognize this modern version of the autogyro, now called a tyrocopter. It will be featured at the two-day air show, Aug. 16 and 17, at Gnoss Field.

AT GNOSS FIELD

Show Will Feature Many Aerial Events

Sky divers, airplane acrobatics, flybys of military supersonic F106's and many other attractions are planned for an air show from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Aug. 16 and 17 at Gnoss Field, the Marin County Airport north of Novato.

The show is billed as the first air show of this magnitude put on by private companies in Marin County. It is sponsored by the Southern Marin and Novato Kiwanis clubs, according to Burt Freeman, show chairman.

On-the-ground displays will have everything from antique airplanes, Army helicopters, experimental aircraft and the latest in private planes.

"The fliers are all professional fliers with thousands of hours to their records," Freeman said.

Robert Short, with 11,000 hours of flying will do acrobatics with the Citabria, the only fully unrestricted acrobatic aircraft today. These stunts include slow rolls, Cuban eights, barrel rolls, snap rolls, whipstall, hammerhead turns and inverted flight. His home base is Flyways of Oakland.

George Perez of Glen Ellen with 4,000 hours of flying time, will fly a World War II P51. He will do all the standard stunts with the machine including his specialty the "square loop." In doing these stunts, his plane uses 100 gallons of fuel per hour.

For those too young to fly, or who like to do their flying on the ground, the Marin Radio Control Group, under the direction of Ben Ostlind, will have about 40 radio-controlled model planes there.

"These are real planes, capable of doing everything a real plane can do," Ostlind said. Some are scale models of planes in various sizes. Some planes will be on display in the area behind the hangar. Others will be flown to demonstrate radio control. There will even be a radio-controlled glider, Ostlind said.

The Army recruiting office in San Rafael, under the direction of Sgt. Douglas Conley, will have four Army helicopters and a fixed wing twin turbine engine on static display.

These are a Cobra helicopter coming in from New Mexico; a Chinook from Fort Ord; a Mohawk from Fort Lewis, a Loch or low flying two passenger fast helicopter, and a light observation helicopter, both from St. Louis, Mo. There will be pilots at each aircraft to explain how they are used in Vietnam, Sergeant Conley said.

The five sky divers are under the direction of Dean Matthews of San Pablo. They will jump in two groups, one of three and one of two jumpers. These jumpers will have smoke flares so that their falls may be followed by the crowd on the ground.

The 78th Fighter Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base is cooperating by having fly-bys of Supersonic F106's.

Wallace Clark of Novato will be the master of ceremonies.

He has arranged for at least three gyrocopters. These are home-built by the individuals who will fly them, he said. These planes are similar to the autogyro of the 1930's, he said. They operate on a free running rotor while a helicopter has a powered rotor. Gyrocopters get their forward power by a pusher-type prop, according to Clark.

Antique airplanes will be on display. These are reproductions of former great aircraft, built exactly like their predecessors. Ted J. Schuster of San Rafael is in charge of this portion of the show.

World War II vintage planes will be represented by a Stearman, an old biplane; an AT6 trainer, a P51 pursuit plane and a B25 bomber, furnished by Spectrum Air Inc., at the field. The company will also have a Learjet, the latest in executive type jet planes.

"We could not have put on the show without the excellent cooperation of various groups," Freeman said.

He paid special tribute to the Marin County Aviation Commission, the board of supervisors, Gnoss Field personnel, the sheriff's air patrol, Civil Air Patrol, Novato Fire Department, Novato Chamber of Commerce, Marin County Sheriff's Department and the California Highway Patrol.

All proceeds from the show will go to the charitable work of the Kiwanis clubs. These include helping youth groups, scholarships and similar work, and the pre-history museum sponsored by the Novato club.

Half Of Loot Is Left Behind

Two young burglars who were frightened away from half their loot Thursday still made off with goods valued at more than $1,000 from an apartment at Eden Roc apartments in Waldo, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

The burglars, reportedly 18 to 20 years old, fled when seen at 10:50 a.m. by a tenant. Deputies found loot from the apartment of Arthur P. Petty, 22 Ross Drive, hidden in a water heater compartment in the apartment building.

Recovered were stereo equipment, clothes, luggage and a tape recorder valued at a total of $1,700. Still missing from Petty's apartment, deputies said, are a .410 gauge shotgun, two cameras with several lenses and filters, and a suede coat, valued at a total of $1,035.

Burglary Reported

Burglars Thursday walked through the unlocked front door of the Leon Waherman home at 450 Laurel Avenue, San Anselmo, and made off with a stereo turntable, amplifier, tape recorder and two metal strongboxes with miscellaneous papers, worth $400, San Anselmo police reported yesterday.

Novato Panel To Consider Plan For Development

The master plan for the development of nearly four acres at the end of Hill Road will come before the Novato Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the Novato Community House.

Paul Pickart has submitted the plan for the land which lies between Hill Junior High School and the Nave Shopping Center. Pickart has made an agreement with the city on the extension of Hill Road through the property so that eventually it can be a four-lane street to South Novato Boulevard.

The commission will also discuss the lot detail for the Los Robles Mobile Home Park and skirting around the mobile homes in the park at Bel Marin Keys and Nave Drive.

Other items to come before the commission include a request by Edward J. Kraft to keep a greenhouse which has been constructed within five feet of the property line where 16 feet is required at 12 San Juan Court, the acquisition of right-of-way on San Marin Drive and the removal of a tree at 1602 Vallejo Avenue requested by Leo N. Andrade.

College Campus Behind Walls

Donald Walter wanted desperately to attend commencement exercises at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

His name was listed on the program along with 462 other candidates eligible to receive their associate in arts degrees. But Walter's appearance anywhere outside the confines of his temporary home is forbidden by law. He is an inmate of San Quentin Prison.

Donald Walter got his degree though — in July at the prison in the annual Bayview Schools graduation exercises.

HIS WAS THE first college degree to be awarded at the prison, and it came one year after College of Marin established its "San Quentin campus" program.

The college credit program at the prison will continue as long as funds permit, and according to Berkeley Johnson, assistant dean of instruction and coordinator of the program, could well prove to be the model for similar institutions throughout the country.

With the achievements of two regular semesters and the current summer session, the program has earned the praise of students, teachers, school and public officials and prison administrators.

THE BOARD of trustees of Marin Junior College District has approved an expansion of the curriculum for the 1969-70 academic year.

The program that made possible Donald Walter's degree is an innovation among community colleges that sometimes have been criticized as more responsive to the needs of middle class suburban interests than to those of the economically and socially disadvantaged groups or those in need of rehabilitation.

Colleges across the country are changing to meet that criticism, and College of Marin trustees have been among the first to take direct action.

ALL COSTS for the San Quentin program come from funds provided by the California State Department of Corrections. This money pays for the college instructors involved in the program, for texts and for supervisory administrative costs.

For the fall, 1968, semester, costs for instructors' salaries totalled $3,267, for supervision $316 and for administration $200.

The academic year agreement signed by prison officials and the junior college trustees set an expenditure ceiling of $10,750. According to Johnson, expenses were kept within that budget.

THE CEILING for the 1969-70 academic year has been increased to in excess of $15,000, allowing additional courses and another summer session.

Until the College of Marin program was initiated, convicts hungering for higher education had to content themselves with correspondence courses, according to Keith Hayball, the prison's supervisor of education.

Of the program, he says: "It has had a tremendous impact on the prison, particularly upon the morale of those men directly involved."

WALTER WAS one of 43 inmates to enroll. He had attended college previously and was able to apply those credits gained earlier toward his degree.

He says: "I guess I wasn't serious about education at that time, but I sure am now."

And he adds: "Just to share the same professor who is also teaching students on the free, open campuses gives us a good feeling. To go to classes at a regular time, to prepare assignments, to get marks, just like any other student, gives us a sense of being appreciated and recognized."

NOW 30, Walter believes he has "matured tremendously" after five years in prison.

Before, he explains, his principal interest was in fast cars. That, combined with alcohol and narcotics, landed him in prison.

"It all happened so fast," he says. "You wake up, and here you are, behind the walls. It is a sobering experience and it can give you a futile feeling. You may spend your time dreaming of the years beyond prison when you will be back on the streets. Or you may just let yourself go down the drain."

THE STUDENT-inmates say that they look forward during the day while performing their mundane prison chores to the evenings and their classes.

The 43 students generally take as many courses as they can possibly handle, usually meaning one class meeting per evening.

Grades of the inmates reflect their interest in their classes, with most of them maintaining between a 3.00 and 4.00 grade-point average. Twelve of them qualified for membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma, national junior college honor society, on the basis of their grades.

IN ITS first semester at the prison, the new program offered inmates five major areas — behavioral science, physical science, mathematics, social science and English — plus general curriculum. Behavioral science was the most popular major.

Courses within the various major areas included Sociology 1 (introductory study of man and society), Mathematics B (intermediate algebra), Astronomy 1, English 1A (reading and composition), and History 17A (a survey of economic, social and political history of the United States).

For the spring semester, the curriculum was expanded to eight courses with the addition of English 51 (fundamentals of composition), Mathematics 52 (elementary algebra) and Physics 1.

SUMMER SESSION courses are Statistics, Biology, Health Education and Psychology.

Courses of a more general nature offer the students a better opportunity for later transfer of those credits to a university of their choice, Johnson explains.

Of four inmate-students interviewed, all said they hope to continue their studies to earn a four-year degree if not a master's degree.

MANY OF the San Quentin students already had completed a number of correspondence courses through the University of California.

Cipriano Montoya, a Mexican-American who once ran for U.S. senator in New Mexico, is now at 42 one of the prison's most enthusiastic and articulate college students.

"Why am I thinking of a college degree at my age? Why not?" he asked. "We're not Ivy Leaguers, still making up our minds . . . not me, anyway."

MONTOYA MAY not receive a parole for many years, but he wants to be ready to enter a university and work for that degree when it does happen. He

Frequently The Fabric Doctor receives suggestions from cleaners who want to serve their customers better, but need some cooperation. We'll pass on to you some of the suggestions for your consideration.

1. Leave in the garment all labels which identify the fabric.

2. Examine garments returned from the cleaner upon delivery or within a reasonable time.

3. Report any dissatisfaction promptly.

4. Keep all sales tickets for garments returned to the plant or on missing articles.

5. Pick up all cleaning within 30 days unless such items have been placed in storage and storage charges are made on them.

Following these simple suggestions will enable your cleaner to serve you more quickly with greater satisfaction.

ASTRONOMY proved to be the most popular class offered by the College of Marin in the first year of its new program for San Quentin Prison inmates. In studying and scanning the universe, says one convict-student, "we can forget for a moment that we are behind walls with all these locked gates lined with guards." At left, Albert Heppe, College of Marin instructor and assistant dean, helps student Edward Costello adjust the lens of the teacher's Questar telescope, prior to peering skywards. Below, the eager prisoners take turns viewing the heavens through the big telescope, following the directions of Heppe. His students, left to right, are Edward Naylor, John Cardile, Michael Lingo, Douglas Burgette and Costello, all men now in prison garb, but eager to better themselves in preparation for the day when they will again be free men.

Inmate Classes Meet Evenings Behind Walls Of San Quentin

spoke of his seven children and expressed pride that his oldest son would be receiving a degree from the University of California at Los Angeles this year. He hopes to dedicate any remaining years of freedom he might have to working with his people, hoping to "change the image most people have of a Mexican as a little man sleeping under a cactus with a straw hat over his eyes."

Charles Gillespie, a 36-year-old Negro, is taking all the courses offered, and would like eventually to become a teacher of physics or science. He hopes to complete the associate in arts degree requirements, and then go on to a four-year college after he is released from prison.

When? "That is the question. Sometimes the inmates will appear before the parole board and they will look at your record and say 'You haven't had group therapy, therefore parole is denied.' You just never know."

ATTENDING classes is the one good thing I have to look forward to each day," Gillespie said.

His job at the prison is sweeping the street in front of the prison, and he remarked that, although he works each day right outside the windows, the interview marked his first trip inside the visitors' room during four years at San Quentin. "I've never had a visitor before," he said.

Gillespie taught himself jazz guitar, and his music, like his college studies, is a bright spot in a drab prison existence.

Edouard Deriso, another student, spends his spare moments, not watching television or at any other form of recreation permitted at the prison, but instead in helping to plan the curriculum for the college program and in setting up a library.

"I use mostly books donated by the College of Marin faculty," he said.

HE WORKED HARD to get a special room designated for the library. It is 14-by-56 feet, and he hopes to eventually fill it with 7,500 volumes. A reading area accommodates 20 people and provides a place for research and homework or for completing class assignments.

"If no federal money comes through for this project, we may have to hustle for more book donations," he said.

In addition to texts and reference works, he hopes to add fiction and non-fiction to the collection.

DERISO IS looking forward to a parole this year, after seven years at San Quentin. He hopes to attend the University of California at Berkeley, "if they will accept me."

Of all the courses offered, astronomy was the most appealing, at least romantically, according to the students. They associate the stars and the atmosphere with pretty girls.

Albert Heppe, astronomy instructor, often brought his Questar telescope inside the prison and the class could then take turns looking into the universe.

"We can forget for a moment that we are behind walls with all these locked gates lined with guards," Gillespie said.

PRISON OFFICIALS say the college behind the walls program is a tremendous step in the development of high level prison education. It adds another dimension to the elementary through high school, and vocational and trade oriented programs that were already in existence, according to Hayball.

"This is the first time we have had anything to offer the inmates interested in working for a college degree," he states. "The rehabilitation potential is extremely encouraging."

Although prison officials had attempted to work out such an arrangement with other colleges in the area, they credit College of Marin with making it all possible.

COLLEGE OF MARIN faculty members such as Williams Edwards, above, find the experience of teaching classes for inmates inside San Quentin Prison a satisfying and challenging assignment. Not only do the courses improve the prospects of the inmates for post-prison life, but they also serve as a welcome relief from the monotony and regimentation of institutional routine. Edwards teaches sociology.

SOME OF the colorful and winsome characters from the Mill Valley menagerie of John and Hideko Porter's Fun & Fancy Products business include, at top, Clarissa Cow, standing 15 inches high, and, in bottom photo, posing with beanbags Lady Bug and Toothy Gator, Speedy Turtle and Red Headed Rooster. Meet The Huggables, Made In Marin And Loved Around World

Mill Valley Couple's Stuffed Animal Menagerie Wins Hearts

By GIL PEARSON

Rainbow's end for you, gentle reader, may be the proverbial pot of diamonds or a round trip to the moon, but in the case of one Marin husband and wife the aspired-to prize is total acclaim for just one of their "Huggable" stuffed animal creations.

John and Hideko Porter have spent the past four years preparing for that creator's dream of a nationwide run-away sale of any one of their delightfully colorful felt cloth menagerie offerings. All are produced from start to finish in the Porters' Mill Valley plant, "Fun & Fancy Products."

Hideko is the designer, John the merchandiser.

"OVER THE years," explains John Porter, "my wife has created hundreds of different animals and she continues to produce new designs.

"These have been whittled down to some 30 offerings that are demonstrating the most appeal in toy markets."

The best sellers in the "Huggable" group are the gold-white Tiny Tiger, brown-gold Larry Lion and green-white Ferdy Frog. These are running (or hopping) at $43.20 the dozen.

Others out front with impressive sales records include Longlegs, the 1969 yellow and mint Easter Rabbit, and as well Slinky Snake in six assorted colors.

ORDERS OF these winsome toys are being shipped to every state and to such foreign lands as France, Switzerland, Central America and Canada. One order which the writer scanned is from Puerto Rico for 14 "Huggable" varieties such as Hips Hippo, Ollie Owl, Moo (the (Cow, of course), Larry Lion and Boxie Bulldog.

Bay Area sales have been rung up with I. Magnin and Swartz.

When large orders roll in, the Porters rent additional sewing machines and hire the needed operators.

AND THEY employ high school and college students because they show exceptional dexterity in doing the tedious and exacting pasting on of such features as eyes, ears, teeth, and faces.

In addition, the Marin Community Workshop in San Rafael participates in production by filling the bean bags, by bagging the toys in transparent wrapping and also by sewing.

HIDEKO PORTER poses with some of the appealing creations from the Fun & Fancy Products plant which she and her husband, John, founded in Mill Valley after settling in Marin County four years ago. Her small friends here are Tatter Tiger, Ballerina Hippo, Gerry Giraffe and Sniffy Skunk. Mrs. Porter, the designer, gets her ideas from cartoons, movies and commercials as well as other sources.

Porter says, "Our challenge is to keep the design simple so that cost won't force our price over that of competitors.

"In the grand old days store toy buyers were contended with a 40 per cent profit. Space age buyers simply don't buy anything they can't sell without a 100 per cent markup.

"So we mush along with a promising acceptance of 30 of our animals in the hope that a day will dawn when one in particular will strike the public's fancy big and becomes a best-toy-seller."

JUST HOW did this couple get into the felt-cloth, hilarious animal business?

Well, the facts are that North Carolina-born John Porter met Tokyo-born Hideko in Yokohama 13 years ago when he was a state-side toy-buyer and she was a Japanese toy shopkeeper. They soon married in Tokyo.

John is a University of California man and Hideko is a graduate of a junior college that prepared her for housekeeping chores. Both, in his and her own way, were drawn into the toy field.

FROM hundreds of stuffed animal designs created by Hideko Porter, Fun & Fancy Products has settled upon some 30 characters, one of which they hope will hit it big as a best-selling toy. Among the candidates are, at upper left, Larry Lion and Ferdy Frog; at upper right, Baby Bear, a security toy to be carried about by tots; at middle left, a lean and long Dashing Dachshund; at lower left, Humpty Dumpty of nursery rhyme fame, and at lower right, the Longlegs line of decorative beanbags that can perch on shelves, beds and bureaus as well as be tossed about. Steadily increasing sales and interest for their products make the patient John Porters optimistic that eventually their line will score a breakthrough into the big-time.

When the Porters settled in Marin four years ago, Hideko had behind her some 10 years experience in designing, sewing and retail shop selling. John had behind him many years of buying and selling toys for department stores and gift shops. His multiple contacts were solidly entrenched.

"WITH THIRD party financing," John explains, "we pooled our resources and aimed at sales on a national wholesale scale rather than a single retail shop base.

"While my wife had made toys from all kinds of materials, we decided to specialize in felt. I like this cloth because it is nice to work with. Our Fun & Fancy Shop stocks felt yardage in over 60 different colors."

Their first sale was for three dozen Ballerina Hippos to Blum's in San Francisco.

They then sent Hippo samples along with Dashing Dachshunds to Page & Rand, toy distributors in New York. Sales developed up and down the East Coast, particularly in New England. And then overseas markets began nibbling. Salesmen are continually advertised for.

WHEN WE interviewed the enterprising Porters we found them in the process of developing their first catalogue. It illustrates toys available in various size lots.

We asked the Porters what they see in their future and were told that they will continue developing new designs, that they want to get a larger plant, and that steadily increasing sales inspire them to be patient in awaiting that "run-away sale" on one given product of the house of Fun & Fancy.

IN DESIGNING her stuffed animals, Tokyo-born Hideko Porter first draws the character on paper and cuts them out to be used as patterns in transferring the designs onto felt cloth. She is shown at work in the Mill Valley plant creating an elephant for her comical menagerie.

Anthony announces a miracle!

We gave it Anthony's nickname—Tony. It's a new concept in pool construction that actually comes with its own built-in cantilevered deck.

Even the price is constructed differently to save money. If your soil and access are good (chances are they are), you get an extra low price. Why should you pay for someone else's construction problems?

The Tony is the world's first mass-produced pool. An exceptionally low unit price is predicated on the sale of more than 500 pools. Who else but Anthony—the world's largest pool builder—could mass produce and wholesale a quality pool?

You save on a Tony because a new concept in tile design eliminates the need for a costly installation of coping, substituting instead, a bonus of 350 square feet of beautiful cantilevered decking.

If you want a big, elaborate, reliable, glamorous swimming pool with a lot of extras and you haven't got much money...what you want is a miracle. What you want is a Tony swimming pool. Fill in the coupon. Or phone.

NEIL McPHAIL WAS 87 when the founder of McPhail's posed in 1950 with sons Graham, center, and John for this photograph taken in front of their new retail store and office building on San Rafael's C Street. The tall, stern Scotsman lived to the age of 92 and saw his company continue to change with the times and to prosper.

From Livery Stables To Fuels, Building Materials, Appliances

Business Neil McPhail Began 85 Years Ago Has Changed With The Times

By HARRY CRAFT

Whenever the name McPhail's is mentioned in Marin or Sonoma counties, it is associated with a variety of products — gravel, sand, cement, building materials, fuel oils and major household appliances.

But when it first became known in San Rafael it was assumed that reference was being made to "that serious young man" who had just opened a livery stable on downtown Fourth Street.

That was 85 years ago. It is a sign of the ever-changing times and the pursuits of men that the present day operations of McPhail's are far removed from the original business venture of the founder.

THE SERIOUS young man was Neil McPhail who came to California from Prince Edward Island, Canada.

He was a big man, accustomed to hard work. Being a farmer, he knew a lot about horses. He first ventured into the livery stable business in Oakland, but San Rafael attracted him as a more desirable place to live. And as a fashionable summer colony, its opportunities seemed much brighter.

Here his first stable was in a two-story building at Fourth and B streets. The horses were kept on the second floor and the ground level was used for parking the rigs. The old Grand Hotel was located next door.

LATER, THE business, known as San Rafael Stable, was moved to 714-716 Fourth Street, near Lincoln Avenue, and eventually to the present McPhail's location on C Street, between Third and Fourth Streets.

At the peak of its activity, San Rafael Stable had as many as 90 horses and a wide assortment of vehicles in use. McPhail's teams worked for the railroad, surveying crews and for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. And there was always a demand for everything from a surrey to a four-horse tally-ho wagon from the Bay Area socialities who gathered at the Hotel Rafael for the summer.

Hotel Rafael ranked high among Northern California resorts during the years around 1910, but later its popularity declined steadily until its destruction by fire in 1925.

ALTHOUGH McPhail became a well-liked and important member of the community, he did not marry a local girl but imported his bride, Katie Ann Murchison, from his home town in Canada. They had three children, Graham, John and Belle, all born in San Rafael.

Graham, the oldest, is chair-

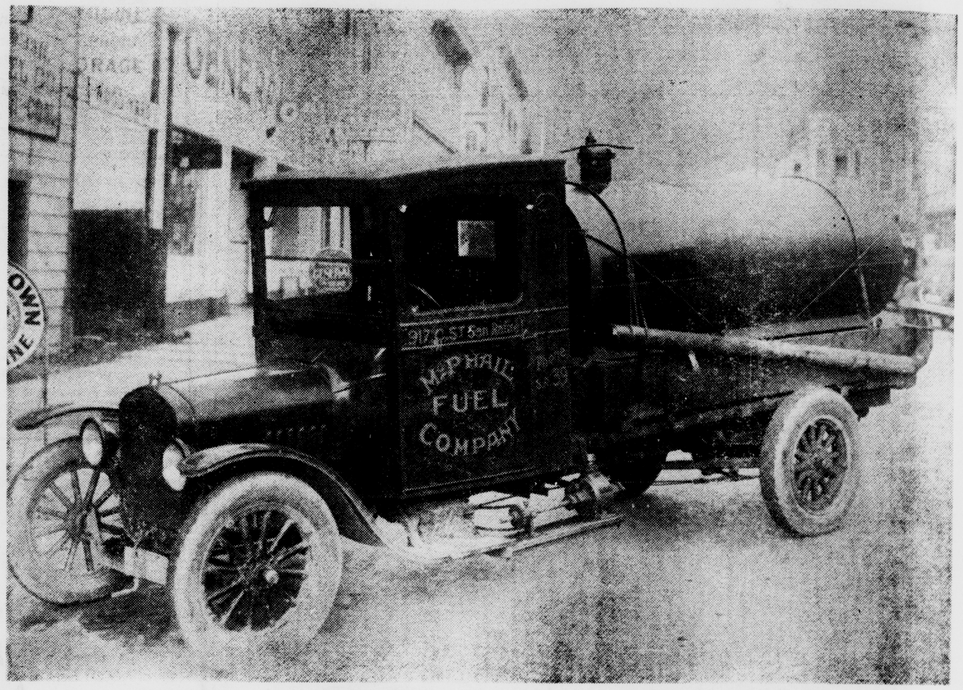
McPhail's—Part Of Marin Scene For 85 Years

A Pioneer Firm Still Flourishes



A PERIOD of nearly half a century separates these two photographs, both taken on San Rafael's C Street where McPhail's has had its headquarters for much of its 85-year history. The somewhat faded photograph at right shows one of the McPhail Fuel Co. oil trucks, a sturdy Model A Ford that was to accumulate thousands of miles in Marin and Sonoma counties serving the firm's customers. It was parked in front of the fuel warehouse and oil burner maintenance plant on C bebetween Third and Fourth streets. Entrance to the warehouse and woodyard can be seen at extreme left of photograph. The recent Independent-Journal picture below shows some of McPhail's modern-day rolling stock, a propane delivery tanker, parked at that same scene in front of the modern appliance store and office building opened in 1950. In the picture with driver Leo Stokes, left, are company vice president and treasurer John MacPhail Jr., center, and president David Stephens, right. Some recognizable landmarks from the picture above can still be seen today.

man of the board at McPhail's today.

After Army service during World War I and two years of college, he had gone to sea for a three-months cruise with an uncle who was captain of a lumber schooner. But the "three-months cruise" was prolonged beyond anyone's expectations and it was two years before Graham was to set foot again in Marin. The schooner was wrecked on Sunday Island in the South Pacific and the survivors were forced to make their way in an open life boat to Suva.

AFTER HIS retirement from the sea, Graham's uncle, Neil Murchison, became a city councilmar in San Rafael.

It was John who changed the spelling of his name back to MacPhail, which it had originally been in Scotland. His sons John Jr., Neil and Bruce followed suit — but the rest of the family continued with McPhail and the business has always gone under that spelling.

It was also John who, after completing a 5,000-mile trip in a Model T Ford, persuaded his father to give up horses for trucks and a different type of business entirely. Together the two formed the McPhail Fuel Co. in 1922. At first the fuel was principally cordwood which they bought in Fairfax, trucked to San Rafael and sold for home delivery. Then coal was added, and by the time Graham joined them in 1926, fuel oil became an important part of the operation.

AT THE C Street warehouse, an oil burner maintenance department followed the addition of fuel oil, and it was a natural progression into the sale of heating equipment, then stoves and other household appliances.

McPhail's expanded into the building materials field in 1930. A new aggregate plant was built on the canal side of Francisco Boulevard five years later. That same year the McPhails poured the concrete footing in Marin for the Golden Gate Bridge.

In 1939 they secured the cement contract for the San Rafael overpass. And by 1940 a fleet of ready-mix trucks was delivering cement to construction jobs throughout the county.

MEANWHILE a Santa Rosa plant was added in 1938 to sell appliances and this also served as a northern base for the fuel oil trucks that were already delivering in Sonoma County. By 1946 a Petaluma store had been opened.

The year 1950 was a big year for the McPhails. It marked the opening of their new building and appliance store on C Street, San Rafael. The building utilized the corner lot at Third and C streets and connected with the existing structure to the north.

It boasted wide window areas, huge display sections for gas and electric appliances — stoves, washing machines, dryers, refrigerators, freezers and garbage disposals. An upper floor made ideal office headquarters.

FIRST LIVERY STABLE of Neil McPhail in San Rafael was at Fourth and B streets. Horses were kept upstairs and rigs were stored in this lower section. McPhail is shown at the left. His companion is unidentified. The McPhail tally-ho wagon in the background, outfitted with a refrigerated compartment and a long tally-ho trumpet, was pulled by a team of four horses. The wagon is now on display at the Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich.

McPHAIL MOVED his stable farther east on Fourth Street to near Lincoln Avenue during the early part of the century — probably to be closer to the railroad station. San Rafael at that time was a popular summer colony which drew thousands of visitors from throughout the Bay Area. Neil McPhail is at the right.

SINCE THEN color television sets have become an important feature of the display and merchandising here.

Neil McPhail, the founder of this expanding business, lived to see and participate in its growth until 1955, when he died at the age of 92. That year also saw the construction of a new bunker and enlarged facilities at the Francisco Boulevard plant and the opening of a plant in Novato.

He was preceded in death by his son John, who passed away in 1953.

HEADED NOW by Graham McPhail, the firm went on to open another appliance store at Mendocino Avenue and Seventh Street in Santa Rosa in 1966 and its own sand and gravel company in Healdsburg in 1967.

At the present time, the only other family member besides Graham who is active in the operation of the business is John's son, John Jr. (Jack), vice president and treasurer. Jack's brother Neil teaches at the Coleman School in San Rafael and his brother Bruce is in the equipment business at Atlanta, Ga.

Belle McPhail, daughter of the late Neil McPhail, is retired from many years as a school teacher in Marin.

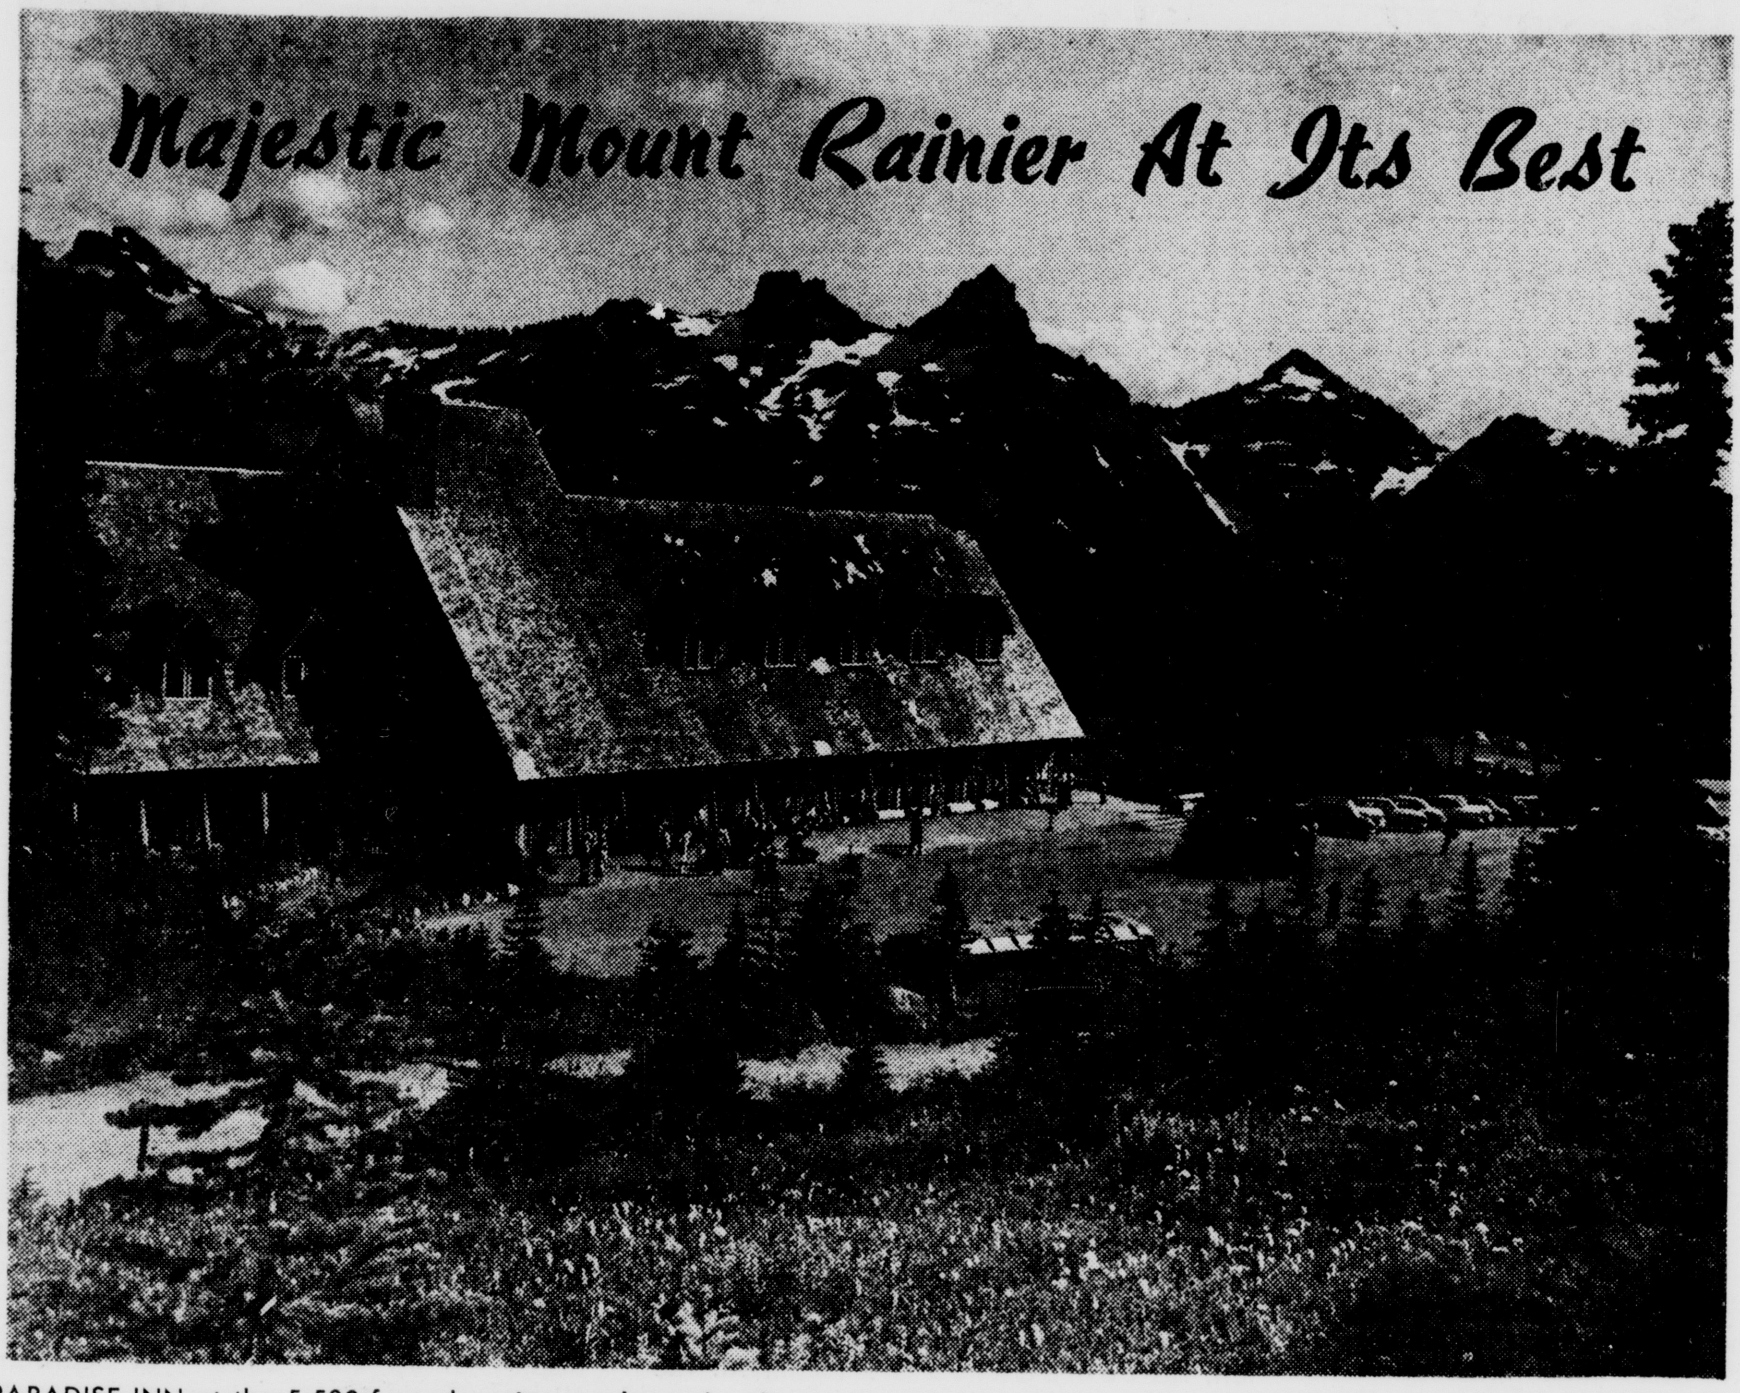
PRESIDENT OF the corporation since last January is David G. Stephens, who is not related to any of the McPhails. He has been with the company 22 years and before his promotion to president in January he had been vice president and general manager since 1952.

The McPhail's board of directors has also been expanded to include a number of local men who are not family members: Rex Silvernale, Philip J. McCoy, Albert Bianchi and Ronald Schenck, and a San Francisco resident, David April.

A recent corporation formed by McPhail stockholders to cover the hauling of propane and cement and the hauling of aggregates to the job is Marin Terminal Inc.

COMBINED operations of all activities in Marin and Sonoma counties now involve approximately 100 employees. Rolling stock consists of 120 vehicles.

And from a gross of less than $2,000 in the first year of business of McPhail Fuel Co. after Neil McPhail and his son John started it in 1922, sales from all operations now average between four and five million dollars annually.



PARADISE INN at the 5,500-foot elevation mark on the slopes of Mount Rainier is a favorite refreshment and relaxation point for summer visitors to that national park. The Fred Harvey-operated facilities include a 150-room inn, a dining room, a cocktail lounge and a gift shop. Nature provides the spectacular vista.

The August visitor to Mount Rainier National Park finds that Washington wilderness at its best.

The weather is ideal, the alpine flowers are still in bloom and the trails are open for mountain hiking.

Mount Rainier is a landmark in which the whole Pacific Northwest takes pride — a mountain that stands alone, rising out of the foothills on a spreading granite base to 14,410 feet. More than 10,000 feet of that majestic height is free-standing rock, snow and ice.

ITS GLACIERS alone are enough to set it apart. The 26 active rivers of ice grinding down its slopes form the largest single-peak glacier system in the United States except A'aska.

In the park it is easy to see glaciers or even walk to them. One of the largest is Nisqually Glacier. It can be reached over a good trail within a few minutes from where you park your car.

The forests in the park are as virgin as the Indians knew them. Wildflowers carpet the hills, forming an interesting contrast in color to the snow, rock and glaciers. The flowers appear as the snow melts and stay until snowfall in winter.

LIKE ALL volcanoes, Mount Rainier was made by the materials thrown up by its own eruption. Perhaps at one time it may have been more than three miles high. Then, an eruption occurred which blew off the top of the mountain.

The present mountain contrasts sharply with the earlier one, whose origin was fire, and which belched forth hot cinders and molten rock; now its flanks are covered with perpetual snow and ice.

Mount Rainier was declared a national park in 1899, under President William McKinley. Later, in 1931, the park was enlarged.

It is 377.78 miles in area, about 18 miles wide and 20 miles long. A little over a fourth of this total area is taken up by the towering mountain that stands in the center of the park. The remaining area consists of ridges and valleys surrounding it.

THE NEAREST cities to Mount Rainier are Tacoma and Seattle, both of which lie to the northwest. They are 56 and 90 miles respectively, from the entrance.

The finest weather is during July, August and September. The tourist season usually begins in late May and goes into September.

However, there is also a winter ski season. The Paradise Visitors' Center offers skiing facilities, ski rental equipment and food service, which Fred Harvey operates.

Harvey operations within the park include the 35-room National Park Inn, at Longmire, where National Park Service headquarters are located. At 2,700 feet these facilities open in early May and close in October.

THE CENTER of activity during the summer months is Paradise Valley (elevation 5,500 feet) where Fred Harvey also operates the 150-room Paradise Inn, which has a dining room, cocktail room and gift shop.

Paradise Valley, 11 miles from the top, is a favorite starting off place for mountain climbing as well as hiking.

There are more than 240 miles of trails in Mount Rainier National Park, leading to and through some of the most beautiful high country in America.

Fashions Reflect Jet Age

One single city — Paris — once set the pace for the whole well-dressed world. But that's not the case anymore.

Today's fashionable woman looks upon the whole world as one wonderful center of wardrobe chic. This year especially, the "in" look is all-out international — with styles brought from around the globe.

Pick up any fashion magazine and you'll get the picture. There's the nomad look and the mad, mad mods. Cossack coats and caftans. Tartan coats and Mongolian fun furs. Saris copied from the Indians of India, and headbands copied from the Navajos of the U.S.

"IN THIS JET age of ours, it was inevitable," comments Mary Gordon, Trans World Airlines travel adviser, "that fashion trends should be drawn from every continent. The more a woman travels and sees, the more international-minded she becomes in her fashion viewpoint, too.

"Of the 845,000 women who applied for passports to travel abroad in 1968, it's safe to surmise that almost all came across at least one fashion find that they just couldn't resist."

Every country has its own outstanding buys.

When touring Spain, you'll be attracted to the marvelous suede and leather outfits in Madrid; in London, look for cashmeres and try on well-tailored suits, and in Scotland, you'll touch soft wools and mohairs, just to name a few.

In her round-the-world travels, Miss Gordon often picks up valuable fashion pointers.

For example, a friend in Bombay taught her how to turn six yards of fabric into instant chic by wrapping it as a sari — no sewing necessary.

"YOU NEEDN'T be worried about going too far over the $100 limit on duty-free shopping," says Miss Gordon. "You can buy a lot of fashion for very little money overseas."

For example, those great Tagaria woven wool handbags cost just a song in Greece. Signature scarves look smashing and are a tempting buy in Paris, as are leopard belts you find in East Africa.

Here's a tip you can borrow from some of the best-dressed women in the world: If you're too far over the $100 duty-free limit, buy fabrics abroad and have them made up at home.

Play It Safe When It Comes To Health

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Don't gamble with your health if you are planning to travel to foreign countries.

A few uncomfortable moments in the doctor's office could spell the difference between a disastrous or delightful holiday.

Earlier this year, the U.S. Public Health Service announced it had dropped recommendation for inoculations against typhoid for Americans visiting Europe and other developed areas of the world "if the traveler stays at the usual tourist accommodations."

BUT THAT was before an epidemic of typhoid fever flared in upper Austria and reached the capital of Vienna before being checked. More than 600 suspected cases were reported in the outbreak.

Austrian authorities blamed it on an ice-cream vendor at a fair in Linz who cleaned his containers in the Danube River.

Fortunately, no deaths were reported. But the epidemic in a country with high health and sanitary standards points up the dangers facing the unwary traveler.

THERE WERE other outbreaks of contagious diseases elsewhere in the spring and early summer. Reports told of an epidemic of paratyphoid in southern Poland; plague in the interior of Tanzania in East Africa; and cholera in northeastern Thailand in Southeast Asia.

At this writing more than 70 Tanzanians were reported dead of the plague in the Arusha region, a popular jumping-off point for safaris into the wild game preserves; one death and more than 150 cases of paratyphoid were reported by Polish newspapers; and six deaths from cholera and more than 500 cases were reported in Thailand.

In all cases, health authorities promptly ordered mass vaccinations and other precautionary measures to help stem spread of the diseases.

BUT THE warning should be clear to travelers. Americans would be well-advised to check on local health conditions in countries on their itinerary and take all required and recommended inoculations before leaving home.

And have them recorded, and validated by health officials if necessary, in the official International Certificates of Vaccinations. The booklet can be obtained when you pick up your passport application or from travel agents, airlines and shipping companies, and local, state and federal health departments.

Inoculations should be taken well in advance of departure date — some are given in a series of shots and take up to three months to become effective.

FOR EXAMPLE, combined typhoid and paratyphoid vaccine is given in two injections, at least four weeks apart. Immunization against plague requires three inoculations, the first two 30 days apart, and the third between four to 12 weeks after the second dose.

For cholera, two injections, with at least seven days in between, are necessary.

Proof of immunization against these and other contagious diseases is generally required after the traveler has come from or passed through a contaminated region. Lack of such proof could result in being refused admission or being held in quarantine.

ALL AMERICANS traveling overseas, with the exception of Mexico, Canada, Bermuda and some of the Caribbean islands, must have proof of vaccination against smallpox within the past three years for entry in many countries and to get back into the United States. Without such proof, the returning American traveler may be vaccinated at the point of entry, placed under surveillance for up to two weeks, or both, even be detained for up to 14 days.

There are other precautions Americans ought to take, including complete physical and dental checkups.

Travelers with chronic ailments should carry a medical report from their physicians, including details of their condition and prescribed treatment.

DIABETICS AND persons with heart conditions, hemophilia, severe allergies and similar medical problems should carry tags, bracelets or cards explaining their ailments.

Tags, etc., may be obtained from the Medical Alert Foundation International at Turlock, Calif., or from the American Medical Assn. in Chicago, Ill. (535 Dearborn Street.)

For additional peace of mind, Americans and Canadians can obtain a directory listing medical centers in more than 70 countries where qualified physicians are available.

THE DIRECTORY is provided free to members of the International Association of Medical Assistance to Travelers (IAMAT). Participating physicians have agreed to a reasonable standard fee for their services.

A membership card, good for three years, and the directory are provided free of charge by IAMAT which has headquarters in New York City (745 Fifth Avenue.)

The Great Gamble Of Admiral Togo

THE EMPEROR'S SWORD by Noel Busch; Funk & Wagnalls, 242 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

On a chill spring afternoon, May 27, 1905, a small boy climbed to a mountaintop above the Strait of Tsushima and became sole spectator to one of the epic naval battles of history.

He saw Russian men-of-war moving up the strait toward the Sea of Japan. He then heard the Russian 12-inch guns open fire on the warships of his countrymen.

Adm. Heichiro Togo was purposely inviting disaster by maneuvering his ships of the line in a U-turn within range of the enemy.

For 15 minutes Russia had a slim chance to halt Japan's surge to world power and rebuild its own failing strength. But Russian ineptness manifested itself in many ways: clumsy maneuvering, inferior weaponry, hapless gunnery and crews near to mutiny.

Togo took his chance and won. His faster warships now paralleled the Russians', and they began a deadly fire.

Within an hour, the top-heavy battleship Oslylaba went under, pulverized by Japanese shells. Soon the battleship Alexander III sank with all of its crew of 900. The Borodino followed, devastated by special mix in Togo's shells that seemed to ignite the very steel in Russian armament and bulkheads. One seaman was rescued by an enemy ship next morning.

The carnage continued that day and the next. Only a few of the Czar's armada of 42 warships escaped temporarily, soon to be captured or sunk in the Sea of Japan.

Author Noel Busch's narrative is told from a Japanese perspective. By doing so he gives insight into the thinking of men like Togo and his aides — and makes them the heroes. At least we are not sorry the Russians lost though we sympathize with Adm. Zinovy Rozhdestvensky. An able leader, he is a tragic figure because he knew his chances were all but nil.

Richard Hough's "The Fleet That Had to Die" has been the definitive account of the Battle of Tsushima. His narrative describes the 18,000-mile, six-month journey of the fleet and the disaster from a Russian point-of-view.

Busch's book is an able complement to Hough's. Busch has a perceptive grasp of water warfare and a trenchant view of the consequences of Japanese victory. He also has a bit of a baggy tweeds prose style which mostly manifests itself at the start and shows up from time to time during descriptions of the battle. But these are small matters; this is a fine book.

A Pair By Professional Ghost-Hunter

Reviews Of New Reading

LIFE AFTER DEATH: THE CHALLENGE AND THE EVIDENCE by Hans Holzer; Bobbs Merrill, 173 pages, $5.

PSYCHIC PHOTOGRAPHY: THRESHOLD OF A NEW SCIENCE? by Hans Holzer; McGraw-Hill, 116 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Hans Holzer, the professional ghost-hunter who has developed a considerable following with his books and television appearances, has produced two more volumes for those interested in the occult.

"Life After Death: The Challenge and the Evidence" is typical Holzer, a stream of accounts of incidents from the investigations and experiences of the author, usually working with professed psychics.

In past books, Holzer generally has been concerned primarily with visits to supposedly haunted houses and other abodes of the supernatural. This time he has a more specific interest — the alleged contracts between the living and the dead.

Holzer is not a debunker but a wholehearted believer, indeed claiming some successful contacts for himself. He is, therefore, considerably less objective and impartial in his studies than he regards himself as being. Most readers will find Holzer's "evidence" less convincing than he evaluates it to be. But for those who share the growing popular interest in the supernatural and related subjects, a new Holzer book always has appeal.

Holzer offers some advice for those who find — or believe — themselves in contact with the departed:

"The living who are fortunate enough to have a deceased relative take an interest in their lives should accept this as natural and live with it. They should not defer their decisions to the spiritual watchdog, of course, but make their own mundane decisions as they feel best. Nevertheless, sometimes the greater knowledge of the ones beyond the Veil can help the living understand their own problems better and thus provide them with ammunition for a better judgment."

"Psychic Photography: Threshold of a New Science?" is Holzer's collection of some 50 photographs supposedly showing wraiths and other supernatural things. Indeed, strange images do appear in the prints.

Holzer says all the pictures were taken under his direction or by him, with strict controls, and that the "paranormal presences" ostensibly were not present at the time of exposure. Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean, after examining the book, assures us that the photos show nothing that could not be accomplished by camera or darkroom trickery or accident if such supervision were not exercised. So I guess it all boils down to how much confidence one has in Holzer's assurances of no tricks.

Anyway, in his accompanying text discussing psychic photography, Holzer hails camera and films as man's "greatest potential tools" for providing a concrete answer to the mystery of life-after-death.

One wonders if man was ever intended to have that kind of an answer. Or if it would even be to his betterment if he were to attain it.

San Rafael's Philip Dick Fascinates

UBIK by Philip K. Dick; Doubleday, 202 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This latest of the score-and-a-half of books by San Rafael author Philip K. Dick reaches a pretty long way past the existing frontiers of science fiction.

Ubik, the reader comes to grasp, is an unseen, mysterious force that seems to try to keep the world from falling apart. Exactly what's making it fall apart becomes a sort of detective story with strong dollops of parapsychology, beyond-the-grave mysticism and the bad dreams that follow a too-heavy meal.

The central character is an anti-hero — Joe Chip, who works for a company that is a sort of detective agency hiring out to keep telepaths and precogs from committing industrial sabotage and the like.

Chip and sundry fellow operatives wind up in an unreal reversed time line of the Depression era when telepathy was unknown. Their boss is dead by foul play and their existence is measured in the mental twists of a dead man preserved by the science of 1922.

I'm always fascinated by the directions author Dick's mind takes. Most science fiction fans should be fascinated too.

Youth Manifesto Rejects Old Values

THE WHOLE WORLD IS WATCHING — A YOUNG MAN LOOKS AT YOUTH'S DISSENT by Mark Gerzon; Viking, 274 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

The very first thing that should be said is that this is a book that adults should read. I think it was written for them.

But at the same time one should dispel certain notions. Forget about long hair, four-letter words, ready-made slang, Communism, and any other stereotyped items as things in themselves. They are symptoms and components but not the whole bag, so to speak.

This book is a manifesto, and before that word turns into a bull's red cape, it's a manifesto in the best sense of the word — a statement of belief, an explanation, a why to all the troublesome whats. It is also a statement of challenge.

It's a curiously uncomfortable book to read, but more than that, it is eloquent, concise, clearly stated and idealistic.

Gerzon, a junior-to-be at Harvard, is simply stating the cause for the euphemistic generation gap, for youth's dissent as it has turned into an all but wholesale rejection of the values of the establishment.

What he is saying, very simply, is that today's youth are not the same as their elders, and refuse to be so, and to expect them to accept old values and tilt with old challenges that are nothing more than ghosts is absurd.

Gerzon describes the campus generation's love affair with existentialism, its psychologically oriented revolt, which is basically an inner-directed trip. He says that adults, who took up the challenges of making a living in a depression and in fighting a world war, should not expect their offspring to take up the same challenges of making it, nor to take up the same patriotism that manifests itself in fighting international bogeymen. He does not put down the adults' challenges. He says they simply do not exist for the young.

One could argue at length with many points in the book — for example the notion that what Gerzon is saying is representative of most of today's youth.

I think, that Gerzon will be in for further disappointment, and that what he finds pertinent and valid in the hippie movement has long since faded.

But the book should be taken as the beginning of a dialogue, especially by adults. It states that it simply isn't good enough to look at long hair, campus violence, drugs and what not, and look no further. It's not good enough to say that kids should know their place, and their time. It is time that somebody at least make the effort to listen with a halfway open mind.

Gerzon's book is as good a place as any to start.

Greece Before The Coup — Its Feeling And Its Meaning

GODS AND HEROES by Herbert Kubly; Doubleday, 437 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

If you can't get away for a trip to Greece, Herbert Kubly will take you there and introduce the people — shepherd, peasant farmer, artist and government official — he came to know on his year's travels through the islands and mountains of the storied lands.

Primarily a writer, Kubly has also been an art and music critic and teacher as well, and all of his interests and knowledge carry his book to a depth that is far beyond the usual travel narrative. Kubly brings to each town and historical site the feeling and the meaning of the civilization of ancient Greece, yet he also analyzes the causes of the poverty of modern Greece.

Written before the military coup that followed deposition of King Constantine, the book gives a political analysis of the popular Papandreau movement and the alienation of the queen mother from the Greek populace.

Kubly describes his meetings and interviews with everyone he meets, from German tourists, guides and shop-keepers to Queen Fredericka herself, and the result is a rounded picture of today's Greece, with its tourist shucks, fast-buck operators, jubilant and spirited peasants, meager soil and overly-divided farms, few fabulously wealthy families and lack of a tradition for social welfare.

Over it all hangs a fascination with the light and the land and the sea, which have impressed every writer since Homer.

THE BOOK PAGES

Two Uphill Battles, One Lost In Court, One Won On Field

By DON KEOWN

THE PROSECUTOR by James Mills; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 245 pages, $5.95.

COUNTDOWN TO SUPER BOWL by Dave Anderson; Random House, 247 pages, $6.95.

James Mills, a Life magazine associate editor, spent some seven months with James Mosley, a hard-nosed yet not insensitive young New York City assistant district attorney, and from his observations has come the book "The Prosecutor."

During that period much of Mosley's time was occupied by the case of four Mafia hoodlums accused of the execution of one of their own venomous killers, a prosecution that ultimately ended unsuccessfully.

The jacket blurb says "this book examines . . . the widespread fear that the balance between the protection of society and the rights of the accused has gone off-kilter."

And because the trial wound up in acquittals so that four of the filthiest examples of the human race swaggered from the courtroom free men, those fears presumably are justified.

There will be those who view the case as fuel for the fire of their attacks upon the U. S. Supreme and appellate courts that they allege have handcuffed police and prosecutors with their rulings to the point where society can no longer be protected against its criminal elements.

That conclusion, however, would be a superficial and a shaky one. A close reading of Mills' book reveals that high court guidelines played small part in the outcome of the trial of the Mafia mobsters.

History, too, supports that conclusion. In all the years before the courts placed these new restraints upon police and prosecution, when were Mafia kingpins ever subject to arrest and conviction? If anything, they stand in somewhat greater jeopardy today than they did before the much-criticized rulings of the Earl Warren-led and Warren-influenced courts.

JAMES MILLS
A lost case

The Mafia has always commanded more muscle — better attorneys, intimidated witnesses, etc. — than the average defendant, and hardly needs the solicitude of the courts.

By necessity, Mosley had to work with state witnesses as disreputable as the men on trial, and thus faced on uphill struggle at the outset.

But the glaring, fatal and unforgivable error committed by the state in this particular case was that it sent one lonely, capable, decent, but badly outmanned lawyer, Mosley, out to do battle with a whole battery of high-powered legal talent representing the Cosa Nostra gunsels and their boss. It was like Wilt Chamberlain, unaided, facing the entire starting lineup of the Boston Celtics, and the result was pre-determined. Mosley never really stood a chance.

James Mills' account of the case as it took shape and of how it finally went to trial is exciting and meaningful. But those who would cite it as another illustration of our coddling of our criminals will find themselves offbase. But then, these aren't really the kind of criminals that create the alarm and near hysteria of today. That concern is directed generally at alienated blacks and young whites. We've grown so accustomed to the obscene faces of the Mafia that they almost qualify as establishment figures.

A POPULAR and effective technique employed by authors to recreate a past event is the use of a whole series of brief, vignette-like flashes that jump from character to character, place to place, showing what different people, some principals and some peripheral, were doing simultaneously while the climactic confrontation drew nearer.

It has been used in recounting assassinations, wars, elections and explorations.

In "Countdown to Super Bowl" New York Times sportswriter Dave Anderson has utilized it to tell the story of a football game. That game, of course, is the Jan. 12, 1969, meeting of the New York Jets and the Baltimore Colts in Miami's Orange Bowl in which the American Football League champions humbled the proud National Football League titlewinners and shocked gridiron fans.

Anderson uses the narrative device in expert fashion, opening with the Jets on board their airliner enroute to Miami to begin training for the big game. From there, he gives us quick glimpses of Jets on the practice field, in the locker room, in their hotels, relaxing, remembering, worrying, exalting, hurting, healing. Sometimes it focuses on fans, league and team officials, the wives and children of the players, the team doctors and trainers, and even gambler and odds-maker Jimmy (the Greek) Snyder.

Not surprisingly, Anderson makes the Jets his principal subjects. After all, they emerged the victors and the heroes. And it was to them he was assigned by his newspaper.

JOE NAMATH
A brash and colorful hero

Naturally, colorful, brash Joe Namath, his image then untarnished by his cheap performance this summer in the hassle with pro football czar Pete Rozelle over his New York bar, is the star of the book as he was of the game. But Anderson does not neglect the lesser players, nor the men and women behind them.

Despite the general effectiveness of the book, complemented by some excellent sketches by artist LeRoy Neiman that capture the dynamic, explosive beneath-the-surface violence of the pro footballer splendidly, one finishes the book with a sense of unease. For while this fast-paced, rather breathless technique for reviving the past is admirably suited to great historical crises, a football game, Super Bowl or not, is something less than momentous. It may seem momentous in the excitement of the pre-game build-up, during the conflict on the field, and in the glow immediately thereafter. But months later, perspective improves and one realizes that it was, after all, just a game, hardly worthy of all this detailed attention.

However, dyed-in-the-wool pro football nuts will not be deterred by such thoughts from enjoying this book which affords them an opportunity for sharing the behind-the-scenes aspects of the sport that has been improved upon only by Jerry Kramer's book.

As for that Super Bowl Game — the major lesson that Anderson imparts is that attitudes made the difference. The Jets took the field full of spirit, seething with determination. The Colts were over-confident, flat and lethargic. And thus the myth of National Football League overwhelming superiority was put to rest.

DOVER HAS out two reprints in the field of Indian lore.

"The Indians' Book" ($4) is a definitive collection of songs and legends of the American redmen, recorded and edited by Natalie Curtis and first published in 1907.

The Dover reprint is a copy of a 1923 unabridged republication and contains 149 songs from 18 tribes in both native language and English. There is a melody for each song.

Myths, too, have been faithfully recorded, and both drawings and decorations by Indians and photographs by the editor are used as illustrations in this book so valuable to students of Indian history and culture.

"Indian Sign Language" by William Tomkins relates the methods by which Plains Indians speaking different tongues nevertheless communicated with each other.

Its author learned the sign language while living among the Indians at the turn of the century. In alphabetical order he has prepared a vocabulary in which the key words are described both verbally and by drawings. Also included is some material on smoke signals and Indian ceremonials.

This smaller book sells for $1.25.

BALLANTINE has issued in a batch reprints of five Ernest K. Gann novels — "Song of the Sirens," "Fate Is the Hunter," "Soldier of Fortune," "Blaze of Noon" and "Benjamin Lawless," each priced at 95 cents. Ex-Marinite Gann now resides in Friday Harbor, Wash.

ELLERY QUEEN'S MURDER MENU edited by Ellery Queen; World, 333 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This annual collection of short stories from Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine, now in its 24th year, tops all its predecessors, and that takes some doing.

The editors have put together 22 splendid and varied tales of mayhem and homicide by the likes of Stanley Ellin, Phyllis Bentley, the late Charlotte Armstrong, Georges Simenon, Julian Symons, Michael Gilbert, Anthony Gilbert and Lawrence Treat.

In this all-star lineup our personal favorites are Ellin's "The Last Bottle in the World" and Miss Armstrong's "From Out of the Garden." Edward D. Hoch's "The Impossible 'Impossible Crime'" and William Brittain's "The Man Who Read Sir Arthur Conan Doyle" are particularly clever little yarns.

If there is a "clinker" in the collection, it has to be Patricia McGerr's "Match Point in Berlin," included, we suspect, largely because it is part of the generally creditable Selena Mead series. But this one is pretty much pap.

The book as a whole demonstrates again that some of our most accomplished and most imaginative writers are to be found in the mystery story genre and in the Ellery Queen magazine pages.

A musical tone consists of the fundamental tone plus several harmonics of the fundamental. These harmonics or overtones all have different amplitudes with respect to the fundamental amplitude. These overtones with their respective amplitudes give the tone its timbre, and this is why all tones with the same fundamental do not sound the same. Each instrument has its own sound. A symphony orchestra may contain as many as 96 players. The musical instruments can be grouped as strings, woodwinds, brass, and percussion.

It is the job of the Component type stereo high fidelity home music system to reproduce all of the basic or fundamental notes together with all of their overtones and in the correct proportions. A violin must sound exactly as it sounds in the concert hall. A listener must be able to hear each instrument in the orchestra. The sounds should not be muddled together. Since the personality of each individual instrument is determined by its many overtones, and since some of these overtones are extremely high, the amplifier must be designed to pass a very wide band of tones or frequencies. Actually, the amplifier must be able to pass frequencies well beyond those that we can hear. It must pass these tones with their original amplitudes and relationships with each other. Of course, no hum or distortion should be added to color the sound.

For several reasons, a commercial home stereo system usually does not have the wide range and low distortion that is found in the Component type systems. In a component system, each individual item, the Tuner/Amplifier, the Record Player, the Stereo Cartridge, and the Loudspeaker System is designed for extremely wide range and for the minimum of distortion.

One of the most critical parts of a component is the amplifier. The power bandwidth of the amplifier is rated at 40 watts per channel, that it should be able to reproduce the entire tonal spectrum of from 30 vibrations to 20,000 vibrations at a full 40 watts evenly throughout that range with less than rated distortion. Good components have rated distortion figures under one per cent. Amplifiers of this type will reproduce the instruments without robbing them of their personalities. Visit us and listen to the rich sound of components.

A Varied And Exciting Assortment Of Discs On The Turnabout Label

By JOHN SUNIER

"MUSIC FOR MANDOLIN AND GUITAR ENSEMBLE" — The Vienna Mandolin and Guitar Ensemble with harp and harpsichord/Vinzenz Hladky, conductor — Turnabout TV 34239:

The practically-unknown composers represented here flourished in the late 16th and early 17th centuries. They wrote not for the mandolin, but for the lute. This music has been arranged for the mandolin ensemble.

Most of the composers were Italian, and one was the father of Galileo. The two pieces of the Frenchman Jean Baptiste Besard are quite distinctive from the rest, with a definite French flavor.

This is altogether a unique and enchanting sound that will please many, and the bargain price adds even more inducement.

BEETHOVEN: Music to Goethe's "Egmont" — Sailer, soprano/Mosbacher, narrator/Symphony Orchestra of the Southwest German Radio/Edouard van Remoortel—Turnabout TV 34262:

This score for Goethe's play was written between the Sixth and Seventh Symphonies of Beethoven. The overture is of course well-known. There are two songs and a final declamation by Egmont. The interludes between acts are surprising descriptive — this might almost be called Beethoven's soundtrack.

A fine low-price LP, boasting good stereophonics.

"FRENCH ORGAN MUSIC OF THE LATE ROMANTIC PERIOD" — Works by Franck, Saint-Saens, and Widor — Saorgin, Raynaud, Darasse, organists — Turnabout TV 34238:

These are organ works in the grand manner — most of the pieces spare nothing in their attempt to equal the full symphony orchestra in their range and power. They are a far cry from the crisp and dry sound of the classic pipe organ playing Bach or Buxtehude.

Frankly, I like these overstuffed things, and the fine stereo reproduction adds to the thrill. Franck's dramatic "Piece Heroique" is included, as well as excerpts from Widor's organ symphonies Nos. 5 and 6.

A massive organ in a church in Toulouse, France, provides a perfect setting for these symphonic organ works.

"JANACEK: "Taras Bulba;" "Sinfonietta" — Czech Philharmonic Orchestra/Karel Ancerl — Turnabout TV 34267:

It is good to have these vital performances, once on the Artia label, back in the catalog, plus at a bargain price. Both are among Janocek's best orchestral pieces.

CARL ORFF: "Carmina Burana" — Soloists/Czech Philharmonic/Czech Singers Choir-Kvaclav Smetacek — Turnabout TV 34266:

Another re-issue, this Czech performance originally on Parliament Records is for me the most exciting version of Orff's wild cantata. The surfaces are much quieter than on the original release, thank heavens.

HAYDN: "Echo Sextet in E Flat;" "Birthday Divertimento in C Major" — Susanne Lautenbacher, violin/Martin Galling, harpsichord, and others — Turnabout TV 34237:

Papa Haydn trying his hand at music especially for stereo! Two groups consisting of two violins and a cello are placed at stage right and left. The echoing of the themes is really a delight. Both of these diverimenti are early period works, but full of the genial good humor we associate with Haydn.

SCHUBERT-LISZT: "Wanderer Fantasy"; LISZT: "Totentanz"; LISZT: Czardas Macabre — Alfred Brendel, piano/Orchestra of the Vienna Volksoper/Vienna Symphony / Michael Gielen — Turnabout TV 34265:

The "Wanderer Fantasy" for piano by Schubert is a very Lisztian piece of virtuoso piano writing. It was natural that it should move Liszt to transcribe it for piano and orchestra. Rather than an improvement on Schubert, which is exciting enough to begin with, Liszt's version provides a fascinating confrontation of two periods and two styles.

A rip-roaring performance by Brendel and good stereo plus two other Liszt piano works round out a fine LP.

STRAVINSKY: "Violin Concerto in D Major;" HINDEMITH: "Violin Concerto" — Ivry Gitlis, violin/Concerts Colonne-/Byrns — Turnabout TV 34276:

Another re-release (with different coupling) of great interest. Both concerti are important 20th Century works and both interpretation and sonics are good, even on the Stravinsky, which happens to be rechanneled stereo.

MILHAUD: "Scaramouche;" DEBUSSY: "Six Epigraphes Antiques;" RAVEL: "Mother Goose Suite" — Walter and Beatriz Klien, duo-pianist — Turnabout TV 34235:

This is a very delectable recital of four-hand piano music in 20th Century French style.

The Milhaud suite is full of jaunty and jazzy good humor, the Debussy pieces little evocations of poems by Pierre Louys, and Ravel's well-known children's suite is heard in its original form (it was orchestrated later).

The Kliens are among the great duo-pianists of today.

RAVEL: "Bolero" (Historic recording conducted by the composer); "Pavane pour une infante defunte;" "La Vallee des cloches;" "Chansons Madecasses" — Ravel, piano with Madeleine Grey, soprano — Turnabout TV 4256:

This historic performance dates from 1928, only a few months after the premiere of the famous "Bolero." The sound is amazingly good mono and has not been tampered with for stereo effect. Even the long crescendo which is the whole point of the piece comes through fine, and this over-done chestnut actually sounds fresh as a daisy! The short song cycle and the two piano pieces played by the composer via piano rolls are also welcome.

"ORGAN CONCERTI" — Haydn: "Concerto in C;" Xaver: "Concerto in F;" Auffmann: "Concerto in G" — Franz Lehrndorfer, organ/Stuttgart Soloists/ — Turnabout TV 34244:

These composers belong to the generation following Bach, when the Church was no longer at the center of things, and their approach to the pipe organ is easy-going and more secular.

Haydn's concerto really doesn't sound very organ-like, but is tuneful as always.

Brixi is part of a Czech family tree almost as important as Bach's. His piece is very majestic and rich.

The short work by almost-unknown Bavarian composer Auffmann is unusually chromatic and tart.

Good organ/orchestral balance and reproduction.

Don't Ignore Indoors When You Garden

Green Foliage Plants Will Lend A Refreshing Cool Touch To Home

This is the time of the year when Marinites are likely to become so preoccupied with their enjoyment of outdoor living and gardening that they forget all about indoor plants.

But no matter how warm or pleasant the weather, we must still spend a great deal of our time inside the house.

That interior can seem awfully drab in contrast to the outside, where lawns are green and plants are abloom.

THE REFRESHING green of a few choice foliage plants, however, can work wonders in livening up the household. And on hot days, they can make the house seem degrees cooler.

Furthermore, they can lend a touch of elegance to your decor.

Dieffenbachia (Dee-fen-bock-ia) is a good foliage plant to illustrate the point.

THE PLANTS grow on a slender, erect stalk with large elongated leaves adorning it. There is a variegated green and spreckled white variety as well as the handsome all green one.

In a container, whose color is coordinated for the room, the Dieffenbachia is a distinctive addition to any room in the house.

A visit to your nearby nursery will reveal a number of semi-erect foliage plants for indoor decoration.

Worth shopping for in this category are unusual varieties of Philodendron which have unusual leaf shapes and varying shades of green. Some are so unusual you wouldn't recognize them as a Philodendron. Happily, this feature doesn't make the plants any more difficult to grow.

SUCH INDOOR foliage plants prefer to be placed where they'll receive diffused or filtered light from a north or east window.

Don't set the plants where direct sun will hit them and avoid placing near a vent for cooling or heating.

There are indoor plants that will tolerate darker conditions. The slow-growing, erect and lacy Neantha Bella Palm is one; the Cast Iron Plant (Aspidistra), with dark green leaves growing in urn shape, is another.

THE CHOICE of indoor plants isn't limited to larger specimens.

The oval-leafed Maranta, deep green and tufted Peperomia and exotic Dracaena are but three to be considered for planting individually in small containers, or combined in a dish garden.

Watering is important for indoor plants. There is no set rule as to frequency, as the plants' demands will vary with the season, as well as house-to-house. Each home has its own "environment," and plants' moisture needs will differ. The main thing is not to overwater.

SOME PLANTS will take more water, hence it is wise to ask your nurseryman's or florist's advice on the different ones.

Nurseries and floral shops now have a large selection of cooling, delightful green foliage plants to perk up any indoor spot. Try yours on the floor, table, mantel, or even in the empty August fireplace, and see what a beautiful difference they make!

THE VARIEGATED Dracaena shown here dresses up nicely a hearth. But there are taller specimens available for corner situations and smaller ones for use on the floor, table or mantel or even inside an unused summer fireplace. (Photo courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen)

Back From Vacation? Better Take A Look At Your Yard

Garden Page

While it is unlikely that vacationers returning home will find their garden has completely "gone to pot," there probably will be certain areas in need of revitalizing.

The California Association of Nurserymen offers the following recommendations to restore such gardens to their former glory.

THE LAWN: Mow and trim the lawn. Even a well-watered green carpet looks unsightly if it's shaggy. After watering thoroughly, green-it-up with a shot of lawn food, followed by good soakings of water. In a matter of days you'll notice a difference in the garden!

TREES AND SHRUBS: Thorough soakings are the order of the day. A thick layer of peat moss or nurserymen's mulch around the roots of shrubs (and over the lawn, too) will help retain moisture.

ROSES: Faded blooms should be cut. A feeding of rose food will strengthen the plants and provide vigor for fall bloom. If insect damage is evident, a spray program should be launched. This time of year in many areas mildew becomes a problem. Apply a fungicide or a combination insecticide-fungicide spray. Nurserymen can recommend specific pest controls for you to use.

SPECIAL PLANTS: Certain other plants will want attention upon your return. Pick spent blooms from annuals and replace unsightly plants with new flowers from nursery flats. Chrysanthemums may need staking, pinch-back Fuchsias and feed with fish-emulsion or other plant food. Camellias, Azaleas and Rhododendrons will want another application of acid type food.

WEEDING: If weeding is required, hand pulling is a sure-fire control; but there are chemicals available to do many weeding jobs. Before using such controls, however, consult a nurseryman for the right chemical for the right weed.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Take long stems when cutting roses so as to renew the bushes. And feed your roses if it has been three weeks or longer since they were last fertilized.
- For quick August color, put out lantanas, giving them the sunniest exposure you can provide.
- Lift gladiolus bulbs after the tops have turned yellow. Dust with a fungicide and insecticide combination and store in shallow trays until spring.
- To add color to the patio or deck, shop for container plants in bloom. White and yellow marguerites are ideal for sunny areas, begonias, impatiens or fuchsias for hanging baskets in the shade.
- If you live in one of Marin's cooler sectors, plant sweetpeas before the end of the month if you want blooms by Christmas. If you live in a warmer locality, wait awhile longer.
- Continue your regular and thorough watering program for the lawn and for garden plants.

Care Of Outdoor Furniture Vital For Longer Use

The normally rough treatment accorded to outdoor furniture and the onslaughts of the weather make it imperative that lawn, garden and poolside chairs, tables and longues receive good care and periodic refinishing.

As with any successful refurbishing project, surface preparation is the most important part of the job. It is especially important when repainting metal.

THE FIRST step is to clean away all dirt, oil and grease with a cloth soaked in mineral spirits. If there is even the slightest sign of rust, it should be removed with steel wool or sandpaper, either or both of which also can be used to get rid of cracked or peeling paint.

A rust-inhibiting primer must be used to cover all bare spots. If any part of the metal still has a high gloss from the previous coat of paint, it should be roughened so that the new coat can hang on properly.

If a large area is glossy, you might consider putting on one of the liquid products which provides a base for the final coat without cutting down the gloss.

EXTERIOR ENAMEL makes an excellent finish for metal. The enamel can be applied with a brush, spray equipment or from a self-spraying can. When enameling chairs and tables, setting them upside down on another table or bench while doing the undersides will prevent backaches.

Aluminum that has lost its sheen or become pitted should be cleaned in the same manner as other metal and then primed with zinc chromate.

New aluminum will retain its shiny appearance if it is immediately coated with clear acrylic or cellulose butyrate lacquer. The better grades of aluminum are protected by a factory-applied lacquer.

METAL FURNITURE that is left out in the sun in an area where there is no intermittent shade can be very hot, especially when you sit on it while wearing a bathing suit or shorts. Painting the metal with white enamel will go a long way towards eliminating this problem, since it reflects most of the sun's heat.

Almost any kind of good quality exterior paint can be used for outdoor wooden furniture. The same principles of surface preparation hold true for wooden furniture, except that you can skip the primer if the surface is in fairly good condition and you intend to apply two coats of paint.

Wicker and ratten are best sprayed rather than brushed.

REDWOOD AND cedar furniture can be finished with a clear material that acts as a preservative. Some types of preservatives contain coloring if you wish to tint the wood yet retain the natural look.

You can, of course, use regular exterior paint if you wish, since both woods provide an excellent base.

THIS BACKYARD fence relies on clean lines and simple pattern for its handsome appearance. Dark-stained cedar one-by-twos have been face-nailed to the fence rails. Shrub border and low bench form a buffer zone between patio and fence. The table converts to a firepit by removing the top.

To Make Fence Unobtrusive, Use It As A Backdrop

A good back yard fence is one of the best additions any family can make to their home.

Built tall enough, a fence will insure seclusion within the yard and, often, provide screening for house windows, too.

A fence is also the best way to control the comings and goings of small children, dogs, and other wandering critters. And a fence can do even more, such as divert wind and block unattractive views.

BUT MOST important is the matter of economics. With its many accomplishments, a fence returns full ownership of the property, letting you develop and use all that expensive land surrounding the house.

The most frequent questions raised about enclosing the property are whether or not fencing will have the effect of reducing space visually and whether it will be an unsightly, harsh-lined addition to the property.

In both cases, experience proves that the opposite is more apt to be true. The secret of a handsome but unobtrusive fence lies in blending it into the landscaping.

IT MUST always work as a backdrop for something. Usually, that something is a shrub bed, but if a fence abuts a deck, then it should be handled as a wall with furniture arranged against it. The furniture could be a simple garden bench, a table or even container plants.

In a shallow back yard or in a side yard, when patio paving is laid close to the property line, a good scheme may combine several elements.

A shrub bed definitely should be used, no matter how narrow, to cause a step-up in elevations from the flat surface of the paving to the varied heights of shrubs and so up to the cap board of the fence. That lets the eye roam instead of stopping abruptly.

A GARDEN bench built along the patio's edge also helps to create the needed illusion of distance. And such things as planters, sand castings and sculptures can be hung on the fence to add interest.

Style is important to the degree that the fence shouldn't demand attention. This is not the place to try out super-clever designs or a gay color scheme.

Instead, vertical slats, spaced boards, the board-on-board pattern or louvers are suggested.

Resawn lumber -- Douglas fir, white fir, western red cedar, the western pines — supplies excellent texture, weathers well and needs little, if any, attention. An exterior stain finish in natural wood color, driftwood, grayed-green, or dull gold again requires little maintenance.

Some Things To Remember In Handling A Chain Saw

There are a few things to remember about the handling of a chain saw.

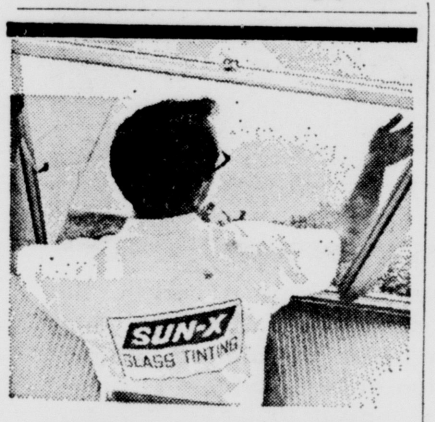
First of all, keep the chain sharp. You'll cut faster and with less effort if you sharpen the saw chain cutters after every two or three hours of use.

How do you know when the chain needs sharpening? Look at the size of the chips the saw is making; the bigger they are the sharper the chain.

Also, be sure to lubricate the saw liberally. Distribute oil around the saw bar before you start cutting and oil the chain frequently when cutting and when you are finished.

Make sure the chain is properly tensioned. It's right when it can be freely pulled around the bar while the underside remains touching the bar lightly.

Finally, never let the chain touch the ground; there's nothing that will dull a chain faster than being run in dirt.



SUN-X
Reflective Film

STOPS GLARE
STOPS SUN-FADING
STOPS HEAT PENETRATION

the low cost way! This revolutionary tinting film for windows ends solar glare problems. MYLAR

Winter or summer, beautifully modern Sun-X Reflective Glass Tinting Film assures you complete protection from the annoying distraction of outside glare, while permitting complete visibility. The film is a tough, DuPont Mylar* transparent plastic sheet with a microscopic transparent coating of aluminum. It's applied directly to the inside surface of existing windows to effectively control the transmission of solar heat and radiation.

Here are just a few of the ways Sun-X can enhance your home or business:

- PROTECTS FURNISHINGS
- INSULATES
- ASSURES SAFETY
- SAVES MONEY
- ENHANCES BEAUTY, COMFORT AND PRIVACY

Sun-X Reflective Film is the newest, most significant development in sun-control technology today.

OBSERVER FROM CAPE KENNEDY

I am just an ordinary frog
living underneath a fallen log,
sheltered from the rain and fog.
I watch egrets and herons fly
in graceful patterns in the sky,
occasionally, an ibis standing by.
Alligators swim close to the shore,
beavers build their dams almost next door,
and a red fox comes to timidly explore.
Then, with sudden crash of thunder
shattering the clouds asunder,
a rocket launches out from under,
and, with swift computered grace
lifts from earth to outer space,
leaves on the sky no vapored trace.

I am just an ordinary frog
living here beneath this fallen log,
but "I have seen the glory" from my bog!

President Proposes Nationalization Of Welfare System

'New Federalism' Pitch For Basic Income To The Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon wants a "New Federalism" that will ship tax dollars and job programs out of Washington but nationalize the welfare system and give every poor family a basic income.

The heart of the President's domestic proposals, announced in his broadcast last night, is a federal income guarantee of $1,600 a year to a family of four, plus supplements until earnings reach $3,920—provided the breadwinner is willing to work.

His new "family assistance program" and other reforms would supplant the present aid to dependent children program, subsidize the working poor for the first time and add $4 billion a year to the present $4.2 billion federal welfare bill. Welfare recipients would more than double to 22.4 million.

The President called for gradual assignment of the $1 billion-a-year federal manpower program to state and local governments. Some $660 million more would be added to expand job training for welfare recipients and offer day-care centers for their children.

State and local governments would also share $1 billion a year in federal revenues with few strings attached, beginning in 1971.

Republican leaders in Congress generally applauded the President's program. But action on the welfare reforms may be a year or two away, they cautioned, and revenue sharing is sure to face rough going.

VOICES DOUBT

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee is one important Democrat who doubts Congress will shovel out money with few controls. His committee will consider the revenue sharing proposal, which House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford said could mount to $5 billion a year by 1975.

The President advocated federal payments of $65 a month for recipients of three adult welfare programs—aid to the blind, disabled and aged. The government now has a sliding scale of matching payments for the programs.

Nixon also announced executive reorganization of the anti-poverty agency for a new emphasis on experimental job programs rather than operation of proven ones.

States would save $735.8 million a year in welfare costs under his federalized program, the President said.

He described a "welfare quagmire" that is threatening to bankrupt state and local governments under a case load that has doubled in the last 10 years.

HITS SOUTH

It discriminates against certain areas of the country, against male-headed families and against the working poor, he said. Monthly payments range from $39 a month for a family of four in Mississippi to $263 a month for a like family in New Jersey.

The President said his family assistance plan rests on three principles: "equality of treatment, a work requirement and a work incentive."

"Its benefits would go to the working poor, as well as the

Bond Session Angers Two Councilmen

By BONNIE BARD

The joint meeting of four Petaluma taxing bodies to coordinate efforts in bond election has drawn fire from councilmen who were kept as much in the dark about the session as the public.

Councilman Phillip L. Joerger said, "It's disgusting that we're elected to represent the people and then we're ignored."

Only Councilman David W. Brainerd had been informed or invited to the meeting.

The session, called by Mayor Helen Putnam, included representatives from the city council, Petaluma Board of Education, Old Adobe School District board and the Hillcrest Hospital board.

Each board was requested to send only two representatives so that no quorum of any group would be present and the meeting then required to be announced to the public.

Mrs. Putnam said she phoned administrative officers of the districts to pass along invitations to board members. She said that Brainerd was selected because he serves as the council liaison to the Petaluma Board of Education Citizens Advisory Committee to promote the Oct. 14 $13 million bond election.

Joerger said he was upset because plans for another bond election had not been considered by the council and said that Mrs. Putnam's remarks to the group indicated council support for a $3 million bond election in the fall.

Joerger said, "It seems to me that she should have had some directives from the council before starting some type of joint meeting."

Also taking issue with the secrecy of the session was Councilman Robert A. Brunner. "The meeting may have been legal, but it sure gives the implication of secrecy," he said.

Brunner said that overlooking other council members in call-

ROBBERY SUSPECT — Christopher K. Mason, 19, of San Rafael awaits booking into Marin County Jail on suspicion of being the young man who robbed United California Bank in San Rafael of $1,348 yesterday. Mason, arrested this morning, is being held for possession of narcotics as well as the robbery. An accomplice is still sought by police. (Independent-Journal photo)

SAUSALITO TIP

Suspect Arrested In Bank Robbery

A San Rafael youth, who may have robbed two banks in Southern California, was booked into Marin County Jail today as a suspect in the $1348 robbery of the United California Bank in San Rafael yesterday.

Christopher Kendall Mason, 19, of 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, was pulled from a taxi by three Sausalito policemen at gunpoint at 3:30 a.m. as the cab headed out of Sausalito toward Golden Gate Bridge.

Shortly before the capture police received an anonymous call stating that Mason had just entered a cab in Sausalito and was headed for San Francisco Airport. Detective Brian E. Newlon spotted the suspect and radioed for assistance.

ORDERED OUT

Two other patrol cars joined Newlon and closed in on the taxi with red lights flashing. The officers surrounded the cab with drawn guns and ordered Mason out.

The slender, blond youth came out of the cab slowly and made no attempt to resist.

No weapon was found but two kilos of marijuana were found on him, police said. He also had $210 in cash.

Mason, a parolee from the California Youth Authority, reportedly intended to fly to Chicago last night.

He was booked on suspicion of bank robbery and possession of narcotics with intent to sell.

OTHER BANKS

San Rafael police said Mason is also suspected of being the bandit who made away with $540 from the Bank of America in Glendale July 24 and four days later hit the Crocker Citizens National Bank across the street for about $1,500.

Bail was set at $10,250 by Su-

France In New Crisis: Devaluation Of Franc

PARIS (AP) — Devaluation of France's franc brought warnings from French labor leaders today that they will press demands for all around wage increases.

Labor reaction was swift to the announcement yesterday that the franc was being devalued 12.5 per cent. Opposition mounted as President Georges Pompidou met with his ministers to discuss austerity measures to be taken to cope with the situation.

"The new situation can only reinforce our demand ... for guaranteed increases in the workers' purchasing power and priority action for the poorest sections of the population, large families and pensioners," said Laurent Lucas, acting secretary-general of the non-Communist Workers' Federation.

Lucas also called for price controls and measures to stop speculation.

Georges Seguy, secretary-general of the Communist-backed General Confederation of Labor, France's biggest labor union, called devaluation governmental "blackmail" of French workers. He predicted a stormy labor climate when workers return from their annual vacations at the end of August.

Alain Savary, secretary of the French Socialist party, declared the workers are always the first victims of any devaluation. He said the Socialists are "determined to defend their interests" when austerity measures are announced.

The left wing Socialist Unity party warned that the government measures would undoubtedly include salary restructuring "thus amputating the purchas-

Legislature Adjourns; Approves Tax Rebate

Back In Session Sept. 8

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— The Legislature gave Gov. Ronald Reagan his election-year tax rebate bill early today then adjourned the 1969 session amid a carnival atmosphere of flying papers and exploding firecrackers.

The lawmakers will be back Sept. 8 for a one-week meeting to act on Reagan's vetoes. But they won't be able to pass any bills without the governor's permission. And for all practical purposes, they've done all they're going to for this year.

One of the Legislature's final acts was to pass Reagan's bill allowing Californians to deduct 10 per cent from their state income tax next April. The election year rebate will cost the state $87 million. The break is limited, however, to $100 for single taxpayers and $200 for married couples.

OTHER ACTIONS

The Legislature also came down hard on campus militants. It sent Reagan two bills increasing penalties for troublemakers and giving administrators more power to deal with them.

The last-minute action, the Legislature also:

Passed a bill invalidating gun control ordinances in San Francisco and Beverly Hills.

Wrote new state guidelines for use of pesticides.

Placed a $246 million bond issue for University of California medical schools on next year's ballot.

Gave Reagan and his aides a pay raise.

Sent Reagan a bill authorizing the Southern California Rapid Transit District to impose a one-half-cent sales tax for six months.

Placed a proposed constitutional amendment on next year's ballot requiring the U.C. Board of Regents to meet in public.

TAX REFORM FAILS

But the Legislature failed to come to grips with tax reform, an issue Reagan and Assembly Democratic leader Jess Unruh feuded over right to the end.

Reagan accused Democrats of "playing politics" when they temporarily insisted they wanted to stay in Sacramento and debate tax reform—even though all tax reform bills had been dead for days.

BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Three men and two women, including film and television actress Sharon Tate, were found shot to death today at Miss Tate's Bel Air mansion. The other victims were not identified immediately, and police said they had booked a houseboy, 19 or 20, as a suspect.

EXCITED ABOUT FUTURE

Retiring City Hall Clerk Recalls The Unhurried Days

By JOANNE GRANT

A bit of sunshine will leave San Rafael City Hall this month, as City Clerk W. C. Cornwell enters retirement.

Cornie is something of an institution at city hall, popping in and out of offices to say hello or to spin a yarn from his voluminous supply or to bring a little party to celebrate special holidays.

Mostly, though, he's at his desk in the clerk-finance office, where he's been since January 1965 when he was appointed clerk after serving as deputy clerk since 1963.

He was elected to a four-year term in April 1967 and announced last month he would retire, effective Sept. 1.

A native of Watoga, Ill., son of a doctor, he came west as a child and spent most of his grade school years in Bellingham, Wash. His mother died when he was born and he lived with his father for a time and then with a series of foster families.

The family that finally became his was Rev. and Mrs. Charles A. Ownes.

Owens, a missionary in Africa in the 1880s and later in the Philippines, had a small church at Bellingham when Cornwell went to live with them.

His younger years were marked by unusual experiences, such as the family practice of speaking only in a Filipino Spanish dialect at mealtime to help the young Cornwell learn it.

Before he finished grammar school, the family moved to Southern California and still later to St. Helena where Cornwell graduated from high school.

He was living in St. Helena when he made his first trip to Los Angeles by car, a 1908 Ford. "It was a rattletrap," he recalled.

The trip took a week.

He studied engineering at the University of California for a couple of years and then took his first job — at the Gold Hill Mine at Virginia City.

He remembers vividly his days in the gold country; says only three places there in the 1920s are still there. "It's a tourist trap now," he said of Virginia City.

He left that job in 1924 and came to San Rafael where Reverend Owens was pastor of the Methodist Church.

There were about 6,000 people in San Rafael when he went to work as a surveyor for an engineering firm in the Cheda Building, one of the few office buildings in town.

Much of what is downtown San Rafael today was residential or small shops then, Cornwell said, remembering what was where, what wasn't built yet, what's been changed.

He got stuck on a couple and said ruefully, "The minute it disappears it's hard to remember."

Among the stores no longer here were two cigar stores where owners and helpers handmade the product.

He worked for various engineering firms until 1953 when he became deputy clerk under W. L. Morgan who was also finance officer and city assessor. "I knew the area, the county, backwards and fore-

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Editor Attacked

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper opened fire anew today on liberal editor Alexander Tvardovsky in what appeared an effort to force him out of his job.

Tvardovsky's magazine, Novy Mir (New World), is one of the last liberal publications in this country, and has published relatively unvarnished accounts of hardships in Soviet life.

Tvardovsky has come under attack from a number of publications, including Sotalistícheskaya Industria (Socialist Industry), a newspaper of the Communist party Central Committee. In its latest thrust, the paper accused Tvardovsky of taking an "insulting" attitude toward its criticism of him a week ago.

Hippie Roundup

TANGIER, Morocco (AP) — Police rounded up American, British and German hippies whom they considered "fleabitten and dirty" and gave them a public bath and haircuts yesterday. Police said many had everstayed their three-month tourist visas.

Those who had money to travel were escorted to the airport or piers. The rest had their passports seized. Police spokesmen said the passports would be returned upon presentation of a valid, one-way ticket out of Morocco.

Seeks Divorce

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito's granddaughter applied for divorce from her commoner husband today, a spokesman for the imperial household agency said.

The spokesman said Princess Fumike Higashikuni, 22, and Kazuteshi Omura, an employee of a major Japanese metal firm, had asked for official permission to end their 17-month-old marriage because they could not get along together. They were wed in March 1968.

Trudeau Pelted

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A woman threw a banana peel at Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and hit him in the back with it last night after he gave up trying to address a group of antiwar demonstrators outside an armory.

Trudeau had agreed to speak to the protesters, some of whom carried signs condemning "Canadian complicity" in the Vietnam War. But when he tried, they drowned him out with shouting. Some pelted him with wads of paper.

Film Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cary Grant claims four of his movies were sold to television before their financial potential in theaters was exhausted.

The actor filed an $8.8 million lawsuit against Universal Studios and its parent company, MCA, in superior court yesterday, charging the studio did not use proper discretion in selling "Operation Petticoat," "The Grass Is Greener," "That Touch of Mink," and "Father Goose" for home viewing.

Border Charge

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea charged today that U.S. troops have sharply increased shootings across Korea's demilitarized zone since North Korea shot down a U.S. intelligence plane in April.

The North Korean Communist party newspaper Rodong Shinmoon said U.S. troops along the DMZ had fired on North Korea 436 times since April, using more than 74,000 rounds of bullets and shells.

Freedom Swim

TRIESTE, Italy (AP) — With some roughly learned Italian, their bathing shorts and a good swimming stroke, eight Hungarian students swam from Yugoslavia to Italy today and asked for political asylum.

In stammering Italian, the young men told police they reached Yugoslavia with a tourist group from Budapest and stopped at a camping site near Kopar, across the border from here.

Embassy Protest

TOKYO (AP) — More than 100 Japanese rightists staged a demonstration in front of the Soviet Embassy today demanding immediate return of northern Japanese islands held by the Soviet Union since World War II.

Police said they arrested one demonstrator who threw a homemade smoke shell into the embassy compound. There were no injuries or damage to embassy buildings, police said.

50,000 Deserters?

TOKYO (AP) — The Viet Cong's Liberation Press Agency said today that more than 50,000 South Vietnamese soldiers have deserted since early 1968.

Before turning themselves over to the Communists, the agency said, the deserters killed or wounded 6,000 officers, including 47 Americans; destroyed 43 aircraft, including 32 jet fighters, and sank or damaged 11 war vessels.

Office Rocked

ATHENS (AP) — An explosion rocked Olympic Airways' midtown Athens office at noon today slightly injuring nine persons.

Police rushed to the scene as passengers waiting in for the bus to the airport streamed out of the waiting room.

The nationalities of the injured were not immediately known.

12 Bus Deaths

ECIJA, Spain (AP) — A bus and a brick-laden truck collided near here yesterday and police reported 12 persons died and 22 suffered severe injuries.

Most of the 39 persons on the bus were workers returning to Barcelona from vacations in southern Spain. Ecija is about 50 miles east of Sevilla.

Typhoon Deaths

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — At least six persons perished yesterday in Formosa as Typhoon Betty swept through the northern part of the island, police reported today. Three of the victims were miners buried in a coal mine which collapsed at Taoyuan, 20 miles west of Taipei.

THE DEVALUATED FRANC

A disgruntled Frenchman does figuratively to the franc what the French government did actually yesterday — devalue it. Following an emergency meeting, Finance Minister Giscard D'Estaing announced 12.5 per cent devaluation figure to the country in a television address. (See story page 1.) (UPI Cablephoto)

11 Injured In Bombings On Trains

ROME (AP) — Eleven persons were injured today in bomb attacks on nine trains at the peak of the Italian tourist season. Police launched a nationwide hunt for a chain of terrorist commandos.

Suspected of organizing the overnight bombings, from Naples to Venice, were opponents of the imminent settlement of the longtime Alto Adige region dispute between Italy and Austria.

First investigation of the explosions on main tourist lines from midnight to dawn indicated all the bombs were alike. It was believed they had been placed aboard passenger coaches on a prearranged plan by commandos in Venice, Rome, Pescara and perhaps other cities.

Two found intact and bits of others which exploded indicated the homemade bombs contained high explosive wired through a small battery to wristwatches, at least two of which were German-made.

The blasts came during light traffic hours after midnight. Some of the explosions were in empty coaches. There were eight explosions in seven trains. Bombs were found unexploded in two other trains.

Pastor's Son Quizzed In Slaying Of Girls

SEASIDE (AP) — The son of a Presbyterian minister was questioned today by San Jose police investigating the knife slaying of two teen-age girls.

Charles D. Johnston, 19, was arrested yesterday driving what police in the Monterey County community said was a stolen van bearing traces of blood. He was listed as the son of Rev. Elbert W. Johnston of Sacramento.

The van was reported stolen last June 26 from a Sacramento auto dealer, officers said.

Inside the van, police said they found traces of blood, a small quantity of marijuana, a yellow hair-ribbon and some license plates from a sports car reported stolen from an auto repair shop in Monterey.

The San Jose detectives said Johnston was questioned about the murders of Deborah Furlong, 14, and Kathy Snoozy, 15, Sunday.

Johnston was arrested early yesterday when police officer George Peay said he started chasing a sports car down the main street of Seaside.

Peay said the sports car driver stopped, pointed to the van, which had been moving along the street beside the sports car, and said: "He had a gun or something on me."

The policeman took off after the van, and the sports car driver disappeared. Peay caught up with the van, and the van driver tried to flee on foot but was quickly caught.

Police said traces of hair were found on a boot inside the van.

Witnesses had reported seeing a white van near where the stabbed bodies of the two girls were found. Police had checked out and cleared two vehicles of that type that were in the vicinity at the time of the killings.

The van stopped by Peay was blue, but he said the blue paint was still wet on the top.

The two girls were buried yesterday. Debbie in Los Gatos and Kathy in San Jose.

They had left their homes in the Sunrise subdivision by bicycle to picnic among the oak trees on a hill nearby last Sunday morning.

They were found that eveningt, dead beneath a tree. Chief of Detectives Barton Collins of San Jose said they had been knifed more than 400 times.

There was no blood on the ground and Collins believed they were killed inside a vehicle and their bodies dumped near the tree.

The girls' bicycles were chained to a fence at the foot of the hill and the lunches they carried were gone.

Johnston was scheduled for arraignment Monday morning on charges of possession of marijuana for sale, and possession of stolen license plates. His bail was set at $6,250 and he was assigned a public defender.

Isolation For Apollo 11 Team Could End Sometime Tomorrow

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Doctors plan today to take final blood samples from the Apollo 11 astronauts to determine whether the spacemen are free to leave their quarantine quarters.

If astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins are as healthy as they look, they'll be released from isolation late tomorrow or early Monday.

The 21-day quarantine period, which began the day Armstrong and Aldrin closed the hatch of the lunar landing vehicle on the moon, normally would end at 2 a.m. EDT Monday.

The decision on early departure will be up to the International Agency for Back Contamination, the group which set the quarantine period. Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' chief physician, will report to the committee members Sunday.

Berry will review the condition of the Apollo 11 pilots and the findings made during the examination of the rocks they brought back. No harmful organisms have been discovered in the moon soil.

Dr. Charles Fischer, space agency doctor isolated with the astronauts, reported: "We're highly encouraged with what we've seen so far. Everyone appears in excellent health."

Two previous blood samples taken from the astronauts showed nothing unusual.

The 20 persons with the astronauts include a 23-year-old woman biology technician who accidentally contacted lunar material while working with the rocks in another section of the building.

The astronauts spent most of yesterday working on the pilots' report of their historic mission in which Armstrong and Aldrin spent nearly 22 hours on the moon. They also looked at films of the flight and saw a movie, "The Chairman of the Board."

After their release, they will spend a day with their families. On Tuesday, they will hold a news conference here and then will start a whirlwind round of festivities honoring their feat.

A FIRST LOOK — Newsmen got their first look yesterday at a lunar rock sample at the Space Center in Houston, Tex. The rock was in a vacuum jar and behind a double glass so as not to be contaminated. The rock, a light gray stone covered with pits and thousands of sparkling crystals, was picked by the Apollo 11 astronauts, who may get out of their isolation chamber tomorrow. (UPI Telephotos)

READY, WILLING TO RUN, BUT NOT UNTIL '92

TORRANCE (UPI) — There may still be some question about who is in the running for the next presidential election, but one candidate has already announced for 1992.

Ed Segal, a 20-year-old junior at California State College, Dominguez Hills, made his announcement yesterday, saying, "I feel that it is time that this country had a candidate who was serious enough to declare himself so early."

Employees Of Pan Am Eye Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The giant jets of Pan American World Airways sat silent at airport terminals as striking Teamsters Union ground employees today considered a tentative contract agreement.

The nation's largest overseas airline said it would restore full service early Tuesday, provided the three-year contract is ratified by the union rank-and-file.

The settlement, with the help of federal mediators, was reached shortly after midnight. Details were not disclosed. Assistant Secretary of Labor William J. Usery Jr. said union bargainers "will recommend adoption of the proposed contract."

Ratification meetings are to be completed by Monday afternoon, Usery said.

Pan Am canceled all outbound flights early yesterday after 7,500 cargo handlers, ticket and reservations clerks and other office personnel walked off the job.

Travelers waiting to board planes for Europe, South America and the Far East scurried to book reservations with other carriers. Aside from long lines at ticket counters, little difficulty was reported at terminals throughout the country.

Pan Am said U.S.-bound flights were not affected. Cargo flights for the Vietnam War were exempted from strike action by the union.

The airline, which carries an average of 30,000 passengers a day on 460 flights, serves 119 cities, including San Francisco, in 81 countries.

Teamsters Local 732, designated in February as bargaining agent for the ground personnel, was authorized to strike with expiration of a 30-day cooling off period set by the National Mediation Board.

The union had demanded for its first contract a 16 per cent annual wage increase over three years, a shorter work week, improved pensions, vacations and other benefits for its members who now average $3.30 an hour.

Four Slain Before Man Kills Himself

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)— A man living on a church campground, enraged over attempts to evict him, went on a two-hour shooting spree yesterday and killed four people before apparently committing suicide.

Two of the victims were his parents.

Charles Haygood, 34, went on the rampage after he learned officials of the local Church of God parish had called a meeting with the sheriff to discuss ways of evicting him and his parents from their small home on the campground owned by the church.

He had been living on the campgrounds for about four months and although unemployed, Haygood managed to come regularly with the $25 a month rent.

Drowning Inquest Scheduled Sept. 3

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — A court inquest is to open Sept. 3 into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, drowned July 18 when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car ran off a bridge into a tidal pool.

The date was set by Judge James A. Boyle yesterday after a meeting with Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis, who invoked the law that allows district attorneys to "require" courts to conduct inquests in accidental deaths.

Dinis said he called for the inquest to determine positively the cause of the death and the circumstances surrounding the accident.

Judge Boyle met with Dinis in his chambers, then announced the date in open court.

He said the law allows him to hold the inquiry behind closed doors, but said he had decided to open it to accredited newsmen.

Dinis had said earlier he planned to call Kennedy as a witness along with others who attended the cookout party the night of July 18 on Chappaquiddick Island.

But he said yesterday that Kennedy was not among the 15 witnesses he plans to call. He said he would not rule out the possibility of calling the senator, however.

Kennedy has said he will cooperate with an inquest in every way possible. He cancelled a planned trip to Europe to be on hand if needed.

Dinis has spoken with Pennsylvania authorities about exhuming the body of Miss Kopechne for an autopsy. She was buried in her home town, Plymouth, Pa.

When Miss Kopechne's body was recovered from the sunken Kennedy car the morning after the crash, she was pronounced dead of drowning, and an aide in Dinis' office released the body without an autopsy.

COUNTERS CLEANED

Novel's Sales Zoom Since Hoax Disclosed

NEW YORK (AP) — Sales of "Naked Came the Stranger" have zoomed since columnist Michael McGrady disclosed that he and 24 friends wrote it as a gag, to show that a sex novel doesn't have to be good to sell.

The day after the hoax was revealed, orders flooded the publisher, and the second printing was doubled quickly to 20,000 copies. Bookstore managers who still have copies say it is selling faster than Jacqueline Susann's "The Love Machine" and other books that "Stranger" was written to satirize.

The book, written under the pseudonym "Penelope Ashe," had been selling well even before the hoax was disclosed, bookstore managers say. McGrady said he was told it was just below the best-seller lists, and that he "fought for weeks" to keep the story bottled up, hoping it would prove his point by showing up on the top 10 before the truth got out.

But Wednesday he admitted that he had dreamed up the basic plot and that 24 friends, mostly writers and editors on the Long Island newspaper Newsday, had written different chapters without knowing what the others were doing. "True excellence in writing will be blue-pencilled into oblivion," he warned them.

With the hoax revealed, 7,200 orders flooded the publisher, Lyle Stuart, Inc., before 11:30 a.m. Thursday. A second printing of 10,000 copies had been planned, but Robert Solomon said, "We jumped it to 15,000. Then half an hour later we went to 20,000."

'Bishop' Says Accused Co-ed Slayer Has Repented 'Sins'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A county prosecutor says a "cursory investigation" will be made of a former mental patient who claims to be a bishop and who was allowed by jail officials to visit John Collins, a student charged with slaying a co-ed.

Joseph Pasci, 62, said yesterday that he had talked with Collins and that "he had repented, come to God with his sins, laid himself before God and asked for forgiveness."

Pasic said he did not ask Collins to specify his "sins."

Collins, 22, has been held under maximum security for more than a week on a charge of strangling Karen Sue Beineman, 18, an Eastern Michigan University freshman, in late July.

Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey of Washtenaw County said Collins authorized Pasic's visit last Monday and state law requires the sheriff to let a minister see a prisoner if the prisoner is willing. He said Pasic has not been allowed to return because Collins, who was reared a Roman Catholic, said "he does not want to talk with him again."

County Prosecutor William Delhay said an investigation would be made. He said Pasic was committed to Ypsilanti State Hospital in 1961 and was released recently.

Pasic says he is Bishop Bartholomew in the Doukhobors, a religious group that was formed in Russia and has been active in western Canada since the early 1900s.

Authorities, meanwhile, are seeking to determine whether there is any connection between Miss Beineman's death and those of six other young women in southeast Michigan in the last two years.

Andrew Manuel Jr., 25-year-old factory worker wanted for questioning in the slayings, was returned to Michigan last night from Phoenix, Ariz., where he was arrested Wednesday.

Manuel faced court arraignment today in Ypsilanti on a larceny charge in connection with a trailer that authorities said he rented in Michigan and left in Salinas.

Officials said Manuel made the California trip with Collins. Manuel agreed to waive extradition yesterday on a federal fugitive warrant in connection with the larceny charge.

Tankers account for one-third of all the merchant shipping in the world, says the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Bill To End Operation Of Bolinas Panel To Governor

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to carry out the dissolution of the Bolinas Harbor District and turn its jurisdiction of the lagoon to the County of Marin cleared its last legislative hurdle last nignt and has been sent to the governor for his signature.

The final action came with Assembly concurrence with minor amendments by the Senate.

The bill, introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, at the request of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, requires the county to submit plans for the lagoon within three years to the State Lands Commission. If the commission rejects the plans, the lagoon would revert to state jurisdiction.

The bill includes provision for a possible harbor of refuge, an amendment to the original bill urged by the California Marine Parks and Harbors Association which opposed the bill till so amended.

Marin's Plans For Fire Taxing District Crumble

The County of Marin has learned that its plans to create a taxing district for fire protection in areas now served by the county fire department have crumbled.

Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows has reported to the board of supervisors that, under the state Public Resources Code, timber lands capable of being harvested cannot be included in such districts.

Barrows said the restriction, brought to the county's attention by the state Division of Forestry, would exclude major portions of West Marin from joining a fire protection district.

Because of this, Barrows will recommend to the supervisors Tuesday that plans to proceed with formation of a taxing district be stopped.

The restriction against harvestable timer lands is owed to a successful effort by lumber interests against paying special fire taxes on their huge land holdings. Many large lumber companies have their own fire equipment, backed up by forestry division firefighters.

The Marin Local Agency Formation Commission had approved formation of the district July 10, recommending that the board hold a public hearing. The matter would then go to the polls.

Barrows said a fire protection district would upgrade service in certain areas without tax burden on all communities in the district and enable possible consolidation of some fire districts in Marin.

He recommended to supervisors that the possibility of corrective legislation in the resources code be explored. He explained that county staff had missed the code restriction during earlier review.

ing the meeting would cause a disruption among the council. He said that other boards notified all members, and that leaving most councilmen in the dark gave him "an uneasy feeling."

"Dammit, something should be done to let her know she isn't running the whole show," Brunner said of Mrs. Putnam.

"There's so much criticism about the secrecy of the council meeting, it seems kind of funny to do something like this," he said. Brunner said he felt the council should win the confidence of the voter to get bond elections passed and that public confidence is not inspired by secret sessions.

Vice Mayor John W. Cavanagh Jr. said he had no knowledge of the meeting. "All I know about it was what I read in the Independent-Journal," he said. "I was never consulted about it."

He said that such matters tend to divide the forces on the council and make the passage of bond issues even harder. "It kind of gets you shook up," he said.

Mrs. Putnam said, "I didn't feel it was absolutely necessary to mention the meeting to the council since the session was just to explore the future of bond elections in the city."

She said she called the meeting because each taxing agency should have an awareness of what must be put before the people because it is the same taypayer who will be asked to support the different elections.

Mrs. Putnam said no one in the group was speaking as a representative of his respective board, but only as individuals. She said she felt the only reason that secrecy was being charged was because the meeting was held at city hall. "It wouldn't have been different than the councilmen getting together in a coffee shop," she said.

"We weren't bypassing the council, but if some of them feel that way — well, that's life," Mrs. Putnam said.

Brunner said he expected to bring up the joint meeting at the council study session Monday at 7:30 p.m.

RETIRE

wards," he said.

He recalled one of his first duties was making out the payroll, by hand, for the approximately 70 city employees. Today there are about 220 employees and machines.

He also began attending council meetings "so I would know what was going on" and figures he has attended at least 1,725 since then. "You can imagine how tired of going to council meetings I am," he said.

However, that faithful attendance has made him a fount of information in the city and what he doesn't know immediately he can find quickly in the records.

It's also given him a somewhat proprietary interest in city affairs, marked by occasional pronouncements at the meetings. "He always says exactly what he thinks," a fellow employee noted.

His council meeting nights and working days almost over, Cornwell is becoming excited about the future.

He and his wife, the former Myrtle Jepsen, daughter of a long-time San Rafael family, plan to move immediately to the shores of Knockti Bay on Clear Lake.

They've been going there for years, enjoying fishing and boating, staying in their small trailer. A new, larger mobile home is expected to arrive soon to become their permanent residence.

Cornwell, long a serious amateur photographer and holder of several awards, plans to devote much more time to his hobby.

He's been making pictures for years and does his own darkroom work.

He's even tried his hand at travelogues and recalled one of Death Valley when he drove more than 1,000 miles in the valley in two trips there.

When he's tired of fishing and photography, he will travel.

In between, it's a good bet he will keep up with what's happening.

"I've always been interested in anything new that happens," he said, recalling how transportation has gone from the horse and buggy to moon rockets in his lifetime, and how San Rafael has expanded from its valley out toward the bay and over the hill to the north.

Monagan, R-Tracy, finally flexed all his party's muscle and added one Democratic vote to push through the adjournment resolution, 42-17. The Senate already had adopted it.

But when midnight came, both houses literally "stopped the clock" and continued passing bills. The Assembly called it quits at 12:40 a.m. and the Senate followed at 1:29 a.m.

Unlike the rest of the hostile seven-month-long session, the end resembled a mutual admiration society with Democrats and Republicans publicly praising each other.

The Senate was not quite as cordial as the Assembly, however. The upper house in recent months had gone throught a traumatic "young turk" purge of the "old guard."

After the final gavel had fallen, new Senate president pro tem Howard Way, R-Exeter, cited "the change of leadership and the change in the power structure" as the most significant event of the bitter session.

Reagan Gets School Tax Ceiling Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill maintaining the existing school tax rate ceilings moved to Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk today over protests that the limits don't work. (See another legislative story, page 1 and Sacramento Summary, page 20.)

The Assembly passed the measure by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach, 42-9, late last night after an unsuccessful attempt to kill it.

The Legislature passed a bill in 1967 permitting school districts to set their own tax rates without voter approval after July 1, 1971. If signed by the governor, Burke's bill would repeal that law and maintain the present ceilings.

Burke's bill initially would have delayed enactment of the law permitting districts to set their own rates for two years—but it was amended in the Senate to repeal the entire law.

Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, and other supporters of the bill said school districts would raise taxes once the ceilings were lifted.

But Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said, "I think we're fooling ourselves and the people when we adopt limits that we know won't work."

He said there were 44 tax overrides — raising of rates by a vote of district residents — this year "and if we put a limit on it we'll have 44 overrides again.

"Much more sensible, my friends . . . would be an expense limit that is realistic, not a rate limit that is unrealistic and unworkable," Bagley said.

ing power of the underprivileged . . . while allowing the big corporations to increase their efforts even further without much effort."

The devaluation announcement, which stunned European financial circles, gives foreign tourists more for their dollar and makes French goods cheaper in world trade.

Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing told a nationwide television audience that alternatives to devaluation would have been bankruptcy or deflation leading to massive unemployment.

The decision was taken initially by President Pompidou, Premier Jacques Delmas and Giscard d'Estaing, who are emerging as a kind of triumvirate following the disappearance of former President Charles de Gaulle from the political scene.

Pompidou called in several Cabinet ministers for a one-hour meeting today to discuss government austerity measures and agricultural prices after the devaluation.

The new value of the franc, effective Monday, will be 17.5 U.S. cents as compared to the present 20 cents. The dollar becomes officially equivalent to 5.55419 francs instead of 4.96706.

The official devaluation figure is 12.5 per cent — that is how much a Frenchman will lose when he trades his francs for dollars and how much a foreign tourist will gain when he trades other currencies for francs.

Washington and other foreign governments were quick to say that the French move would not affect their currencies.

London said the pound sterling would not be devalued and Bonn said the Deutsche mark would not be revalued upward.

perior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner in Marin Superior Court today. FBI officials said a federal complaint would be filed against Mason Monday.

Mason is accused of walking out of the bank at 830 Third Street with $1,348 in a paper bag after threatening a teller with what police today said was a light bulb simulating a gun in his pocket.

He and another man were seen leaving the area in a white sports car after the holdup.

The driver has not yet been located.

Plea Date Set In Grand Theft Case

Dan Hayden Willoughby, 30, and Marilyn Pearl Robbins, 25, both of San Rafael, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of grand theft and forgery at the Emporium in Northgate. They were ordered to appear Aug. 18 to plead to the charges.

The two are charged with using stolen credit cards June 30 to buy $280 worth of merchandise.

non-working," he said. "To families with dependent children headed by a father, as well as those headed by a mother; and a basic federal minimum would be provided, the same in every state."

Every recipient, except mothers with children under age 6, would have to register with the employment service and accept either training or a job to qualify for aid.

The day-care centers would both encourage mothers to work and provide them employment, the President said. In addition recipients would receive a $30 a month bonus for job training. They could also keep the first $60 a month of outside earnings with no reduction in aid, plus 50 cents of every dollar beyond that.

President Nixon described these benefits for the working poor: "A family of five in which the father earns $2,000 a year—which is the hard fact of life for many families—would get family assistance payments of $1,260 for a total income of $3,260. A family of seven earning $3,000 a year would have its income raised to $4,360."

President Nixon described the "New Federalism" as "turning the tide of power and responsibility that has flowed to Washington for 30 years and giving states a greater measure of responsibility—not as a way of avoiding problems, but as a better way of solving problems."

He used the shift in manpower programs to emphasize his point.

Youth Booked In Concealed Weapon Probe

An 18-year-old Novato youth was booked into Marin County Jail early today following an altercation with a police officer at Denny's Restaurant at 7339 Redwood Highway, Novato police reported.

Booked on investigation of carrying a concealed weapon and assaulting an officer was Michael Robert Rundle of 2012 Center Road, police reported. Rundle remains in jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Police said they went to restaurant at 1:08 a.m. following a disturbance complaint. Rundle at first refused to be checked for weapons, but later police found a billy club on him, they reported. Further details were not available.

Boy Fractures Leg In Fall From Bike

John Meyer, 6, of 9 Eucalyptus Lane, San Rafael, was reported in good condition today in Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with a fractured leg suffered yesterday when he fell off a bicycle.

Meyer, son of Peter Meyer, assistant county clerk for elections, was riding on the back of a bike driven by James W. Kubum, 11, of 39 Mary Street, San Rafael, last night when it swerved to avoid a car turning off Grand Avenue to Second Avenue, which the boys were crossing. The bicycle and auto

Meredith Spends Two Days In Jail

NEW YORK (UPI)—James Meredith, the civil rights crusader who integrated the University of Mississippi, was released from jail yesterday after serving a two-day term for harassing tenants in a Bronx apartment house he owned.

Meredith, who was convicted of the offense in June, was sentenced by Criminal Court Judge J. Howard Rossbach to "time served"—The two days he had spent in jail since he submitted to arrest Wednesday night.

Kennel Club Sets Obedience Classes

The Pacheco Kennel Club of Novato will sponsor conformation and obedience classes starting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in Olive School, according to publicity chairman Lois Johnston.

Lynn Woods will teach the conformation class and Ce Ce Manning the obedience class during the eight week course. Further information may be obtained from the club at P.O. Box 1049, Novato.

In Fair Condition

Wayne F. Lockabey, 17, of 1028 Los Gamos Road, San Rafael, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital after he had taken an overdose of barbiturates and alcohol yesterday, sheriff's deputies reported. Lockabey was taken to the hospital at 7:10 p.m.

Two Hanoi Units Mauled In Big Raid

SAIGON (AP)—Two North Vietnamese units were mauled by bullets, rockets, artillery and bombs today after they apparently were driven from hiding north of Saigon by the biggest B52 raids in five weeks.

Of the more than 100 North Vietnamese caught in the open, 64 were killed and six were captured, a military spokesman said. There were no American casualties.

Elements of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, the 11th Armored Cavalry and the South Vietnamese 9th Division were chasing the remnants in an area of the Cambodian border called "The Fish Hook" about 70 miles north of Saigon. Only light contact was reported.

Up to 50 of the Stratofortresses had laid a carpet of bombs on suspected enemy troop concentrations 65 to 75 miles north of Saigon. Then the North Vietnamese were spotted moving out.

They were attacked immediately by fighter-bombers and helicopters as U.S. and South Vietnamese infantrymen hurried into the area.

Intelligence officers were questioning the six prisoners to determine if they were simply trying to escape the B52s' bombs or were moving into position for strikes in the border provinces next to Cambodia.

A spokesman for the air cavalrymen said the two units had been identified as elements of the North Vietnamese First and Ninth divisions, which have been operating in the area from bases in Cambodia.

The size of the B52 raids—the sky giants dropped 1,000-1,500 tons of bombs—reflected allied concern over enemy infiltrations in the region in the eighth week of a battlefield lull.

Girl Reports Two Attacks

A 16-year-old Detroit girl, visiting in Marin City, was raped twice today, sheriff's deputies reported.

Officers are investigating the case but no arrests have been made, they said.

The girl told deputies she danced with a youth, about 17 years old, at a Marin City party and that at about 12:45 a.m. he drove her in his car to Kappas Yacht Harbor in Sausalito and attacked her. He then drove her to San Francisco, where she was attacked again, deputies were told.

The girl told officers whe was then taken back to Marin City to the apartment of friends where she is staying.

Wrist Sprained In Auto Crash

Merritt James Wider, 46, of 15 Chickasaw Court, Corte Madera, was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for a sprained left wrist following a three-car accident at 10:10 p.m. on the Golden Gate Bridge.

California Highway Patrol officers said a car driven by Frederick Eugene Buck, 50, of Honolulu, and a third car which left the scene of the accident were also involved in the mishap.

No further details of the accident were available today.

Victims Of Wreck In Good Condition

Two Navy men were reported in good condition today at Hamilton Air Force Base hospital following an accident at 6:15 p.m. yesterday when their car skidded on gravel on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near the southern entrance to Point Reyes Beach and rolled over a bank, California Highway Patrolmen reported.

Driver Freddie H. Duncan, 19, a student at the guided missile school at Mare Island, Vallejo, suffered a broken left leg and his passenger, Richard L. Hardin, 20, of Vallejo, scalp cuts.

Charge Is Dropped

A charge against John Edward Brown, 19, of Petaluma, of stealing a car June 2 in San Rafael was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

OBITUARIES

John B. Poncia Dies At 86

John B. Poncia, 86, a Tomales dairy rancher for 61 years, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

A native of Italy, Poncia moved to the United States in 1901 and started his own dairy ranch in Tomales, known as the Poncia Ranch. He worked on it until his retirement in 1961 when he moved to Cotati and resided at 7405 Derby Lane up until his death.

The ranch remains in the family with Poncia's son, Eugene, living there now.

Poncia was a member of Aerie 333, Eagles Lodge, Petaluma.

He is survived by his wife, Mary; four sons, Emil of Rohnert Park, John of Sebastopol, and Eugene and Andrew Poncia, both of Tomales; four daughters, Mary Mather of Santa Rosa, Margaret Matteri of Marshall, Amy Ransom of San Leandro and Theresa Gobbi of Tomales.

Also surviving him are two brothers, Angelo Poncia of Fallon and Martin Poncia of Tomales, as well as 22 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Requiem Mass will be celebrated for Poncia at 11 a.m. Tuesday, at Our Lady of the Assumption Church, Tomales. Rosary will be recited at 8:30 p.m. Monday at the Sorensen Mortuary, Petaluma. Entombment will be at Tomales Catholic Cemetery, Tomales.

The family prefers that tributes be made in contributions to Our Lady of the Assumption Church, Tomales.

INGWER BAHNSEN

Ingwer P. Bahnsen, long-time Cotati poultry man, died yesterday of a heart attack at his home at 10266 Redwood Highway North. He was 72.

Born in Germany, he came to the U.S. in 1923, working on a farm in Iowa until moving to California in 1930.

He worked for many years on the Arfsten poultry ranch, later operating his own ranch for about eight years, until 1961 when he joined Rief and Brody chicken producers. He retired three years ago.

He was a member of the Hermann Sons Lodge of Petaluma.

He is survived by his wife, Anna Bahnsen, and a brother, Nicolay Bahnsen of Burbank.

A service will be conducted by the lodge at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the garden chapel of the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma.

Private funeral and inurnment will be Monday morning.

ISABEL KRIEG

Isabel Ann Krieg of 118 Acacia Avenue, Larkspur, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. She was 57.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived in Marin for 50 years.

Survivors are her son, Robert S. Krieg of Larkspur; her father, George Gambarini of Palo Alto, and a sister, Mrs. Zelma Cordone of San Anselmo.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Patrick's Church, Larkspur, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

LAURA ROBIN

Laura Ann Robin, 13-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Robin of 24 Nave Court, Novato, died yesterday at a local hospital.

Death was attributed to natural causes but an autopsy is to be made, Coroner's deputy Richard W. Madigan reported.

Funeral is pending at Keaton's Mortuary, Novato.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl Of 19 Should Be Allowed To Stay Out Past Midnight

DEAR HELEN:

My parents wouldn't let me date until I was 17, and then they put big restrictions on me. I could never stay to the end of a dance, or see the last of a movie, because I had to be home by 11:30, even on Saturday nights. Now that I'm 19, I still have to be in before midnight. And then submit to a grilling, as if I were a kid, and not working full time.

The other evening we had a flat tire and I wasn't anywhere near a telephone. When my boy friend brought me home at 12:30, my Dad wasn't home. Mom said he was out looking for me!

He came back about fifteen minutes later and, Helen, you won't believe this, but he was carrying his gun. If he had found me and the boy, no telling what he might have done.

My parents are insisting that I get a physical examination, as they are sure the worst happened.

I can swear it didn't, but if this keeps up, I'm going to leave. Do you blame me? These are just a few examples. I could tell you worse. — JAILED IN

DEAR J.I.:

I can't blame you for wanting to break jail. A girl of 19, with a full time job, is ready for her own apartment. Start looking! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Don't you think 15 is old enough to have casual dates with boys, like meet them at chaperoned dances, and have them over to see you? My folks won't agree with you, but I wish you'd say so anyway. — CAN'T CONVINCE THEM.

DEAR C.C.T.:

Consider it said. And I hope your folks soon agree with me! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I haven't seen much from adopted children in your column. I'm 17, and I have a wonderful family. I'm so grateful they chose me.

When I was young, my mother cut out a poem in the paper which reads as follows:

Not flesh of my flesh,
Not bone of my bone.
But still miraculously my own.
I'll never forget for a single minute,
You didn't grow under my my heart, but in it!

I keep this in my purse with her picture, always.

My adopted parents are the best. Now that they raised me, they've got another problem. My sister was killed in an automobile accident and they've taken guardianship of her little son. I know they'll do a great job for him, too.

It takes a special kind of couple to be as great as my parents are. I hope I can be that kind of parent, too.—BOBBI

Man Loses His Temper

The average man loses his temper about twice as frequently as the average woman, reveals an investigation of anger at Columbia University.

The report indicates that the average man loses his temper six times a week, against about three tantrums for the average woman.

It was also noted that while women tend to lose their temper when someone has done or said something they consider disagreeable, men seem to take personal grievances rather calmly. Instead the stronger sex tends to get upset over things: flat tires, faulty razors, traffic jams and so on.

Pet Birds

If you have a pet bird, wash his drinking cup daily in hot soap or detergent suds. Rinse and fill with fresh water.

Julie Hanrahan Becomes Bride Of Michael Kelly

Julie Hanrahan became the bride of Michael Kelly last Saturday in a ceremony at St. Rita's Catholic Church in Fairfax.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Hanrahan of San Anselmo are the bride's parents.

Mary Hanrahan was her sister's maid of honor. Another sister, Katie Hanrahan, Gail Sivori of San Anselmo and Laurene Pelleriti of Fairfax were bridesmaids.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother-in-law James Shea of San Francisco. Gary Griffin of Belmont, also the bridegroom's brother-in-law; the bride's brother, Tim Hanrahan; and John Kennedy of San Francisco ushered.

A reception was held at the Non-Commissioned Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base. Following a wedding trip to Yosemite National Park the couple will live in San Francisco.

The bride is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and Grace Ball Secretarial School in San Francisco. She is employed by Occidental Life Insurance Co. in San Francisco.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kelly of San Francisco. His sisters are Mrs. James Shea and Mrs. Gary Griffin. The bridegroom is a graduate of Reardon High School in San Francisco and City College of San Francisco. He attends San Francisco State College and is employed by the Post Office in San Francisco.

Louise Skowronek To Be Bride In January

LOUISE SKOWRONEK

The engagement of Louise Skowronek and William (Bill) R. Koenig was announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Skowronek of Novato at the home of the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. Stephen Skowronek in Amsterdam, N. Y.

The Skowronek family and Bill were in New York on vacation.

Louise is the sister of Cheryl and Joanne Skowronek of Novato. She was graduated from Novato High School, attended College of Marin and received a B. A. degree in history at Sonoma State College. The future bride will be working toward her teaching credential this fall. She is employed with Dean's Rexall Drug in Novato.

Bill is the son of Mrs. Alex Koenig of Reno, Nev., and Joseph Osborn of Alameda. He is the brother of Hansel and Gretchen Koenig of Reno and Mrs. Charles Hoag of Novato. Mrs. Irene Osborn of Alameda is his grandmother. He was graduated from Novato High School and is employed with Marin Landscape Materials in Novato.

The couple plan to be married on Jan. 25.

Suellen Riley Is Married

Suellen Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Riley of Pt. Reyes Station, and Michael J. Alberigi, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Alberigi, were married last Saturday at Sacred Heart Church in Olema.

The bride's sister, Sheila, was the maid of honor. James Alberigi Jr., brother of the bridegroom of Bolinas, w as the best man and the usher was Tobias Giacomimi Jr., of Inverness.

After a reception at San Geronimo Country Club the couple will travel in Southern California and then return to San Rafael to live.

Suellen was graduated from San Domonico School for Girls and attended Dominican College. Her sisters are Mrs. Timothy Reardon of San Francisco, Mrs. James Schnabel of San Rafael, Sheila, Debbi, and Brigid Riley of Pt. Reyes. She has a brother John of Pt. Reyes and Rory in Vietnam.

The bridegroom is employed by Murphys Inc. of Oakland. He was graduated from Tomales High School and attended College of Marin. His two sisters are Beverly of Pt. Reyes and Mrs. James Gibson of Bolinas.

Moving Day Needn't Be Traumatic

AP NEWSFEATURE

To the adventurous, a move may bring the challenge of things to come — a new locale, a new home, new friends, new pastimes. But to the insecure homemaker, the prospect of a move can be paralyzing.

The key to a smooth move lies in the planning. Here are some hints to help make moving day as painless as possible.

For a long distance move, all moving companies advise professional packing services. If it's a local move and you're doing some of the packing, be sure the job is well done. Cartons used by professional packers can be obtained at small cost from the mover.

When the moving estimator calls, be sure to show him all articles that will be a part of the move. Check objects in garage or attic that otherwise may bob to surface only on moving day.

Check in advance to make sure you understand the mover's liability under basic transportation rates and that the liability is sufficient to fully protect your shipment.

Get rid of unwanted belongings before moving. Don't pay to move them, only to dispose of them at the other end.

As moving day draws near, tend to the neighborhood necessities: inform the utilities, arrange to stop milk and newspaper deliveries, close checking and savings accounts, close local charge accounts, notify post office to forward mail and pick up or arrange to have forwarded important school and medical records.

On moving day, don't be in the way. Be available if the moving crew has a question. But it's to your benefit to keep children and dogs out of the way, and let the crew get about its work.

Paint Brush

The National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association advises the best way to hold a paint brush is to grasp the brush comfortably near the base of the handle. Hold it rather loosely. Do not bear down hard on a brush, but exert only enough pressure to make the bristles flex slightly toward the tip.

Permanent Pleat Before Hemming Sheer Fabrics

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I just love the sheer pleated fabrics that are being used for dressy clothes and am fascinated with the way the hem sort of ruffles out. The dress I tried to copy was very expensive, so I decided to make one.

I had my fabric permanent pleated but was so disappointed when the hem didn't curl out but was pressed in very sharp and tight. Will pressing change the appearance or did I do something wrong when I had it pleated?

MARY C.

DEAR MARY:

My guess is that you hemmed the sheer fabric before you took it to be permanent pleated. If you did this, you would naturally have a sharp look at the hem because it would have all been pleated together. What you should have done in order to get the soft ruffled look at the hem is to actually roll the hem after the fabric was pleated.

I think you can still change your dress since you would only have to make it about ½ inch shorter than it is now. Cut off the original rolled hem and re-do it. I can see your painful expression about having to do it twice, but I think the end result will be worth the extra work.

Evelyn Spooner, Worcester, Mass., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her suggestion:

"I find it helpful to use white thread in the bobbin when using colored thread in the needle when I do my stay stitching. In this way I can quickly tell which is the wrong side of the material, the white thread being on that side and the color on the right side. This, in most every case, is a real gem, saves lots of time and trouble since so many fabrics look almost the same on both sides."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have been wanting to make a washable double knit, but a friend told me the only double knit to buy is a washable dacron and polyester combination. The only knits I have found at our stores are marked 100 per cent polyester. Is one kind more desirable than another? I'm at a complete loss with the new fabrics.

MRS. R. O. N.

DEAR MRS. R. O. N.:

I have found equal satisfaction with many of the better quality washable double knits. I have purposely noticed the content of some of the ones we have actually used and find they use the following descriptions. Arnel and nylon polyester, 100 per cent polyester or dacron polyester, and I can honestly say that they are all comparable in washability as well as wearability.

Naturally, there are many qualities of these synthetics just as there are many qualities of wool, cotton and silk. A better quality fabric cannot be compared with one that looks the same and might have the same content but definitely not the same quality. You usually get what you pay for in fabrics as well as any product.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have noticed that on so many patterns, whether there are facings or sleeves, the seam allowance is larger under the arm. I find this very confusing when you try to get the facing to fit the armhole after stitching it on this deeper seamline. What is the reason for the large underarm seam allowance?

MRS. J. L. O.

DEAR MRS. J. L. O.:

The reason you have two seamlines under the arm is because you use one for the sleeveless version and the other when you apply sleeves. I have found this to be a very confusing detail for beginners to understand. A sleeveless dress must have a higher armhole than the one used for sleeves.

Carefully mark your fabric on the correct stitching line for whichever version you are going to use. Be very careful if you cut the pattern itself. I have seen some women cut the pattern on the stitching line instead of cutting it ⅝ inch above the stitching line. If you have stitched the armhole on the correct stitching line, the facing should fit perfectly.

Eunice Farmer tells you how to set-in sleeves in her helpful booklet "All About Sleeves." To obtain your illustrated copy send 10 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Rita Lago's Engagement To Les Furnanz Is Told

The engagement of Rita Therese Lago to James Leslie Furnanz Jr. was announced at a party at the San Anselmo home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lago.

RITA LAGO

The future bride is the sister of Mrs. Richard Caldwell and Carleton Lago of Novato, Marcia Lago of Hollister and Phillip and Marietta Lago of San Anselmo. A graduate of Marin Catholic High School, she is a senior at Dominican College and employed at Macy's in San Rafael.

Mr. and Mrs. James Leslie Furnanz of San Bruno are the future bridegroom's parents. He is the brother of Carol, Michael, Lynn and Laura Furnanz, all of San Bruno. Les, as the future bridegroom is known, is a graduate of Capuchino High School in San Bruno and the University of San Francisco and is doing graduate work in electrical engineering at the University of California at Davis.

A wedding next summer is planned.

West Germans Seek Mates Through Classified Ads

MAINZ, GERMANY (GF) — For 230 years, Germans have been advertising in newspapers for marriage partners and the ads now form a standard part of reading in the claassified section. They are also fairly effective — about 350,000 marriages in West Germany, two per cent of the total, result from contracts through such ads, a survey recently revealed.

But the tenor of the ads has changed through the years and an analysis of the change forms the basis of a new sociological investigation by Dr. Peter Kaupp, of the University of Mainz' sociology department.

The first marriage ad appeared in a small Frankfurt paper called the "Question and Classified News" in the 18th century. It was placed by a lady and, in stilted German, said "honest woman of single status and good shape seeks marriage partner."

The emphasis now is on the qualities of the partner being sought with a minimum of words wasted about the person placing the ad. As such the ads are able to give an insight into the type of men and women considered ideal marriage partners today.

Thus, a few years ago and especially just after World War II, qualities such as "reliable, honest, industrious, thrifty and with means" stood in the foreground. Today human virtues weigh heavier than material security.

The picture marriage-seeking women give in ads of the man they'd like to find most frequently includes three qualities: strong character, good humor and intelligence. Less in demand these days are maturity, solid position, understanding and overly demanding.

Men who advertise place good humor at the top of the list in the women they're seeking. Then come "tolerant" and

"with vitality." Men say they are looking for nice, charming and natural women. "Good housewife," "fond of children" and a "happy family life" are less in demand among today's men.

Another changing characteristic of marriage ads revolves around the sex placing them. At the turn of his century, most of such ads were put in papers by men. Now women account for the lion's share — men place only about 38.6 per cent.

The average age of people advertising for a partner: 37.1 years among women, 39.3 years among men. According to Kaupp, this suggests most of these placing the ads are people who've looked around for partners for a long time without success and turn to the classified method as a last resort.

Pre-Natal Classes To Begin Wednesday Night

A series of six classes for expectant parents on the care of the mother and the new-born infant will begin at Marin General Hospital on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The series is sponsored by the Hospital's Dept. of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and the Marin Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Called "PICEP," which stands for "Prenatal Instruction Classes for Expectant Parents," the series will be held the second and fourth Wednesday of each month. Classes will be one hour long and will be open to all prenatal patients and their husbands.

The instructors will be Dr. John Binckley, Dr. Robert Conner, Dr. John Degenhardt, Dr. Joseph Guthrie, Dr. William Langford, Dr. Austin Lea, Dr. Clarence Lesko, Dr. Warren Rogers, Dr. Edward Sargent and Dr. Donald Wilcox, plus two Red Cross representatives. Carol Ladrech, R.N., and Faith Eckhoff, R.N.

The first class, to be held at 8 p.m. in the Coral Room at Marin General, will cover "Anatomy and Physiology of Pregnancy" and the "Layette for the Baby."

On Aug. 27 the topics will be "Prenatal Management" and "Formula Preparation and Bottle Feeding," to be followed on Sept. 10 with "Diet and Exercise in Pregnancy" and "Breast Feeding and the Diet of a Nursing Mother."

On Sept. 24 the subject will be "The Course of Labor" and "The New Baby — What He's Like and How to Care for Him;" on Oct. 8 "Birth of a Baby" and "Bath Demonstration," and on Oct. 22 "Postpartum Care" and "Growth and Development During the First Year."

The course will begin on Nov. 12.

There is no charge for the series. Those interested in attending may telephone Marin General Hospital Dept. of Obstetrics.

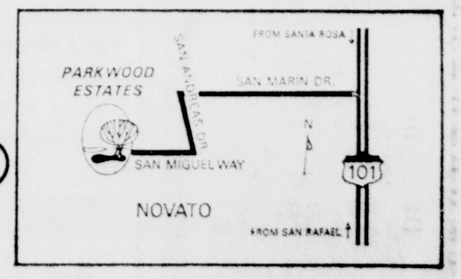
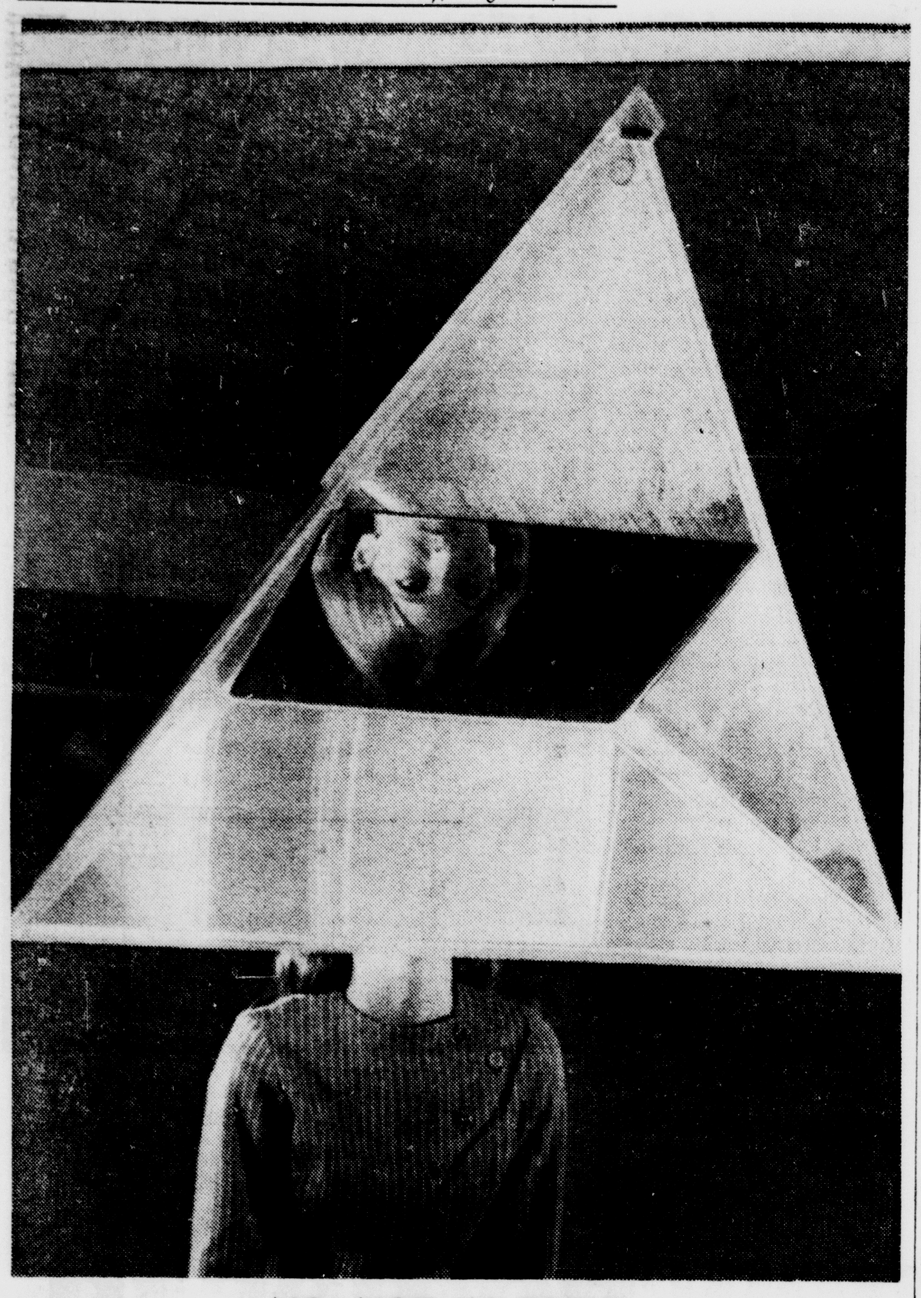
BOISE CASCADE BUILDING CO.





NO, NOT IN ORBIT

Charles Ross of San Francisco builds sculptures that he wants people to look through. He's unhappy if you study the sculptures themselves because they are built to peer through at people or objects in the environment. This tetrahedron appears to take off Robin Lyell's head and float it upside down.

DRAMA REVIEW

Audience Plays Big Role At Melodrama

By GARY TISCHLER

The best thing about the Terra Linda Players' production of the old-time melodrama "Pure As the Driven Snow," which opened at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts last night, is the audience.

The small group of lively people who watched this venture into an ancient, not so honorable and slightly ridiculous relic of American dramatic art, really got with it, perhaps spurred on by an ample supply of champagne and pretzels.

That is what is supposed to happen with a thing like this, although the audience was a lot more inventive than the production. They supplied some beautiful punch lines and counterpoints to the marvelously complicated and beautifully dumb plot, which I refuse to go into. Other than to say that it had the classic array of characters — snarling villain, detergent-white heroine, brawny, good and stupid hero, wicked temptress, a baby in swaddling clothes, etc.

I will say that it could have been better, and for this I blame the male members of the cast. To make the melodrama a success, it has to be a total exercise in exaggeration. There is a certain art involved in making entertainment entertaining. It is not good enough for the hero to stick his chest out, for the villain to simply walk around like the hunchback of Notre Dame. You have to be able to hear them.

Hal King as Mortimer Frothingham, the villain, simply wasn't nasty enough. He looked nasty, but he didn't sound that way. Deep in my trembling heart, I knew he wouldn't dare do anything wicked to the heroine, much as he'd like to. He simply wasn't delighted enough in all his wicked plots and shenanigans.

To get to the women, they were superb. Bobbie Freeman had every nuance of the heroine, Purity Dean, down pat, with trembling hands, either folded or stretched out in supplication, eyes forever lifted upward. When she got to the line "for God protects the working girl" you just had to admire her courage for even getting through it without a hitch, let alone doing it with such a beautiful straight face.

Come to think of it, Bette Jarboe, who played the distaff villain, might have made a good Mortimer. Now there was one nasty woman, snarling, growling at the audience all night long. She was beautifully awful.

All the rest of the girls — Mona Horwitz as Mrs. Ethelinda Hewlitt, a haughty grand dame with false pride, Justine Welch as her man-hunting daughter, Muriel Brinker as the kindly, gruff aunt, did well and seemed to know what the whole thing was about. I'm not quite sure what to say about Mary Walker who played Mortimer's bulging wife like a latter-day Mae West. It was funny, so I won't argue about it.

All in all, every one had a grand time, except during part of the second act, which dragged, possibly because the audience was trying to get a second wind.

There was even a funny child in the audience, who, after it was discovered that Mortimer was indeed married, chastised him with "you dirty two-timer."

Now that's an audience.

Renaissance Pleasure Faire Starts Sept. 6

The third annual Renaissance Pleasure Faire, re-creation of an Elizabethan fair at harvest time, will be held Saturdays and Sundays beginning Sept. 6 and 7 in a wooded area on San Pedro Point, off North San Pedro Road.

More than 100 California craftsmen, including artisans from Marin are scheduled to participate in the festival, working in the traditional materials of the 16th Century, according to the show's promoters.

Marin craftsmen will include David Adams, maker of stained glass, from Fairfax; Fred Berensmeier, maker of wood cuts, block prints and collographs, Lagunitas; David Carlin, woodcarver, Corte Madera, and William Clerk, potter, San Rafael.

Displaying and selling their wares from rustic stalls will be puppet-maker Gerald Denman of San Rafael, woodcarver James Downer of Lagunitas, potter Jeanne Glaser Ellner of Mill Valley, and Lyn Elder, maker of ancient musical instruments, of Mill Valley.

Concert Tomorrow

There will be a concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Santa Venetia Presbyterian Church, 635 Adrian Way, Santa Venetia. Performing will be violinists Lynn Mehlinger and Ray Oakley Jr.; cellist Christopher Brann; violist Jean Harris and pianist Margaret Oakley.

Winnie Judd Tearfully Pleads Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — "I love it here. I want to stay."

Winnie Ruth Judd, Arizona trunk murderess of the 1930s, made the tearful plea yesterday at a hearing to determine whether she should be returned to an Arizona mental hospital from which she escaped.

Mrs. Judd, who has lived the past seven years in the San Francisco Bay area as Marian Lane, appeared in Gov. Ronald Reagan's office with her attorney, Melvin Belli of San Francisco, to fight extradition.

Herbert Ellingwood, legal affairs secretary for Reagan, said he would make his recommendation to the governor in a couple of days and expected a decision from Reagan within 10 days.

Mrs. Judd, dressed in a pale blue summer suit with her hair tinted a dark red, tearfully dabbed at her face with a tissue and nearly broke down several times during the hour-long hearing.

"This woman who stands before you now has been rehabilitated as much as any woman can be," Belli said. He said if she were not, "rehabilitation is a mockery."

He pointed out that Mrs. Judd had served 34 years in the Arizona mental hospital. She was ruled insane after being convicted of murdering two female roommates in Phoenix and shipping their bodies in a trunk to Los Angeles in 1931.

Mrs. Judd, speaking rapidly under Belli's questioning, told of her work taking care of an elderly lady in Danville and earlier studying practical nursing in Oakland. She escaped seven years ago for the seventh time from the hospital.

Teens Discover Summer Employment Is Difficult

By SUZANNE WOOD

Although job opportunities awaited many of Marin's students when they left school this spring, the majority of youths have spent an idle and financially unprofitable summer.

Three-month jobs, scattered throughout the county, are limited. Consequently, most of the more than 14,000 working age (16 and older) high school students and numerous college students may find themselves short on needed cash for school this fall.

Federally and county aided programs, like the Neighborhood Youth Corps and Economic Opportunity Council, have located jobs and are paying the salaries for about 300 youth from low income families. But these programs have fund limitations which cause the rejection of many applicants every summer.

This summer NYC was forced to turn down 40 applications — all from economically disadvantaged high school students. EOC has had organizational problems which delayed its job interviewing, and its funds, which were directed solely toward Marin City last year, are now equally distributed throughout the county.

The scarcity of summer jobs in Marin City prompted about 150 youngsters to appear at an EOC meeting earlier this summer to protest job shortages.

Marin Municipal Water District's summer program is not designed primarily for students from any economic bracket. It hired 32 college students and placed some in jobs related to their college majors like landscaping and mechanical engineering.

City park and recreation departments maintain summer programs like the one in San Rafael with jobs ranging from lifeguarding to pulling weeds. Belvedere has hired youths to clean up fire hazards. Other communities which employed youths are Tiburon, Mill Valley, Sausalito, Fairfax and Petaluma.

But city programs also have money problems. San Rafael hired 125 but turned down 250 more because of fund limitations.

"With more funds we could expand the youth personnel in the summer to staff all playground areas instead of the present 12 locations," said Andrew J. Snyder, San Rafael director of parks and recreation.

Private employers too often simply do not need or cannot afford the luxury of summer help. Many do not want to orientate a new person to a job just for three months.

Some of the frustrated youths who encountered overcrowded programs and employers not needing additional help, commented on the difficulty of finding a job and the consequences.

Cynthia Vetelli is an 18-year-old graduate of Tamalpais High School who needed funds to attend college in February. Miss Vetelli lived in Mexico one summer and speaks Spanish fluently. She, like many youths, advertised in the newspaper for a job.

"The main problem is a lot of people don't trust kids my age, so they give jobs to older people because they seem more responsible," she said.

She, along with several others, suggested the county aid young peoples' efforts next summer by publishing employment brochures with biographical data about youngsters needing jobs.

A few youths simply doubted that employers are willing to help youngsters unless somebody else, like EOC or NYC, pays the salaries.

Otis Ames, a 20-year-old student at the College of Marin who has worked three summers for federally funded EOC's Project Breakthrough, expressed this feeling.

"Some employers are not willing to break down their schedules to give a kid a job for $4 or $5 a day," he said.

Mary Compton, a 16-year-old student at Redwood High School has a job at the child care center at NYC in Marin City, but she summed up most youths' feelings about the difficulty of locating three month jobs.

"I want to be a teacher, so I checked with schools for any kind of job," she said. "But they're looking for experienced and how are you going to get experience without first having a job?"

There are thousands of insects in the world today but only bees, wasps, ants and termites care for their young by feeding and sheltering until they are able to fend for themselves.

The MAKING OF A HETEROSEXUAL will be performed at Browns Hall, 390 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, on Sundays at 8:30 p.m., August 10, 24, 31. No reservations necessary. Donation $1.50, students $1.

Golden Gate Bridge Traffic Hits 31 Million

A record-breaking 31,251,968 vehicles crossed Golden Gate Bridge during fiscal 1968-69, Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring reported yesterday.

The record was an increase of 958,175 vehicles, or 3.16 per cent, over the previous fiscal year.

But Luehring noted that in 1967-68 the percentage went up 6.85 per cent over the previous year. He said the lower rate of increase probably was due to a decrease early this summer in tourism, to a changed method of counting traffic under the one-way toll system, and to diversion of traffic because of construction on Highway 37.

Toll revenue totaled $6,565,118, up 2.4 per cent from the previous year.

Greyhound bus crossings dropped 1.37 per cent to 139,350, probably because of the recent strike, Luehring said.

Trucks crossing during the fiscal year totaled 361,472, an increase of .04 per cent. Military and police vehicles, which pay no toll, totaled 662,630, an increase of 6.81 per cent.

Commute book sales increased 6.81 per cent to 228,604, and a total of 28,297 pedestrians were registered through the dime turnstiles — a marked decrease from the 43,227 during the previous fiscal year. Luehring said the drop was because the sidewalk was closed weekdays for maintenance during part of the year.

More than 452 million vehicles have crossed the bridge since 1937.

Alto Firemen Get Pay Raises

The Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District board Thursday night gave its firemen an unexpected pay raise to bring them into line with firemen in other parts of the county, Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported yesterday.

The board earlier had granted a 5 per cent salary increase to firemen while departments in the rest of the county were getting 7.5 to 10 per cent, Heynen said.

As a result, so the Alto-Richardson Bay district would not be "at the bottom of the barrel again." Heynen said the board reclassified its firemen into higher salary ranges.

First Place Balloon Is Found In Yosemite

A balloon discovered in the Yosemite wilderness two days before the deadline has won the San Rafael balloon trip competition.

The balloon was one of more than 800 released June 27 by participants in the city's summer recreation program. Postcards with the senders name were attached to the balloons with a request that the finder return, by Aug. 7.

The winning balloon was released from Santa Margarita School by Bob Moran, 10, of 73 Vallejo Way. He will receive a $5 gift certificate at Taveggia-Brusati Sport and Saddle Shop, San Rafael.

A note on the postcard returned by Don Buerkel of San Mateo, a teacher, indicated it was found on a backpacking trip near Kibby Lake Tuesday.

The second place balloon was found six miles from Sonora in a chicken yard. It was released from Oliver Hartzell School by Beth Ford, 8, of 916 Los Ranchitos Road.

Third place winner, whose balloon also traveled to near Sonora, is William Presley, 10, of 623 B Street.

Second and third place winners will also receive gift certificates from the sport shop.

Only 23 of the more than 800 postcards were returned. Last year about 45 came back. Most of this year's came from a path southeast of San Rafael.

Single most popular place for the balloons to land was almond orchards in the Central Valley.

The postcard that actually came the greatest distance was one from Wisconsin. A fisherman reported finding it there the day after it was released in San Rafael.

Recreation officials were skeptical of the report but problems with it were solved when the boy who "released" the balloon moved out of state.

Tiburon Council To Study Budget

The Tiburon City Council will discuss its 1969-70 budget at its meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall.

The council also will receive the annual report of the parks and recreation commission and reports on cable television, urban development and the police department.

Also on the agenda is consideration of an ordinance concerning complaints of odor from the sanitary plant at Trestle Glen and Tiburon Boulevard.

Drug Arraignment

Maurice A. Schwartz, 24, of Lagunitas, has been ordered in Marin Municipal Court to appear Aug. 18 in Marin Superior Court for arraignment on charges of having marijuana and resisting arrest April 26 on Highway 101.

New Slope Policy To Be Proposed

A new slope policy will be proposed by the Sleepy Hollow Homes Association, members have agreed.

The association will ask that the current one-third acre requirement for lots be increased to two-thirds of an acre to prevent crowded hillsides, Mrs. Donald Anderson, recording secretary, reported yesterday.

The association learned Thursday that its request for more barriers on fire trails leading in and out of Sleepy Hollow had been approved by the county Fire Department. The department will also repair existing barriers, Mrs. Anderson said.

In a change from a longstanding policy, the group agreed to buy a diving board for the community pool and to offer diving lessons. Previous attempts to have a diving board were defeated because residents felt it would be dangerous, Mrs. Anderson said.

Public Hearing For Alto Bowl Proposal

A public hearing on a proposal by Cal Fong Investment to increase density for the Alto Bowl from three dwelling units per acre to 5.4 will be held by the Mill Valley Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the city council chambers at city hall.

The commission also will hold a public hearing on the city's 701 general plan and will set a public hearing for the North Ridge Major Street Plan.

IF YOU LIKE TAHOE YOU'LL LIVE INCLINE

Incline is naturally Tahoe. A thoughtfully-created recreational community that's a perfect part of its lake, forest and mountain setting. Here, on Nevada's unspoiled North Shore, you'll find every facility. Excellent restaurants, convenient shopping center, fine clubs and a truly remarkable golf course. Even a smoothly-manicured family ski area with handsome lodge, three chairlifts and a T-Bar. And Incline stands alone. There can never be another. Its great natural bowl, sweeping bay and sunny southern exposure cannot be duplicated anywhere in the Tahoe Basin.

Happiest of all is that you and your family can be a part of this. Prime vacation homesites are available in Incline's many individual neighborhoods.

Now is the time to look into your family's future at Incline. Call us collect at (415) 327-6220 and we'll arrange an early personal appointment for you and your family to inspect these choice new Incline properties.

The selection is excellent right now, so we look forward to welcoming you soon. Of course, you might like more information first. In that case, the coupon below is your key to quick service—complete facts and figures on Incline, its properties and advantages, its todays and tomorrows. Mail it today.

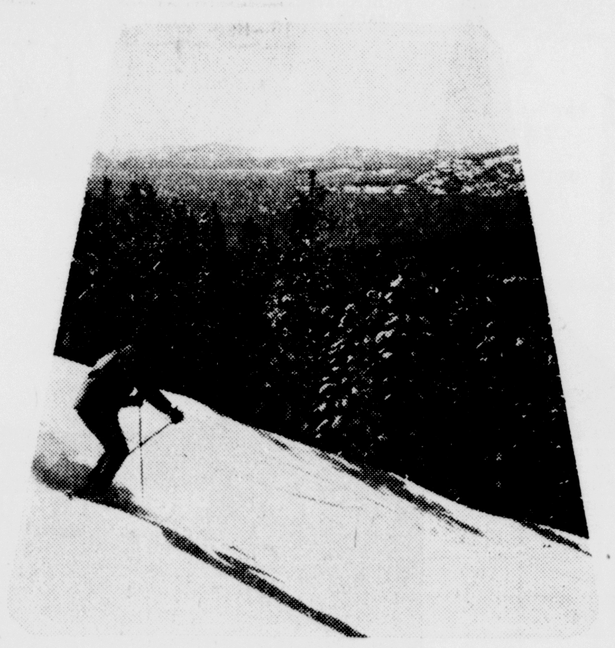
Deep blue, crystal clear Lake Tahoe is at Incline's beach-lined doorstep—a wonderworld of boating, swimming, sunning and water-skiing. Or just to look at, in the cool quiet, and be glad you chose Incline.

Incline's magnificent, lake-view golf course was designed by nationally-famous Robert Trent Jones. Leading sports writers rank it among the nation's finest. Its spectacular setting makes it difficult to keep your head down!

A lakefront heated pool is one of many features at Burnt Cedar Beach, a facility for the exclusive use of Incline property owners and their guests. Your whole family will enjoy active sunny days here.

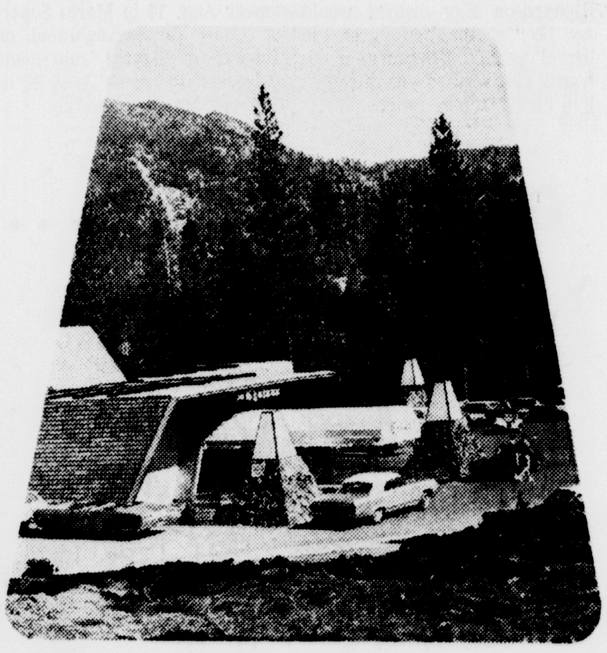
Lake Tahoe is where the action is. And Incline is where it centers. Waterskiing, cruising, scuba diving, lake and stream fishing. Try them all at Incline, Tahoe's finest, most distinctive recreational community.

Wide, gentle and scenic, Incline beaches are clean, inviting and uncrowded, too. Some are safely set aside for swimmers, others open to boats and skiers. And the picnicking is perfect.



When beach umbrellas are packed away, the boats docked and Incline is under a blanket of snow, the fun goes on at Incline's own family ski area. And it's right at your back door. A well-appointed ski lodge, 120 acres of interesting, well-groomed runs, three chairlifts, a T-Bar and latest snow-making equipment so you can ski as early as Thanksgiving!

The Sierra sun slants down on Incline's sweeping beachline. Inshore, your bird's eye view would show a network of paved roads linking sports and shopping facilities, offices, new elementary and high schools, and wooded, secluded neighborhoods. The World of Incline is complete. One of a kind.



Fine country club facilities are here for a smart combination of sports, dining and gracious socializing. Incline's restaurants and guest accommodations are unsurpassed in the Tahoe area.

The home you may choose to build or buy at Incline will neighbor desirable residences like this. Utilities are in. Police protection is constant, courteous and efficient. And a well-rated fire department keeps insurance rates sensibly low. Complete architectural and contracting services are available right in the Village.

Pick your place. Every Incline homesite is a prime recreational property. Most are wooded, many have spectacular views.
There's a wide variety of homesites available, in a wide range of prices.

A sign of the times. Exciting times at Incline, now under the direction of Boise Cascade Properties, Inc. Here's how to get here...
Take Interstate 80, exit on California Highway 267 (just after Central Truckee exit) to Kings Beach and left to Incline.
Stop at the Sales Information Office on Tahoe Boulevard.

INCLINE

Before driving up, we'd like more information about Incline, the new homesites for sale, the terms, and property owner facilities.

GOOD – BETTER – BEST!
The original owners of this 7 year old hillside home have added many extras that make it a delight to show! Starting with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, they have added a lovely raised hearth fireplace, a large separate workshop and have landscaped this ¼ acre site. If you desire, they'll leave the range, refrigerator and washer & dryer as well. One thing they couldn't improve on — the view! San Anselmo, Ross Valley, the Berkeley Hills to Mt. Diablo. At $31,950, see it!

★MILL VALLEY LODGE★

At least, that's our opinion of this delightfully spacious home on a tree covered, sun bathed lot, just above the tennis and swim club and overlooking the golf course. Tile entry, separate library, private dining room. Large comfortable all-electric kitchen with barbecue, spacious family room, living room we couldn't begin to do justice in describing and you wouldn't believe unless you saw it, an upper story balcony halfway around the living room. The master bedroom a real dream with dressing room and Roman tub in bath. 3 full bedrooms and 2½ baths in all. Would you believe almost a 50 ft. all glass wall with a view through the trees to the golf course. One of a kind, a true pace setter, the home of and with a future, brand new and due for completion in 30 days. The style home for 1970 and cannot be duplicated for the asking price of $75,000.

AND SO THERE WERE 14 FOR DINNER

Champion Ronakers Delta Queen seems content with her litter of 14 golden retrievers. Ronakers, owned by Esther Dodge of 3560 Paradise Drive, Tiburon gave birth to the brood — the size described as "most unusual" — Sunday. Mrs. Dodge, who was expecting nine, supplements the mother's feeding with canned milk formula from baby bottles and said, "Half the time I'm in the whelping bed, too."

Protests On Developing Bay Site Due

Protests over the Marin County Planning Department's plan for Richardson Bay development are expected to continue at a hearing before the county planning commission at 10 a.m. Monday.

Richardson Bay property owners have criticized the plan, whose prominent feature is an open body of water in the center of the region as too restrictive against development.

The hearing opened July 28, but was continued so that all property owners could be heard.

The commission, whose all-day meeting will begin at 9 a.m., will hear developer P. J. Tarrant ask for design approval of a 48-unit apartment development in Santa Venetia and study plans for a Colonel Sanders Kentucky Fried Chicken take-out restaurant at Richardson Bay.

The Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee has recommended denial of the restaurant application because of traffic and parking problems, poor building appearance and lack of landscaping.

Stunt Sends Two Into Hospital

Horseplay in a pickup truck driving on Grand Avenue in San Rafael sent the driver and his passenger to Marin General Hospital Thursday night.

Steve R. Cain, 21, of Verdi Street, and his passenger, Fred C. Chambers, 21, of 124 Park Street, both San Rafael, were treated at the hospital for cuts after they fell from their truck when it struck another vehicle driven by Simon P. Johnson, 63, of Tacoma, Wash.

Cain and Chambers, according to police, said that Chambers grabbed the steering wheel of the truck and swung it sharply into Johnson's car as they drove near the Acacia Street intersection. Chambers said he did it to scare Cain but did not see the oncoming car.

Both vehicles and a cyclone fence on the property of the Dominican College on Grand Avenue were damaged. No cost estimate was given.

Pope Approves New Latin Test For The Psalms

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI has approved a new Latin text for the Book of Psalms—the first step in a planned revision of the official Latin translation of the whole Bible by the Roman Catholic Church, the Vatican announced today. The new psalter was also released for sale today.

Pope Paul set up a special commission of experts in 1964 to correct and update the Vulgate translation of the 150 Psalms that St. Jerome did in 387-388. This had been asked by the Vatican Ecumenical Council in its "constitution on the liturgy."

In 1965, Pope Paul set up a new enlarged commission, with the wider task of revising the Latin Vulgate text of all the books of the Old and the New Testament. He instructed the commission to correct those points where St. Jerome mistranslated the Bible and re-examine others in the light of modern research and discoveries.

The Vatican had released an alternative text of the Psalms in 1945. That translation met with the disapproval of many because it replaced the early Christian Latin used by St. Jerome with classic literary Latin.

The new revised texts will be used in Church rites in Latin and serve as official texts of reference for translation into modern languages.

The announcement said the revised Latin texts of the Gospels were expected to be published before the end of the year.

Woman Hurt As Gas Pedal Sticks

Rosemary Leno, 37, of 20 Carmelita Avenue, Mill Valley, was injured slightly Thursday when the accelerator on her car stuck and the car hit a parked car and a guard rail, then rolled, Sausalito police said yesterday.

She was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises on her left thigh and scratches on both knees.

Sausalito police said the accelerator stuck while she was attempting to park on Easterby toward Bridgeway. The car hit the parked car, crossed Bridgeway and bounced off the guardrail, went back across Bridgeway, then rolled when she tried to stop it by running the car into a hill.

HOT LINE, TOO

Nixon's Aides Will Follow Boss To West

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Richard M. Nixon moves to California today for a month. And a big part of the executive branch will go with him, Moscow hot line included. (See another story, page 1.)

The President, Mrs. Nixon and their elder daughter, Tricia, 23, were to leave on Air Force One this afternoon. They will live in their new $340,000 Spanish-style estate overlooking the Pacific at San Clemente.

It will be a working holiday. Nixon's schedule calls for Cabinet meetings, two sessions of the National Secuurity Council and sessions with the Urban Affairs Council and the Environmental Quality Control Council.

He plans to send to Congress three messages next week, on welfare, manpower training and revenue sharing. It is possible an announcement will be made sometime in August on a possible new troop pullout from Vietnam, and it is considered likely he will fill a Supreme Court vacancy.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell expect to spend so much time in San Clemente that they have leased homes there.

So have key White House staff members—National Security Asst. Henry A. Kissinger; Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods; John Ehrlichman, counsel to the President; H. R. Haldeman, assistant to the President; Dwight L. Chapin, appointments secretary; Kenneth R. Cole Jr. staff secretary; and Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler.

Other cabinet officers and advisers will fly in frequently because Nixon has decreed it will be pretty much "business as usual."

About 900 special telephone circuits—including the Moscow hot line, which permits the President to make immediate contact with Soviet leaders in case of an emergency—have been installed.

A crash program is under way to put up two temporary masonite buildings at the Coast Guard Loran (Long Range Aid to Navigation) adjoining his estate to house the temporary offices.

A six-foot wall has been built around the Nixon estate to assure his privacy and a helicopter landing pad has been built at the Coast Guard station.

The government is footing most of the bill for the extra facilities and the travels. No cost estimate has been revealed. The move is not unprecedented. Most presidents have had their "summer White Houses."

Eight-Year Sentence To Silverthorne

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Don C. Silverthorne, of Tiburon, former president of the short-lived San Francisco National Bank, was sentenced yesterday to eight years in jail for manipulation and mismanagement of bank funds.

U. S. District Judge Albert C. Wollenberg sentenced the 69-year-old former banker to five years in prison on five counts of misapplication of bank funds and three additional years for conspiracy, falsifying bank records and two other misapplication counts.

The portly, silver-haired Silverthorne remained free on $15,000 personal bond pending appeal of his conviction by his attorney, George C. Martinez.

Wollenberg rejected Martinez' request for probation because of Silverthorne's age, poor health, and his wife's poor health, but said federal prison officials would be free to parole him at any time.

Silverthorne was convicted July 12 on nine of 12 charges he faced. Silverthorne's first conviction was overturned by an appellate court on the grounds that pre-trial publicity was prejudicial to the case.

He was convicted of misapplication of funds totaling $182,500.

Proposed Camping Ban Due Discussion

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission will discuss a proposed ordinance banning camping and lodging in public places at its 8 p.m. meeting Monday in the board room of the Mill Valley Library.

The commission also will discuss the Marin County Youth Commission's request for joint funds and review the state's policy on bicycle trails near highways.

Minigarden Of Pot Is Found

A minigarden of marijuana has been confiscated in Marin, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Ronald Milton Nowell, 21, of 20-C Villa Garden Drive, Tamalpais Valley, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of growing marijuana at his residence. He was told to appear Monday to plead to the charge.

Deputies reported they peered through a window of Nowell's apartment Thursday night and saw two marijuana sprouts growing with a potted citrus tree. On being admitted by Nowell, they reportedly also found 50 marijuana seeds in an envelope in another room.

Pleads Innocent

Charles E. Lawder, 43, of Houston, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of committing a lewd act and committing an unnatural sex act with a 7-year-old Novato boy Tuesday in Novato. Preliminary hearing was set for 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

101 To Be Shut For Girder Work

Highway 101 will be closed for 60 to 90 minutes beginning at 2 a.m. Tuesday while highway crews erect the girders for the pedestrian overcrossing for Coleman School.

Northbound traffic will be detoured at the Irwin Street exit to Mission Avenue, then west on Mission to Lincoln Avenue and out Lincoln to pickup the freeway.

Southbound traffic will be detoured off the highway at Lincoln Avenue, follow it to Second Street and then go east back to the highway.

To Superior Court

After a preliminary hearing yesterday in Marin Municipal Court three San Rafael men, George E. Myers, 22, and brothers Jeremiah Jerome St. Martin, 23, and Michael Vincent St. Martin, 18, were held to answer Monday in Marin Superior Court on charges of burgling a San Anselmo antique shop July 21.

Booking Made On Failure To Pay

Frances May Borreson, 52, former secretary in the Fairfax School District, has been booked into Marin County Jail on a bench warrant issued in January when she failed to repay $7,000 she embezzled in her Fairfax post in 1965.

The sheriff's office said they recently learned Mrs. Borreson's address in Shingle Springs, El Dorado County, and the warrant was served there. Mrs. Borreson was ordered to repay the money in December 1965, after she pleaded guilty to the charge.

She was booked Thursday night and is held in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear Monday morning in Marin Superior Court.

Dog Is Hunted In Biting Case

A San Rafael mother is hunting for a dog that bit her 2-year-old daughter yesterday hoping to find it before the girl must begin a painful treatment for rabies.

Mrs. Penny Mumy of 17 Wolfe Avenue, reported a large, black Labrador, whose name may be George, bit her daughter, Melea, at 9:45 a.m. while she was playing near San Rafael High School.

A swimming instructor who pursued the dog told Mrs. Mumy the animal ran into nearby hills and a boy who said the dog frequents the area said he though its name was George.

Pact Pending In Church Purchase

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board hopes to reach agreement by the end of the month to buy the Santa Venetia Presbyterian Church for recreational use, Marguerite F. Clark, district secretary, said yesterday.

Church activities, including Sunday services, would continue, although most of the time the district would use the property for recreational activities, Mrs. Clark said.

The district board discussed purchase of the property at a special meeting Thursday night.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Too Much Needless Worrying Can Create Too Much Tension

VAN DELLEN

Half the battle is won when the individual knows what he is worrying about. This is the way to become master of the situation. The recommendation is: "Think — adjust — make repairs."

Some tensions are good, such as the kinds that come from striving for the best. This is not true of Mr. Big who has no time for thinking or relaxing because he is constantly fuming, fretting, or fussing. This fellow paces up and down while waiting for a train, plane, or bus. He doesn't realize he is harboring a bomb that may go off any moment.

THE HYPOCHONDRIAC is overwhelmed with worries about health problems. He has every symptom in the book and is so certain he has heart trouble or cancer that he is shivering, shaking, and sweating most of the time. If this description fits you, see the family physician and get to the root of the trouble. Chances are it will be found in your personality and not in any organ.

Feelings of inadequacy often go unrecognized. These personality types do more harm than we realize. They become despondent, feel miserable and inefficient when they fail to receive approval from others. They ought to concentrate on their strong points and not the weak ones.

NEVER OVERRATE or underestimate your ability. Competition is stimulating when it does not involve resentment, jealousy, and hate. The emotionally immature individual who becomes overly competitive usually is ruled by the motto: "Anything he can do, I can do better." These men and women are never successful because they work against and not with their associates. Take stock of your motivations and act accordingly if they are responsible for tension.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MENTAL ILLNESS

W. W. writes: Does a mentally ill person know he is that way?

REPLY

Many do but cannot help themselves. They have reached the point of no return and need outside help. On the other hand, those who have lost contact with reality for some time are living in another world and are oblivious to the rest of us.

TUMOR

S. D. writes: Is a brain tumor always visible on X-rays or are other tests needed to confirm the diagnosis?

REPLY

Other tests may be required, some in conjunction with X-rays. These include electroencephalography, angiography, pneumoencephalography, lumbar puncture, and scanning with radioisotopes. These procedures are not so bad as they sound.

DIABETIC NEURITIS

T. B. writes: Does diabetes cause neuritis?

RELY

Yes. The cause is not clear except that a nutritional deficiency usually exists. Relief follows the use of vitamin B, improvements in the diet, and bringing the diabetes under control with medication.

ASAFETIDA BAG

Mrs. G. writes: Generations ago, mothers tied a bag of asafetida around the necks of their children. What was this supposed to do?

REPLY

Its foul smell was said to repel germs.

CITRUS ERUPTION

W. N. writes: Whenever I take citrus fruits or juices, my face breaks out. Is this an allergy?

REPLY

Yes.

SPIDERY VEINS

E. R. M. writes: Please write an article about broken veins — the little purple spidery kinds. What causes them and can the person do anything to dissolve or get rid of them?

REPLY

The arterial spider consists of a tiny red dot from which blood vessels radiate. Why they develop is not clearly understood. Treatment is not needed, but when unsightly they can be removed via electrolysis or electrodesiccation. This, however, is rarely recommended. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this disorder.

Today's Health Hint — Nausea, fatigue and headache are symptoms of heat prostration.

Today is Saturday, Aug. 9, the 221st day of 1969 with 144 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1831 the first train in the United States to be powered by steam made a run between Albany and Schenectady, New York.

In 1902 the Prince of Wales was crowned King Edward VII following the death of his mother, Queen Victoria.

In 1945 more than half of the Japanese city of Nagasaki was destroyed when America dropped its second atomic bomb.

In 1962 Judge James Parsons of Chicago became the first Negro to be named to a U.S. Federal District Court.

A thought for the day: Adm. Chester Nimitz said, "A ship is referred to as a 'she' because it costs so much to keep one in paint and powder."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Nearly one-third of the population of Pinellas County, which includes St. Petersburg, Clearwater and Dunedin, is 65 years of age or older, according to a recent report from the University of Florida.

The Bureau of Economic and Business Research at the university placed the ratio of senior citizens in the county at 32.3 per cent, or 145,200 out of the county's 450,000 population.

The 1960 U.S. Census registered only 24.9 per cent of the county's population then as over 65 years of age.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Use Low Cards Wisely To Reach Dummy For Good Tricks

Anybody can get to the dummy by winning a trick there with an ace or king, but experienced players habitually use a nine or an eight as an entry to the dummy. Only in the big leagues and in bridge columns will you encounter hands in which you must lead a three to dummy's four to make your contract.

DUMMY'S QUEEN

West opens the jack of hearts, and you put up dummy's queen hopefully. But East covers with the king, and you win with the ace. Now you must take nine tricks on the run since otherwise the long heats will defeat you.

Your only chace is to get four diamond tricks, and you should arrange to get to dummy three times to finesse through East. This is simple enough if you make your arrangements early enough.

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts you cash the ace of clubs and continue with the eight of clubs to dummy's queen. Both opponents follow suit, much to your relief, and you know that you will be able to reach dummy as often as necessary.

HOLD YOUR BREATH

You return a diamond from dummy and hold your breath as you try a finesse with the queen. When this succeeds, you lead the nine of clubs to dummy's king. You return another diamond to take a finesse with the jack.

By this time niether defender has any clubs. You can lead the three of clubs from your hand to dummy's four. This does not alter the number of club tricks you can win, but it does put you in dummy so that you can return another diamond.

TAKE FINESSE

You take a finesse with the ten of diamonds and cash the ace of diamonds as your ninth trick. West then takes the ace of spades and the rest of the hearts, but you have already made your contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ J 8 4 3
♥ K 5 2
♦ K 9 7 6
♣ 10 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since you have only seven points in high cards you know that the combined count can be only 25 points at most. It doesn't pay to try for game when you know that the partnership is short of the 26 points usually needed for game.

Defense Links Pot Smoking To Religion

By ALAN JONES

A Marin court hearing yesterday tracked its way through the roots and nature of obscure and popular religions as a Lagunitas man defended his right to smoke marijuana as a religious rite protected by the U.S. Constitution.

Witnesses in municipal court for Jeffery Neil Stallard, 28, included Sausalito philosopher Alan Watts and San Francisco clergyman Robert Cromey, former secretary to Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike.

Stallard is charged with possessing marijuana, a charge he invited when he went to the Marin County Jail April 1 and dumped a marijuana cigarette out of his boot.

But the questioning sometines resembled something out of a heresy trial as Deputy Dist. Atty. Josh Thomas tried to pin down Stallard on the rites and physical aspects of his marijuana religion.

Stallard said smoking marijuana in small meditative groups was the only way he could reach a state of heightened communication and love for fellow humans, which he said is at the root of all major religions.

Thomas objected repeatedly, but with little success, to Stallard's description of his religious background — which includes a semester at Union Theological Seminary in New York. Thomas insisted that prior case law says the only relevant issue is whether the religion is part of a collective practice of religion, but Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. overruled his protests to learn Stallard's own religious beliefs.

Stallard was supported by Watts, who testified after hearing the defendant that he felt Stallard had had a genuine mystical experience with marijuana. Watts said Eastern religions have used marijuana since 1500 B.C., and said he had taken part in the Orient in Buddhist and Brahmin rites using marijuana.

Stallard said he usually smokes marijuana with a small group of friends. The group always sits in a circle, he said, and always passes and shares the weed.

The smoking continues, he said, until everyone involved reaches a state of acceptance and communion with each other. Then they turn to other activities such as singing, playing music or creating art, he said.

Thomas asked if the group was incorporated, whether it has a name, whether there is a written doctrine, a repository for sacred articles used in the rite, and a regular meeting place. The answer was no in each instance.

Taking the marijuana cigarette from an evidence folder, Thomas gave it to Stallard and asked: "Dou you believe that a deity, a God, exists in marijuana?"

There was a puzzled pause. "Can you define God?" Stallard asked.

"Do you believe Jesus Christ, or God, or a deity exist in this as a physical fact?"

"No."

"Is marijuana worshiped as a religious object in any way?" Judge Goldstein asked.

"Not in the sense of an icon, no."

"Is there anything religious in the marijuana plant?" Goldstein asked.

"Certainly, or it would not have been endowed as it was," Stallard said. He said one must believe the universe is an accident, or else accept that everything has a purpose and design.

After Watt's testimony Judge Goldstein ordered the hearing continued to Sept. 10 for more testimony.

Car Stolen From San Anselmo Lot

A 1966 Chevrolet owned by David W. Minto of 34 East Manor Drive, Mill Valley, was stolen Thursday night while driver Ian Lorence Minto was at the Tamalpais Theater in San Anselmo, police reported yesterday.

Minto told police he had parked the car in the Sprouse Reitz lot at 80 Center Boulevard about 8:15 p.m. and discovered it missing shortly after 10 p.m.

$220 In Cash Is Taken In One Burglary

Four residential burglaries were reported yesterday by Marin sheriff's deputies.

Burglars who entered between 1 and 3:40 p.m. Wednesday took $220 in currency from the residence of Donna L. Solin, 2029 Huckleberry Drive, Marinwood.

Another burglar took $160 in currency from the residence of Patricia A. Frederick, 397 Alameda del Prado, Loma Verde, between Monday morning and Wednesday night, deputies reported.

Between noon and 5 p.m. Wednesday, a burglar entered the residence of Randy English, 190 Almonte Boulevard, Almonte, and took a television set, stereo equipment and cash valued at $1,150.

In Muir Beach, deputies said, a burglar entered the home of J. C. Finnegan, 44 Starbuck Drive, on Wednesday and stole three rugs, five blankets, a flashlight, four tool sets, a spyglass and a coffeepot.

Loggers On Ridge Ranch Respond To Debris Order

Loggers on the Righetti Ranch at Bolinas Ridge have responded in earnest to an order by the board of supervisors to remove debris from neighboring land and to correct fire hazards, Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said yesterday.

"They really went to work up there," Bloom said.

The Oregon lumber firm of Mathews, Humbert and Walker was instructed by the supervisors Tuesday to clean debris from adjoining Marin Municipal Water District property and to surround accumulated debris on the Righetti Ranch with fire breaks.

Bloom, who had warned the supervisors of the critical fire danger in the area, said the logger had cleaned a 5,000-foot stretch of water district property that was littered with logging refuse and had begun work on building fire breaks.

Bloom, who has been making daily inspections of the logging site — subject of criticism by conservationists — said he plans a final inspection tomorrow. The board had threatened court action Monday if no remedial action was taken by the lumber firm.

Bloom said progress of the work indicates at this time that no legal steps will be necessary. A report is to be made to the supervisors Tuesday.

County Receives Road Tax Share

Marin County received $133,910 as its share of the July apportionment of highway users taxes, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, with the following cities and towns receiving these amounts:

Belvedere, $3,203; Larkspur $8,125; Ross $3,319; Sausalito $7,046; Corte Madera $8,087; Mill Valley, $11,690; San Anselmo, $12,522; Tiburon $6,623; Fairfax $7,514; Novato $26,454 and San Rafael $31,716.

Sonoma County received $179,453 with Petaluma getting $21,601.52; Cotati $2,497, and Rohnert Park $6,697.

Athletes Hit 'Rotten AAU'

LONDON (AP)—The U.S. track and field team last night lifted its threat of a boycott of the Britain-United States meet next week, but team members served notice of their determination to revolutionize the Amateur Athletic Union.

"The Union is rotten right through," said one of the athletes' spokesmen at a meeting in their hotel, "and unless we change things, the Europeans will swamp us at the 1972 Olympics."

The noisy meeting was attended by most of the 125 athletes who are here to compete with Britain next Tuesday and Wednesday as part of a European tour.

Speaker after speaker charged that the Union system was making them second class citizens and liable to make them second class athletes, too.

CALIFORNIA MEETING

The athletes are going to call a meeting next month in California of all interested parties, including former American Olympic champions and former officials, to set out a plan of action.

The athletes' committee, which includes star sprinter Willye White, Californian hammer thrower George Frenn and 5,000-meter runner Gerry Lindgren, were drafting a letter to President Nixon.

The present trouble blew up at Augsburg, Germany, where the athletes complained about supposedly poor accommodations. But Frenn said that this dispute "was just the tip of thei ceberg."

"The trouble is that once we get back to the States, we split up and can't organize anything. Here we are all together and united," he said.

"The whole system is bad," said Olympic star John Carlos.

DEAD WOOD

"There is too much dead wood in the Union and not enough money and thought going in the right directions.

"But we are going to alter all that."

Asked about allegations that the dispute was only the work of a few hotheads, Frenn said: "When we have finished drafting the letter to the President, everyone will be invited to sign and I guarantee they all will. Everyone is fed up."

Jesse Pardue, the president of the AAU, declined to comment on the views expressed at the meeting.

"All I want to say is that I was confident that sense would prevail and that the track meet against Britain would take place," Pardue said.

"I'm sure it will be a very fine meeting."

Katzenjammer Kids Live

By GARY TISCHLER

For a long time now, I have been wondering what happened to Tom Sawyer.

Where did the Beaver go? Where were the Katzenjammer Kids? What happened to the Dentyne teeth, the blue-jeaned boys who chased Tony the Tiger, the boys and girls in tennis shoes who used to jam a certain corner of the Five and Ten, wait in line at the mid-week matinee, grovel like groundhogs in the sandlots, write misspelled words on the sidewalk in chalk? Where were the heads of bright red and blond hair, the acres of freckles, the little legs, black and white, always running in a burst of noise?

I found some of them yesterday, spilling over the uncut grass of San Rafael High School's football field, all the young, young eager beavers, some 250 of them, running, waiting, jumping and throwing at the San Rafael Recreation Department's annual Junior Olympics for the little kids, ages 6 through 12.

People who like their Olympics in impressive uniform style, with trumpets blaring and a thousand athletic bodies marching and flexing in awesome rows, would have turned their noses up at this little affair. It was about as uniform as a mud-baking contest, as solidified as jello. But the veteran of a makeshift touch football game in somebody's back yard where you can smell the garbage burning would have recognized himself instantly and felt right at home once again.

Most of the children not competing on either the track, the long jump pit or a ready-made

Also-Rans Grab Golf Headlines

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Ed Moehling, who once left the tour "with a credit card and a nickel," used the wind and a wedge to climb into a share of the top spot in the $100,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Moehling, a 28-year-old who dropped off the tour when he ran out of money in 1963, fired a three-under-par 69 yesterday and moved into a tie for the 36-hole lead with Fred Marti, a long-time also-ran.

Each had a 141, three under par for 36 holes on the 7,075-yard, North Shore Country Club course, a layout made doubly tough by the high, gusty winds that have plagued the event for two days.

Marti, a tall, rangy blond, had a second round 70 that he described as "kind of uneventful."

One stroke back in this event that was passed up by most of the great names of the game were four players tied at 142. They were rookie pro John Miller, who slipped to a 74, Steve Opperman and South African Allan Henning, each 73, and Peter Townsend of England, the first round leader who went to a 75.

SIX GROUPED

South African Gary Player had a 70 and headed a group of six at 143. The others were Phil Rodgers and Rocky Thompson, each 71, Jerry Abbott, 72, and Jim Wiechers and Bob Lunn, each 73.

Arnold Palmer rallied with a 71 for 147, but was well back. Defending champion Dave Stockton shot a 73 for 150 and failed to make the cut for the final two rounds. It took a score of 149 to make it.

Moehling, who plays out of Golf, Ill., has made only $166.67 on the tour this year, and shot a 74 in Monday's qualifying round to make it into this one.

"There's a mental adjustment you have to make when you're qualifying," he said. "You have to practice it like you practice your shots. You have to talk to yourself a lot."

Marti, 28 and still lacking a victory after six years on the tour, made more than $30,000 last year, and has pulled down $17,591 this season.

He bogeyed the first hole, when he was in the water, but rallied with birdie putts of 10 and 12 feet, and chipped to within 2½ feet for another.

Giants Buy Vet Hurler

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Veteran reliever Don McMahon was purchased by the San Francisco Giants from the Detroit Tigers last night for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The 40-year-old McMahon had a 3-5 record and 3.89 earned run average with the world champion Tigers in 34 relief appearances.

A veteran of the Milwaukee Braves' pennant-winning teams of the 1950s, the well-traveled McMahon has played also with Boston, Cleveland and Chicago in the American League and for Houston in the National League, compiling a 61-53 lifetime record.

To make room for McMahon, the Giants shipped rookie right-hander Rich Robertson to Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League, where he won 18 games last year. Robertson was 1-2 with a 6.00 ERA for San Francisco.

Is Drysdale All Through?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 14 year pitching career of Dodger ace Don Drysdale may be over because of a recurring injury that's making it too painful for him to pitch.

The decision was apparently reached last night after a meeting between Drysdale and Dodger executive vice president Peter O'Malley.

"I don't want to go on the disabled list again," Drysdale said. "I've had many great thrills and enjoyable years and I can't see any sense in fighting the inevitable."

Softball Scores

Jerry Crews and John Coleman knocked successive home runs to lead Hiller's Men's Store to a 19-7 victory over the Cobras last night in the San Rafael Softball League's C-II Division at Albert Field.

In the evening's other game the Eagles downed the Post Office, 8-5.

Top Auto Racers At Sears

Tomorrow's 150-mile "Sta-Power" late model stock car race at Sonoma County's Sears Point Raceway has taken a mysterious turn. The latest entry to challenge a talented field of drivers is something of a gnost.

He's identified only as "The Spirit Of Sonoma," as Sears Point officials have dubbed him.

The driver is known to hold a full international license and has competed in and won races during a lengthy career. The "Spirit" will be guiding a 1967 Ford.

He probably won't frighten the list of favorites, who include Jack McCoy of Modesto, Ray Elder of Caruthers, Johnny Steele and Jim Cook of Norwalk, Marty Kimerk of Tucson, Ariz., and Scotty Cain of Fresno.

Tickets for tomorrow's race are $5. Children under 12 are admitted free when with an adult.

A dragster exhibition is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. with the 150-mile main event to follow. The morning schedule will be devoted to qualifying from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

Redskins Owner Marshall Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Preston Marshall, owner and president emeritus of the Washington Redskins of the National Football League, died today in his sleep at his home in Georgetown. He was 72.

Marshall stepped down as executive head of the Redskins after he became seriously ill in 1962. He was succeeded by Edward Bennett Williams, noted trial lawyer.

Rookie Giant-Killer Gives Cards Big Lift In Stretch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If the St. Louis Cardinals stage a miraculous comeback and recapture the National League pennant, much of the credit should go to 28-year-old rookie right-hander Chuck Taylor.

Unknown to Giants' fans until St. Louis opened a three-game series at Candlestick Park last night, Taylor hurled a six-hitter and defeated San Francisco, 4-3, giving the torrid Cardinals their 12th win in 15 games since the All-Star break.

The sudden surge has pulled the Cardinals to within nine games of eastern division leader Chicago. The Giants embroiled in a tight western division race, dropped 1½ games behind Cincinnati.

Taylor, who was 18-7 at Tulsa (PCL) last season and 5-1 with the same club before being promoted to the majors this season, boosted his record to 5-1 and registered his third complete game in four starts.

BIG LIFT

"Chuck hurt his arm and knee as a youngster," said Cardinals' manager Red Schoendienst. "That's why it took him so long to reach the majors. But he's sure given us a big lift this season.

"The thing I like is that he can relieve, too. His biggest asset is his control. I plan to use him in the starting rotation the rest of the way."

Giants' manager Clyde King, who sent southpaw Mike McCormick against the Cardinals' Nelson Briles in today's game, also was impressed with Taylor in his first work against San Francisco.

"He (Taylor) was throwing much harder tonight than when I saw him at Tulsa," said King, who managed Phoenix last year. "He kept the ball down real good against us."

PERRY LOSER

Loser Gaylord Perry, 14-3, was staked to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Don Mason, Willie McCovey and Ken Henderson. But the Cardinals scored three runs in the second.

Joe Torre's double started the rally, which included a run-scoring single by Tim McCarver, a passed ball and a two-run single by Dal Maxvill.

McCovey's walk, Henderson's single and Tito Fuentes' grounder added a run in the fourth. The Cardinals scored the winning run in the eighth. When Vada Pinson was hit by a pitch, Torre singled and McCarver doubled.

Taylor had retired 16 batters in a row before McCovey crashed a 400-foot homer with one out in the ninth, boosting his N. L. leading total to 35.

Willie Mays, who had a seven-game batting string snapped, left the game in the sixth inning after his injured knee stiffened. Fuentes also injured his right foot on a fielding play.

NEWEST NINER — First draft choice Ted Kwalick, who ended a holdout Thursday, donned his San Francisco 49er jersey for the first time yesterday in Seattle where the team will meet Cleveland in their opening exhibition game tomorrow. The rookie tight end will not see action, however, as he hasn't had time to digest the team's complicated offensive system. (AP wirephoto)

Bills Shock Redskins; Rams Win

COMBINED AP & UPI

John Rauch is the first to admit it wasn't the Super Bowl but his initial victory over a Vince Lombardi-coached team has to rank as the super surprise of the young professional football season.

Rauch, who like Lombardi, accepted the challenge of rebuilding a perennial loser, got even with his 1968 Super Bowl coaching rival last night when the brash Buffalo Bills stopped the Washington Redskins 21 - 17 in an exhibition game played at Buffalo.

The former Oakland Raider coach, gracious in victory, said he didn't consider it a "personal" triumph over the ex-Green Bay genius because "after all it wasn't the Super Bowl."

But victory-hungry Buffalo fans will take a win anytime and success over a team coached by one of the game's most highly respected mentors may be just the tonic the Bills need to regain respectability.

In the only other exhibition activity last night the Los Angeles Rams opened their tuneup campaign by edging the Dallas Cowboys before 87,381 fans at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Buffalo's triumph evened the Bills' exhibition record at 1-1 and gave the American Football League its initial success of the campaign at the expense of an NFL club. Last week the NFL had a 2-0 log against AFL teams.

Rauch, a loser to Lombardi in pro football's second Super Bowl championship game, said he was pleased with the fact "our kids didn't give up when they were behind."

Quarterback Tom Flores flipped a five-yard touchdown pass to Haven Moses with five minutes left in the game to provide the Bills with the winning margin and their initial triumph under Rauch.

Washington had taken a 17-14 lead with 39 seconds gone in the final period on a 19-yard pass from Sonny Jurgensen to Jerry Smith.

The Bills, who could muster only 23 yards rushing in their season debut a week ago against Houston, showed an improved running game with little Max Anderson the top ball carrier with 59 yards in 10 carries. The former Arizona State fullback also caught two passes for 36 yards.

Lombardi, who watched his Redskins even their record at 1-1, said, "Our defense played very well but the offense didn't do anything. Buffalo was the more aggressive ball club," he said.

The largest crowd in 10 years, 87,381, watched the Rams beat the Cowboys in the annual Los Angeles Times Charity game.

An 85 - yard touchdown pass play from Roman Gabriel to Wendell Tucker and a blocked punt recovery for another TD gave the Rams a 24-3 lead in the third period, a sufficient cushion to offstave the Cowboys' two touchdowns in the last period.

Craig Morton, taking over at quarterback for the retiring Don Meredith, threw two 68 - yard touchdown passes for the late Dallas scores. One was to Bob Hayes, the other to Lance Rentzel.

Southpaws Still Plague Athletics

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite losing to another lefthander, the Oakland Athletics have narrowed the gap to 1 1-2 games between themselves and leader Minnesota in the American League West.

This is about the closest the A's have gotten to Minnesota since early in July.

Southpaw Al Downing blanked Oakland 5-0 on a four-hitter in the nightcap of a doubleheader yesterday after the A's took the first game 5-3 on catcher Larry Haney's run-scoring double in the 10th inning. It was only the fourth time this season Oakland has been zeroed.

Chuck Dobson (13-7) and the Athletics tried to stop Yankee ace Mel Stottlemyre from notching his 16th victory this afternoon.

BANDO HITS

Downing, now 3-3, struck out five and walked two in pitching his first complete game of the season and his first shutout since Sept. 25, 1967. He retired the first 12 men he faced before Sal Bando singled to lead off the fifth, and Downing allowed only one runner as far as third base.

On Tuesday another lefthander, Sam McDowell of Cleveland, beat the Athletics. This means that Oakland will probably be seeing more portsiders in the future.

Catcher Thurman Munson made his major league debut for the Yankees in the second game and drove in two runs with two hits.

HUNTER LOSES

New York scored three runs in the seventh off starter and loser Jim Hunter (9-10) and reliever Jim Roland. They added their final two runs in the eighth off Rene Lachemann when Munson singled home Bobby Murcer and Jimmie Hall.

With the score tied 2-2, Rick Monday and Dick Green singled in the 10th off former teammate Jack Aker. Haney doubled home Monday for the go-ahead run and the other two runs scored on Paul Lindblad's pinchhit sacrifice fly and a single by Bert Campaneris.

In the bottom of the 10th, the Yankees scored once on a solo home run by Frank Fernandez off Lindblad, the third Oakland hurler. Lindblad picked up his seventh win in relief, three in the past week, against two losses.

New York appeared to have won the game earlier when Joe Pepitone slammed his 23rd homer in the seventh inning off starter Vida Blue for a 2-1 lead, but the A's tied the score in the ninth on a double by Ted Kubiak and two infield outs.

and walks away, shoulders squared off.

In the first 440-yard race, a grueling stretch run in the sun around the field, Fred Ireland of Nova Albion is leading all the way in cut-off blue jeans and black tennis shoes, hair flying, breathing hard, coming into the stretch. Tony Lorenzo, a taller boy, running smoothly, passes him near the finish as Fred makes one last lunge, totters and slides past the tape, stomach and knees first, to end up on his back, in second place.

It's like the last grand Olympian effort. A supervisor walks him around the grass, now cut, as much to console him as to let him catch his lost breath.

GAMELY, WEAKLY

In the softball throw area, the six to eight-year-old girls are at it. It is something new for them, an art that most girls will never master. Some throw underhanded, most gamely, but weakly.

Lynn Rothman gets one off 11 feet, but the short, dark-haired girl isn't a bit disappointed.

"I didn't practice too much," she says brightly. "Anyway, I got second in the race."

You sit and watch all this, listen to the beautiful noise, all the white teeth in place, the young speed and enthusiasm. You think you couldn't possibly have been that young as you sweat after walking across the field.

You feel a little stuffy and the tie hurts. You feel a little old.

softball throw area behind the opposite field bleachers were huddled in the main bleachers, under very loose control by a flock of youthful, tanned San Rafael Recreation Department summer workers who looked like Peace Corps Volunteers in their blue tops.

Bruce D'Ambra, a veteran of San Rafael High football, basketball and baseball seasons, was the announcer for the afternoon, churning out the names of little would-be-heroes and winners.

EAGER RABBITS

They came scurrying out of the bleachers to report to the starters like eager rabbits, the little girls somewhat shy and already breathless, pigtails flying, eyes bright. And they raced down the homestretch smiling, something you will never see Jim Ryun or John Carlos do again, if they ever did it.

They came from parks, playgrounds and schools, already imitating high school as they cheered their respective teams. On the backs of sweaters and T-shirts, they had scratched in team names, sloppily in a proud sort of way. Bret Harte, Bahia Vista, Laurel Dell, San Pedro, Oak View, Albert, Hartzell, Gerstle, Victor Jones, Santa Margarita, Sun Valley, Nova Albion — they were all there, always running past the bleachers, past the bright hula hoops put together to make an Olympic emblem.

TRY AGAIN

They all think they will win, or try again. No all of them do, and disappointment sometimes runs deep, even at this age, although it doesn't last long. Not when you have a grandfather in suspenders to console a six-year-old little girl who climbs into his lap. Not when there is another race to run.

In the broad jump pit, a little fellow who has already won the event, begs for another jump, just for the heck of it. There is some disorganized squabbling about the number of jumps he's had. He flies through the air, maybe all of 10 feet.

"You've already won," the supervisor tells him. He smiles

San Rafael, San Jose Teams Clash

The rampaging San Rafael Braves, tied for the top spot in the San Jose Travel League, take on the San Jose Sandlotters in a doubleheader at Albert Field, San Rafael, tomorrow at 1 p.m.

The Braves have won five in a row in piling up a 6-2 won-lost league record. The Sandlotters, true to their name, have not been so fortunate, owning a 2-6 mark. The Braves are tied for the lead with Fontinetti Sporting Goods of San Jose.

Amazing Russ Dillon will pitch one of the games for Joe Anselmo's bunch. The second game will be in the hands of former Marin Catholic ace Ben Burch.

LIKE GANGBUSTERS

Dillon has moved into the semi-pro ranks like gangbusters. The recently graduated Novato High School southpaw has pitched 14 innings, given up no runs, struck out 29 batters, allowed just three hits and has already hurled a no-hitter and two shutouts.

Catcher Rocky Shone leads the San Rafael muscle department with 35 hits in 75 at bats for a whopping .467 average.

Raiders Battle 'Old' Colts; 49ers Hurting For Opener

Familiar Faces In Oakland Game Tonight

OAKLAND (AP) — Look along the Baltimore Colts' bench and you see very few young or unfamiliar faces.

That's what worries first-year Oakland Raider Coach John Madden as he thinks about tonight's exhibition game against the defending National Football League champions.

Starting at quarterback, where No. 1 Earl Morrall and No. 2 Johnny Unitas are beginning their 14th season, the Colts have two or more veterans at every position.

"That's what makes playing a team like the Colts so difficult," Madden said. "And it's especially tough in a preseason game.

"I realize they want to get a look at their reserve people, just like we do. But when you have been as good as they have for so long your reserves are mostly veterans — like Unitas."

13TH SEASON

Ten of the Colts have played at least nine years. Linebacker Don Shinnick is entering his 13th year, while wide receiver Jimmy Orr, defensive back Lenny Lyles and kicker Lou Michaels are embarking on their 12th.

However, the Colts have some impressive young players.

Second-year man Terry Cole, who gained 418 yards last season, will start in place of the injured fullback, Jerry Hill.

Ray Perkins, a former Alabama star in his third season, hopes this will be the year he takes over Orr's job.

Jeff Beaver, a 15th round draft choice in 1968 from North Carolina, will back up Morrall and Unitas.

TOP DRAFTEES

Three top draft choices this year should see action against the Raiders, says Coach Don Shula. They are flanker Eddie Hinton from Oklahoma, linebacker Ted Hendricks from Miami of Florida, and defensive back Tom Maxwell from Texas A&M.

The Colts, who join the American Football League in 1970, defeated San Diego 26-6 last week and play four out of their remaining five exhibition games against AFL foes.

Oakland, on the other hand, is expected to play more youngsters, including scrambling second-year man Eldridge Dickey, who appears to have moved ahead of 41-year-old George Blanda as the Raiders' No. 2 quarterback.

Dickey performed well running and passing for the AFL Western Division champs in a 33-0 victory over the Dallas Cowboy rookies and a 23-17 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs.

Oakland is considered a veteran team in the AFL but 14 of its 22 starters have four years or less of experience.

Few Receivers For S.F. Game In Seattle

SEATTLE (UPI)—San Francisco's trio of quarterbacks may run into problems tomorrow trying to get a passing game going against the Cleveland Browns in their 1969 exhibition opener.

Kickoff is 3 p.m. on the Astroturf-covered field at the University of Washington. The game will be televised nationally by CBS (Channel 5.)

John Brodie, George Mira and Steve Spurrier of the 49ers are sound and ready to throw against a Cleveland secondary which led the NFL in interceptions last year with 32. However, the 49ers find themselves at bit short of receivers.

Clifton McNeil, who came to San Francisco from the Browns in a trade before the start of the 1968 season, won't be playing against his old mates. McNeil, best pass snatcher in the league last season, is still a holdout.

WITCHER HOBBLED

Split end Dick Witcher is hobbled by an ankle sprain and may only see limited action. San Francisco's top draft choices, Ted Kwalick and Gene Washington, both receivers, hardly have had time to acquaint themselves with the team's complicated play book. Washington has been working out for one week while Kwalick signed with the club only this past Thursday.

That leaves only flashy free agent Bill Wondolowski, Bob Windsor and Leo Johnson for receivers. So the 49er quarterbacks may start throwing more to their running backs or concentrate on a ground attack.

In addition to Witcher, defensive tackle Kevin Hardy and guard Don Parker will sit out the game with knee troubles.

Cleveland also has its problems at quarterback. Frank Ryan has a pulled hamstring muscle, Bill Nelson a chronic bad knee and Jerry Rhome is suffering from a sore throwing arm.

Mill Valley Girls Triumph In Tennis

Mill Valley defeated Los Altos, 8-1, yesterday in Junior Wightman Cup girls tennis competition at Mill Valley.

Mill Valley match winners were Marsha Dudley, Karen O'Neill, Carmelita DeUrioste, Lisa Bertizhoff and Stella Perone in singles and the doubles teams of Misses Bertizhoff-Perone, Dudley-O'Neill and Alice Cutter-Terri Thurston.

NBA Admits Talks With Rival Loop; Pro Cager Merger Is Held Possible

Commissioners Issue Joint Statements

NEW YORK (AP) — The established National Basketball Association has taken official cognizance of its young rival, the American Basketball Association.

This was the interpretation given today to the joint announcement of Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the 24-year-old NBA, and James Gardner, president of the 2-year-old ABA, that discussions have been held that "ultimately might lead to a merger."

The announcement yesterday said that Kennedy and Gardner "and their attorneys have begun exploring the possibility of cooperative arrangements between the two basketball leagues. The form of such arrangements has not been agreed upon, but it is hoped that they will be shaped to conform to the needs of the various cities in the leagues as well as to any applicable law."

STAGE SET

The stage thus is set for a possible repetition of what happened in pro football when the old NFL and its young rival, the AFL, merged.

"As far as I'm concerned, there'll be nothing further done at this time," Kennedy said. "We talked about several possibilities that ultimately might lead to a merger."

Kennedy said the discussions, which confirmed a report last week by Paul Caruso, attorney for the Los Angeles ABA club, had been held with three club owners of the NBA and three owners from the ABA.

OWNERS IDENTIFIED

He identified them as Ned Irish of the New York Knicks, Sam Schulman of Seattle and Richard Block of Phoenix for the NBA, and Gardner, Ray Boe of the New York Nets and Joseph Gear of Dallas for the ABA. Gardner also heads the Carolina ABA Cougars.

The NBA has teams in New York, Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Phoenix, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle.

Teams in the ABA represent New York, Kentucky, Indiana, New Orleans, Dallas, Los Angeles, Denver, Carolina, Pittsburgh, Miami and Oakland.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

To maintain good approach balance, extend the left arm away from the body (see illustration). This should become automatic. It helps balance the bowler against the weight of the ball on the right side. Those who don't extend the left arm will probably sag to the right.

MARIN BOWLING NOTES

10 Strikes For 275 Game

It didn't look like it at the time, but Bill Henderson, the head machanic at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, came pretty close to a 300 game this week.

He came in with a 275 game, best game of the week anywhere, but there was none of that intense pressure and whispering that usually surrounds a near-miss.

Henderson spared in the sixth frame, brushing off any thoughts of a perfect game early. He also left a pin in the final frame to finish with 10 strikes.

He finished with a fine 866 four-game set, high for the week at Country Club Bowl.

Leo Schwab had an 815 set, topped by a 223 game. Also making the 800 set at Country Club were Mike Weddell of the 555 Trios with an 808, topped by a 234, and Lee Stetson with an 806 topped by a 218.

THIS AND THAT — Top three-game series at Country Club was turned in by Ron Baccei, who had a 614 in the adult juniors.

Paul Panholzer was tops at Nave Lanes near Ignacio with an 809 while Dennis Chase had the best single game of 234. John Doherty had a 620-series with a 237 game. Chuch Farris checked in with a 605 while George Pfautch had a 604.

Top gal at Nave Lanes was Jackie Newsome with a 551, while Beth Marston had a 541.

At Greenbrae Lanes, Charles Hinkel, a steady 177 average bowler, soared to a whopping 268 in the Monday's Men's Trios. Roy Haugen had a 251 game in the Woodcutters League.

Gayle Chu, who not too long ago bowled her first 600 series, continued to do a good, steady job of things in the Adult Juniors League at Country Club Bowl. Her latest efforts resulted in a 546 and a 541 series, for first and third-best ladies efforts this week. Bea Hoffman had a 536 in the Sleepers while runnerup honors went to Josi Kwan with a 545.

PERRY LITCHFIELD topped the juniors, breaking up what looked like a 600 series, when he bowled a 206-206-171—583 three-game set. Cathy Naghdi, holder of a 128 average, came in with a 469 series topped by a 186 game.

Also at Country Club, Audrey Morris, who holds a 143 average, hit it big with a four-game 720 series, topped by a 217 game. So did Marion Ray, normally a 164 bowler, who had an 805 series for four games, with games of 210, and 225.

Piro, Boro Pace Schafer Quintet To Summer Title

Jerry Piro scored 26 points and John Boro contributed 22 to lead Schafer's to an 86-73 victory over the Riordan Crusaders of San Francisco last night in the playoff for the championship of the Drake High School Summer Basketball League's high school division.

Schafer's, which also won the title in 1968, is composed of Redwood High School players Kevin Restani scored 37 points for Riordan.

In the playoff for third place, Pier 15 (Wilson High, S.F.) downed the Lowell Cardinals, 49-44. Ron Dale scored 17 for Wilson and Gary Dunn 12 for Lowell.

Miss Walsh Wins Two In Nationals

Seventeen-year-old Sharon Walsh of San Rafael chopped down her first two opponents in the National Girls Tennis Tournament at Philadelphia yesterday.

Sharon, seeded sixth, downed Jane Kincaid of Washington, D.C., 8-6, 6-2 and Ann Lebedeff 6-3, 6-2.

She was scheduled to play Tam Tiegarten today. The tournament is for girls aged 18 years and younger.

Troppmann Joins Marines; Suyderhoud Gains Finals

SPORTS SHORTS

COMBINED AP & UPI

Jim Troppmann, son of Redwood High School football coach and athletic director Bob Troppmann, has left his job as freshman football coach at Stanford University.

The former All-Northern California quarterback at Redwood High School has joined the Marine Corps. Replacing him will be Bill Maultrie, the only Negro member of the Stanford football coaching staff, who was elevated from a defensive backfield coaching spot.

WATER SKIING

COPENHAGEN — Mike Suyderhoud, 19, of San Anselmo, defending world's champion, has qualified for tomorrow's trick skiing finals in the 11th World Water Eki Championships on Lake Bagsvaerd, Bruce Cockburn of Australia leads the men's combined list after the slalom and trick skiing qualifying events.

TENNIS

SAN FRANCISCO — Prize money — more than $20,000 worth — will be offered for the first time in the Pacific Coast International Tennis Championships, officials of the sponsoring Northern California Tennis Association said yesterday.

Already lined up for the tournament Sept. 27-Oct. 5 at the Berkeley Tennis Club are U. S. Davis Cup team members Arthur Ashe, Stan Smith and Charles Pasarell, plus former U. S. touring pro Barry MacKay and Australia's No. 1 player, Bill Bowrey.

New rules of the International Lawn Tennis Federation allow the prize money to be offered this year.

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. — Clark Graebner, New York, beat Patricio Cornejo, Chile, 6-3, 6-2 and Bill Bowrey, Australia, defeated Gene Scott, New York, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3 to reach the semifinals in the Meadow Club $12,000 Invitation Grass Court Tourney.

AUTO RACING

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Parnelli Jones, Ed Leslie and Mark Donohue all bettered the Trans-Am sedan lap record during yesterday's qualifying session in preparation for tomorrow's race to be held on the 2.3-mile Watkins Glen grand prix course.

Current point standings after seven races of a 12-race series show Chevrolet leading with 49 points. Ford has 46, Pontiac 21 and American Motors 11. Jones will be doing his bit for Ford in a 302 Mustang, while Donohue and Leslie will be driving Penske Camaros.

GOLF

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio — Sharon Miller, Marlene Hagge, Murle Lindstrom Breer and Sandra Spuzich tied at 71 for the first round lead in the $20,000 LPGA Springfield Open.

VANCOUVER, B.C. — Bob Cox, Richmond, B.C., posted a second-round 68 to take the 36-hole lead at 134 in the Canadian PGA Championship.

Redwood Highway Gains As Route For Vacationers

IF YOU HAVEN'T driven up the Redwood Highway at least as far as Eureka in the past couple of years, you would be amazed at the changes.

The most disagreeable sections of the old route — those lined with disintegrating roadside stands and those with the sharpest, most numerous curves, narrowest pavement and steepest grades — are now bypassed by new sections of four-lane freeway.

No longer do you get stuck behind a smelly diesel logging truck for endless miles. The chance to pass is never more than a few minutes away.

THE REDWOOD EMPIRE Association reports that of the 270 highway miles from the Golden Gate to Eureka, 160 are now expanded to four lanes. Twelve miles of new freeway are under construction — again bypassing one of the toughest-to-drive sections of the old route. That still leaves 98 miles of two-lane road. Most of this, the association predicts, will be four lanes by 1980. An 18-mile section which is relatively straight and level, north and south of Laytonville, may still be two lanes in 1980.

For reasons difficult to find out, much less understand, the California Highway Commission has long assigned a low priority to Redwood Highway construction.

During most of the half century since the idea of a Redwood Highway was conceived, the highway commission has included a representative from the Redwood Empire area. When Pat Brown was governor, he broke that tradition, replacing the Redwood Empire incumbent with an outsider.

Governor Reagan has thus far followed Brown's example.

Chances for getting the highway commission to advance priorities for the Redwood Highway therefore seem slim.

Senator Collier, Congressman Clausen and others have mentioned the advisability and advantages of getting the Redwood Highway included in the system of interstate routes, thereby qualifying it for more federal construction funds. So far, that development has appeared remote.

In 1980, we may still be driving over two-lane sections of the Redwood Highway while the main arterials in the rest of California are being converted from four or six to eight or 10 lanes.

As Carney Campion, general manager of Redwood Empire Association, has put it: "We'll take all the help we can get in stepping up time tables."

IN SOME INSTANCES, the new four-lane routes bypass the magnificent drives through superlative old giant redwood trees.

Those grand old sections are preserved as the "Avenue of the Giants." Getting off the freeway and meandering through the big trees is better than ever. Commercial traffic, including logging trucks, keep to the freeways, as do those in a hurry to get from one place to another. As a result, the pace along the Avenue of the Giants is unhurried and traffic is relatively light.

You can safely slow down a bit to look more closely at something beside the road without being honked at by an impatient truck driver.

It will be a great day when the remaining 100 miles from Eureka to the Oregon border is similarly bypassed by freeway. Those in a hurry can move along unimpeded on the freeway while those who wish to drive leisurely among the groves of redwood giants will be able to do so in safety and comfort.

SHORTLINE RAILROADS ALONG the way are big visitor attractions.

The "skunk" trains between Willits and Fort Bragg are known nationwide, deservedly so.

The Mad River railroad out of Arcata initiated sightseeing runs this year. They are widely advertised and the number of passengers grows with each trip.

The longest available passenger train ride in the Redwood Empire — from Willits to Eureka aboard Northwestern Pacific — continues to go largely unpublicized.

Despite orders from the California Public Utilities Commission to keep its Willits-Eureka passenger service operating and PUC orders to advertise and promote it, NWP does little or nothing to attract passengers.

The ride is beautiful, following one branch of the Eel River some distance from the other branch of the Eel which Redwood Highway parallels. The NWP self-propelled diesel car is air conditioned.

A favorite among those who have "discovered" this little-publicized railroad is to drive to Willits, take the train as far as Scotia, stay overnight at the Scotia Inn, and return to Willits the next day via air-conditioned Greyhound bus.

The Scotia Inn was built before 1900 but its age shows only in its atmosphere. It is well maintained and must be among the cleanest hostelries in the world. Its dining room is no place for weight-watchers; the food is far too tasty and plentiful.

Until this pleasant circuit is discovered by too many people, it will continue to be a favorite among those who know about it and have experienced it.

—Jack Craemer

A Fitting Memorial

A fitting memorial to Caroline S. Livermore has been devised in the wall which was dedicated this week at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The serpentine wall of brick adds to the distinction of the center which was so much the project of Mrs. Livermore, Marin's "grand dame of conservation." The ornamental gates at the entrance add to that distinction and symbolize that the center is open for the enjoyment of Marinites, while the wall secludes it from the traffic of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The center itself is largely a memorial to the unflagging dedication of Mrs. Livermore. The wall named for her is an appropriate completion of that memorial.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Golden Gate Bridge Safety Suggestion

one-way toll collection on the Golden Gate Bridge seems to work beautifully, but somebody should always be available for communication by northbound travelers. Inconvenience and even tragedy can result from there being nobody now manning those lanes.

For one thing, a person assigned to the easternmost toll gate with the role of "information officer" would provide a needed courtesy to tourists on this highly traveled entrance to Northern California.

More important, however, is the fact that whereas many of us "veterans" of the bridge used to be able to report autoists in distress so that police or tow-car could aid them, today there is no toll collector to whom a northbound motorist can pass this vital word. Some approaches south of the toll gates have dangerous turns for those whose car breaks down. Speed in getting out flares and moving stalled vehicles is a vital safety need.

I hope sincerely the bridge district may work something but before a bad accident occurs which might otherwise have been averted if northbound motorists could promptly report dangerous situations to a person on duty.

Response To Story Saves His Job

I wish to express my gratitude for your attention to my problems with Safeway Stores. It was due to your report of my situation that I am still employed. Actually, I was completely unprepared for the response to your article. The customers of the Tiburon store as well as concerned people throughout the county filed verbal and written complaints of the proposed action of Safeway. Enough public reaction eventually persuaded my employers that it was not harmful to continue to employ me.

Naturally, I am thankful to the Independent-Journal, Suzanne Wood, the reporter who came to interview me, was extremely kind and professional and went to great personal effort in performing her duties. Unfortunately, I've forgotten the name of your photographer who accompanied Miss Wood, but she, also, was wonderfully charming and efficient. (Ed. note: The photographer was Jackie Hartman.)

I don't know what the Independent-Journal's opinion is on the issue of hair. But I believe my continued employment as a positive step, small, but in the right direction.

LINES ON LIVING

Communion With God Can't Be Wired For Sound

By RABBI HAIM KEMELMAN

Perhaps the saddest thing that can happen to us is not that business becomes a religion (that was always so for many), but that religion becomes a business. When religion becomes so organized, so computerized, as to turn into a commercial ritual, it is in danger of becoming a mundane enterprise.

The temptation to offer discount salvation, whosesale redemption and quick answers to complex human problems is not new. We have listened for a long time to the prophets of peace and serenity telling us of the tranquilizing creed of relaxation which is made easy to come by in a self-induced passivity. Now there is something new added on the market. Dial-a-Prayer has gained a new companion in ministry. It's dial-a-message for comfort and solace. And it has become a big business.

This new system of "religious communication" makes use of the instant impulses of electronic gear by making it possible for its user to gain immediate access to the honey-dripping voice of the cleric — tape recorded and delivered — parson to person. Like a dial-a-Prayer device, this remote control operation promises the individual never to be left alone in time of need, always gaining the earphone of hallowing human sound. At the same time, it offers the clergyman the convenience and dispatch of a quick and valuable service, sparing him the time and physical effort of a personal visit by simply making a congregant move his fingers along the yellow pages and dial a message of reassurance. In short, it's effectual and efficient.

WHAT A FEAT of modernity! What an accomplishment of instant communication! What a triumph of the machine! But, for God's sake, who needs it?

The desire for anchorage, for a firmer support inherent in prayer and spiritual yearning will not be turned on by a dial. The quest for refuge and certainty in the midst of life's uncertainties and in the roaring flux of things will not be answered by mechanical incantation, repeating a prayer like a broken record. The longing of one's individual frail self to merge into the corporate whole of God and man will not be fulfilled by being wired to sound.

Communion with the Divine is not communication by dial; prayer efficacy is not instant efficiency and faith cannot be packaged and delivered C.O.D.

HAVEN'T WE BEEN mocked enough by the machine that often appears to replace the personal touch of humanity, the warmth of the living individuality with robot-like insensitivity? Why allow the machine to mock God and us by delegating to it the most sublime and intimate of human thoughts, our need to find oneness in the strong arms of the everlasting?

The most precious things in life don't come our way by the asking; and are certainly not advanced by proxy. And if prayer and spiritual introspection means anything to us at all, it is in its self-application and self-extension. It isn't perfunctory lip-service; it isn't mechanical superstition and magical enchantment. Its main power lies in that it is a service of the heart, a dynamic stirring of person and personality, awakening a unity and an identity and a sense of oneness with all divine. It is a person to person, person to God relationship — not a mechanical hook-up.

Too much perfume, someone has keenly observed, is in bad taste; and even the odor of sanctity can be overdone. This is especially true when sanctity is overdone by wire, by sound, by commercial means.

THE ACOUSTICS of prayer are not best echoed in wired sound and in instant delivery; the sweet mellow message of faith is not best conveyed in a telephone dial and in a tape replay; the comforting thoughts of human sympathy are not best ministered by remote control.

Prayer, introspection and human sympathy can best be advanced in self-service both of ministering parson and of individual person. And while it takes character to know for what we stand, it takes fortitude to know before whom we stand. Both are human qualities, not mechanical responses.

Minutemen's Arrest Gives Hint Of Preparations For Civil War

WASHINGTON — The arrest of the founder of the extreme right Minutemen, Robert Bolivar Depugh, and his lieutenant, Walter Patrick Peyson, in Truth or Consequences, N.M., deserves more consideration than it has had for two highly significant reasons.

Despite an intensive search for the two men by the FBI on charges of violating federal firearms regulations and conspiracy to rob Seattle banks, it was a year and a half before they were apprehended. Then their arrest seems to have been due to chance recognition by a local law enforcement officer of the 1957 Jeep station wagon they were driving. The FBI had sent out an alert for the Jeep.

DEPUGH AND PEYSON boasted of their skill in evading capture for 18 months. They were passed along and concealed by the right-wing underground. Their own intensive training in survival tactics saw them through several tight spots.

More important was the extraordinary cache of weapons they had built up. As uncovered by the FBI after the arrest, it included 48 rifles, carbines, shotguns, pistols and a variety of other weapons. Thousands of rounds of ammunition, high explosives, dynamite bombs, fuses, cans of tear gas, rifle scopes, a signal pistol for flares, even bows and arrows equipped with impact grenades were stored in the hideout. It was equipment enough to launch a small guerrilla war.

Depugh and his followers say they are building up these arsenals in anticipation of a Communist takeover in the United States. Then they mean to take to the hills and resist to the last man.

In the charge involved in the Seattle bank plot, their tactics strongly resemble those of the revolutionaries in Czarist Russia in the first years of this century. They are alleged to have concocted a plot to rob banks to get money for more arms, much in the same way Stalin in his native Georgia blew up banks to get funds to carry on the underground revolution.

THE MINUTEMEN may be no more than the paranoid lunatic fringe. It must be added, however, that no lunatic fringe apparently as well organized as the Minutemen has been seen before. At least two other Minutemen caches have been uncovered, one in the New York area, one at Collinsville, Ill., the latter larger even than the New Mexico find.

J. Edgar Hoover puts a low estimate on the number of recruits in this militant rightist organization. But if two conspicuous leaders wanted on a variety of charges can hide out for so long, thanks to their own underground, this estimate may be far too low.

IN ST. LOUIS, a Nazi-like campaign pursued over many months finally forced a book store owned by Edward L. Block to close. Bricks were repeatedly thrown through the windows in the store, red paint was sprayed on exterior walls, and small foreign cars parked in the neighborhood were sprayed or had windshelds smashed. Shouts of "sieg heil" came from passing cars displaying Nazi flags. The owner gave up when three bullets smashed through a store window.

A similar campaign was directed at the Peace Information Center, specializing in anti-Vietnam war propaganda and advice on how to avoid the draft. The center also has displays of the United Nations and the United Nations Children's fund, and these seemed to draw the most virulent shouts and obscenities of the attackers.

Again, it may be merely the kook fringe responsible for the atrocities.

HOOVER RATES the Black Panthers as the most threatening revolutionary body in existence today. At least one Black Panther arms cache has been uncovered. In Oakland shooting forays with the police threatened at one point to break into open warfare. Eldridge Cleavers imprisonment, his parole and his flight from the country were an outrowth of this confrontation.

Arms on the extreme left, arms on the extreme right — here is the stuff that could explode into something like civil war.

ART BUCHWALD

Never Take Wife To Rome If You Don't Want Her Spoiled

(Art Buchwald has gone into quarantine for a few weeks so that he doesn't give the astronauts any germs. We are reprinting some of his all-time favorites.)

The big mistake was taking my wife to Rome in the first place. Any American husband in his right mind should know better than to bring his spouse to Italy, particularly for the first time. But I underestimated the Italians, which is kind of hard to do.

It all started when my wife came back to the Excelsior Hotel from a shopping trip to the Via Condotti. She had a big grin on her face.

"WHAT'S SO funny?" I wanted to know.

"Three Italians flirted with me on the street today," she said, pleased with herself.

"Well, don't let it go to your head," I warned her. "They flirt with everybody."

"Don't be too sure," she said. "Besides, the Roman men make you feel like you're really a woman."

"I make you feel like you're a woman, too," I said angrily.

"Did you ever call me blue eyes?" she wanted to know.

"No, and for a very simple reason. You don't have blue eyes."

"That's not the point. Even if they lie, they do it beautifully. I think Italian men are wonderful."

I DECIDED to drop the subject before I really lost my temper. But the next day, after another shopping tour, there she stood with the same smile on her face.

"OK," I said, "what happened today?"

"A traffic policeman stopped all the traffic on the Via Veneto so I could cross the street."

"Big deal," I said. "It so happens that traffic policemen are supposed to stop traffic so people can cross the street. That's their job."

"When the light is green?" she asked. "Then, as I crossed, he tipped his hat and all the cars were blowing their horns. It's never happened to me in any other city."

"Of course, it hasn't. In most cities traffic cops are trying to save people's lives," I said.

"DON'T BE so smart," she said. "If you want further proof that Italian men really care, this morning I ordered a coffee at Doney's and the waiter couldn't have been nicer."

"So what? Some waiters are nice. What does that prove?"

"Nothing, except he picked up the check."

She was getting impossible, and the next afternoon I was afraid to come back to the room.

The smile was waiting for me.

"I KNOW," I said. "You went to Bulgari's and the salesman gave you a diamond necklace free."

"Nothing that dramatic," she said. "But a taxi driver asked me to go dancing with him tonight."

"Wait a minute. You don't speak Italian. How do you know he asked you to go dancing tonight?"

"He held up his hands as if he were holding somebody in them and he hummed a waltz."

"What's so great about that?"

"The cab was moving while he did it."

THERE WAS nothing I could say to that, so I tried to walk out of the room.

"I think you're absolutely terrible," she said. "Everyone has been so nice and all you want to do is to throw cold water on me. American men just don't know how to appreicate a woman."

"Is that so?" I said. "Well, it so happens I have a cousin who went up to a girl on Fifth Avenue in New York and told her she had the most beautiful figure he had ever seen, and he's now doing 20 years in Sing Sing. Since then, I've kept my thoughts to myself."

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A PAIR OF OCTOGENARIANS were bemoaning the decline of the Broadway theater. "I remember," cackled one, "when no man or woman who counted would dream of going to an evening performance unless they were dressed for the occasion." "I remember even further back than that," sighed the other. "I remember when the actors and actresses dressed, too!"

TEEN-AGER TO CLASSMATE: "I've discovered that having my own telephone isn't all gravy. Now when I don't get up when the alarm rings, my mother phones me."

A mean old curmudgeon who didn't drink, smoke, or even smile — just worried continuously about his exasperatingly continuous good health — had finished his fourth complete hospital check-up in six months. "Tell me, Doctor," he implored anxiously, "do you think I'll live?"

"I do," answered the doctor wearily, "but I don't advise it."

SHOWS THE SCHISM

Bishop, Rome Split Over Birth Control

By LOUIS CASSELS
By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Most Rev. James P. Shannon, auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis, is a devoted Catholic, a good priest and an honest man.

He comes as close as anyone I know to deserving the description "Christ-like."

That he should now be embroiled in an agonizing confrontation with his superiors is an indication of how far the Catholic Church has drifted during the past year toward a disastrous schism.

PERSONAL TRAGEDY

The personal tragedy of Bishop Shannon—and the larger tragedy of his church—began to unfold last July 29, when Pope Paul VI issued an encyclical asserting that "each and every marriage act must remain open to the transmission of life."

Like many other Catholics, Shannon was dismayed by the Pope's stand on birth control. But the habit of loyalty and obedience, developed during 23 years in the priesthood, made him try to uphold the Pope's views in his pastoral counseling sessions with Catholic couples.

Last Sept. 23, after what he described as "weeks of anguish, days of prayer and hours of fear," he wrote a confidential letter to the Pope, stating that he had found the birth control teaching "simply impossible of observance by many faithful and generous spouses."

'KEEP FAITH'

"I cannot believe that God binds men to impossible standards," the bishop said. "In seeking to counsel such persons, I have found myself resorting to all sorts of casuistry and devious kinds of rationalization, in the hope that I might both keep faith with Your Holiness and with the people of God.

"I must now reluctantly admit that I am ashamed of the kind of advice I have given some of these good people . . . because it has not been an honest reflection of my inner convictions."

In reply, the 48-year-old bishop received a letter from the Vatican Secretariat of State advising him to reconsider the matter thoughtfully and prayerfully.

On Nov. 23, Shannon formally submitted his resignation as auxiliary bishop of St. Paul-Minneapolis and pastor of St. Helena's parish. This was done in a confidential communication to his superior, Archbishop Leo Binz, who evidently forwarded the resignation to Rome.

Subsequently, Shannon was summoned to Washington, D. C., for a conference with the Pope's representative, Archbishop Luigi Raimondi. Raimondi indicated the Vatican would accept the resignation if Shannon would go into voluntary exile in a foreign country.

DECLINES JOB

Shannon declined to go along with this arrangement, after ascertaining that he would be given no work to do abroad but would merely be hidden away in a remote place.

The story of Shannon's ordeal was revealed last month by Willmar L. Thorkelson, religion editor of the Minneapolis Star. The archdiocesan chancery at first issued a flat denial that any resignation had been submitted, but reversed itself after Shannon confirmed Thorkelson's report. The Vatican did a similar flip-flop, at first denying any knowledge of the case and later putting out a report of the Pope's "kind" attempts to "calm" Shannon.

Whether the resignation has ever been accepted is still cloaked in official secrecy. Shannon evidently feels that it has, for he has accepted a secular job teaching at St. John's college, a nondenominational school at Sante Fe, N.M.

In a recent letter to a friend, Shannon described himself as "a deeply troubled man."

"Please pray for me," he said.

Prayer also would seem to be in order for the Catholic Church.

PRAISES WORK

"Bishop Shannon has shown himself the most effective spokesman of the American Church to the young, the troubled, the alienated, the intellectuals at a moment when they and so many others find religion declining in influence," the Catholic magazine America said in an editorial this week.

"What is happening in the Church when it can be deprived of the official services of a man who would easily find himself the popular choice for bishop by the laity and clergy of almost any diocese in the country?"

Theologian Explores Gap Between Ages

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—One reason for the generation gap, according to a famed theologian, is that the youngsters are turning to Eastern philosophies.

Dr. Frederic Spiegelberg, Stanford professor emeritus and author of many books on the world's religions, this week called on America's parents to realize "the enormous impact of Oriental culture on present day civilization."

Spiegelberg addressed the opening session Thursday of a three-day University of San Francisco symposium on Asian philosophy.

He was asked by a long-bearded student: "How do you tell an American businessman about the spiritual insights of the East? How do you explain why a 14-year-old will go half-naked in the Haight-Ashbury?"

Spiegelberg said the only way was to "wait and try to let him discover it himself."

Another speaker was Dr. Sirjit Singh, who teaches Christian philosophy at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Pension Payments Increased 10 Pct.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Pension payments to retired pastors and teachers or their widows have been increased 10 per cent by The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, effective Sept. 1.

This will boost the minimum pension for full-participation retirees from $150 to $165 per month; for widows from $90 to $99.

Shortage Eases

HELSINKI (UPI)—The Lutheran Church of Finland reports that the shortage of pastors has eased in the past two years. In January 1967, there were 70 vacant pastoral posts. This year only 17 out of 1,200 posts were empty.

Dutch Celibacy Poll

UTRECHT, The Netherlands (UPI)—An opinion poll published by the Dutch Roman Catholic Bishops shows that 75 per cent of the priests and priest-candidates in Holland are opposed to the requirement of celibacy.

THEOLOGIAN QUESTIONS NIXON RITES

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, the theologian and philosopher, says President Richard Nixon's Sunday worship services in the White House have won him seeming religious approval for his policies and appear to defy the constitutional mandate for separation of church and state.

Niebuhr, 77-year-old retired professor of Union Theological Seminary, said the President had established a "tamed religion" which "seems even more extravagantly appreciative of official policy than any historic establishment feared by our founding fathers."

Niebuhr said in an article in the interdenominational journal "Christianity and Crisis:" "It is wonderful what a simple White House invitation will do to dull the critical faculties."

Contributions By Lutherans Show A Hike

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Members of the Lutheran Church-Missouri synod in the United States and Canada contributed $29,463,387 in 1968 for all purposes, an increase of $1,137,019 over 1967.

The average per communicant, however, dropped from $119.56 in 1967 to $118.59 in 1968.

Of the total, $180,964,191 was given for home purposes, an increase of $9,840,913. Contributions for work at large were $48,499,095, while the budget of the Synod received $25,801,497. There was a special "Make Things Happen" offering of $1,091,868.

70 Commissioned In Foreign Field

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Approximately 70 candidates for foreign service have been commissioned by the Assemblies of God School of Missions after completing intensive training in missions methods, relationships and goals.

Within a year the candidates expect to be in the countries to which they are assigned. They will join 969 missionaries of the denomination already under appointment in 82 countries of the world.

Greenwich Village Clergyman Admits To An 'Odd Ministry'

STANFORD (UPI)—Rev. Al Carmines admits he has an "odd ministry."

In addition to preaching and counseling, the 32-year-old Methodist minister acts, sings, plays piano and operates a lively theater producing new, and often far-out, plays.

While these activities are part of his ministerial duties, Carmines has been forced literally to moonlight to compose his five off-Broadway musicals.

The Greenwich Village clergyman writes his music between 1 and 5 a.m.—leaving him time to preach and perform during the daylight and evening hours.

"I'm lucky. I only need six hours sleep," said the heavy-set, long-haired Carmines during an interview at Stanford Summer Festival, where he appeared in his musical version of Gertrude Stein's "In Circles."

Despite his success as a popular composer—two musicals, "Peace" and "Promenade," are now playing off-Braodway—he has no plans to leave the ministry.

ASSOCIATE PASTOR

Carmines, who became associate pastor at Judson Memorial Church in Greenwich Village after graduating from Union Theological Seminary in 1961, finds the two fields complement each other.

"I like dealing with people of all ages and of all backgrounds . . . and we have a very diverse congregation," he said. "It helps me in my composing. It keeps me from becoming too academic and esoteric."

SETS UP THEATER

Carmines, who did some acting while a student at Swarthmore, was hired by his church to set up a theater which would perform original works by New York playwrights.

Judson Poet's Theater, located in a 100-seat choir loft, has since produced 80 plays, including the first "Happenings" and some productions with total nudity. Six plays, including five Carmines musicals, moved into commercial production off-Broadway.

SOARING COSTS

Church, Mexico Working To Restore Guadalupe Shrine

MEXICO CITY (AP) — 1531, the Virgin of Guadalupe reportedly appeared on a hilltop before an Indian peasant, telling him to pass on to the bishop of Mexico her request that a sanctuary be built upon the site.

Now, centuries later, it is apparent that, for construction purposes, she could have chosen a better location.

The sanctuary, which originally was a small chapel at the foot of Tepeyac Hill, since has grown to huge proportions and still is growing.

Its problem is that it rests on a slippery clay subsoil, and buildings are sinking at disproportionate rates. The Catholic Church and government are now engaged in a massive program to restore the center, raise sinking buildings and make the site more beautiful.

Jose Cano, engineer in charge of the project which began six years ago, said he doesn't know when it will be finished. Original estimates set the cost at $1.6 million, but it is certain to be much more, Cano said.

The unit, located only about four miles from downtown Mexico City, ranges over the foot of Tepeyac Hill and up onto the hill itself. The government of the federal district—Mexico City—and the Banco Nacional de Mexico are working to clear the grounds around the shrine of decrepit dwellings and vendors' stalls, replacing them with hillside gardens, parking areas and roads from which the shrine can better be seen.

While work continues, an estimated 15,000 daily visit the shrine, many traversing its huge courtyard on their knees. On Dec. 12, Day of the Virgin, more than one million devout visit the shrine.

The first restoration to be all but completed is that of the chapel of the pool, built over a sulphurous spring near which the Virgin is reported to have appeared to the Indian Juan Diego for the fourth time. In 1963, when restoration got under way, one side of the building was 1.86 meters lower than the other.

The original chapel of Tepeyac is being restored now, but will require much work. Part of its walls and foundations still stand and will be reinforced after excavation beneath it, where Juan Diego and others were said to have been buried, is completed by archaeologists.

Next to the basilica, begun in 1691 and finished in 1709, stands the convent of the Capuchin Order, erected between 1780 and 1789. Its rear to the north rests on bedrock of the hill of Tepeyac, while its southerly front is sinking. Its eastern side also has sunk markedly, giving it a definite east-west list, when viewed beside the basilica, the western end of which has sunk.

The cant of the basilica will not be tampered with because of the excessive cost, said Cano. Instead, the engineers are trying to prevent it sinking any more.

MARIN ACTIVITIES

Churches Unite For Bible School

A joint vacation Bible school, sponsored by Grace Lutheran Church and St. Francis Episcopal Church, both of Novato, will be held for two weeks, beginning Monday at the Lutheran church education building, 1787 Grant Avenue.

Daily classes, from 9 to 11:30 a.m., will be held for children, kindergarten age through the sixth grade.

Theme of the two-congregation school is "Living God's Way." Included will be worship services, Bible lessons, handicraft activities, recreation and a refreshment period.

SABBATH RITES

Merrill Ring, member of Congregation Kol Shofar, will conduct Sabbath services next Friday at 8:30 p.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

He will conduct part of the service, playing the guitar for a group of melodies from the Conservative Sabbath prayer book and other Jewish folk melodies.

NEW SECRETARY

Frank Pulice of Sleepy Hollow has been installed secretary of the St. Francis chapter of the Archdiocese of San Francisco Knights of Columbus.

Pulice is past grand knight of the San Rafael Council. The St. Francis chapter is composed of the 32 councils in Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties.

TO PREACH

Dr. Roland P. Wiederaenders, first vice president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, will preach at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow at Trinity Lutheran Church, 333 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael.

Dr. Wiederaenders has served as first vice president of the synod for more than a decade and was re-elected for another term at the church's recent biennial synod in Denver. His offices are in St. Louis.

BIBLE SCHOOL

Registration for a two-week daily vacation church school beginning Monday is now being taken at the Mill Valley Methodist Church, Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue.

The school, open to children ages 5-12, will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. weekdays through Aug. 22.

IDESST LEADER

Manuel Silva of Mill Valley was installed last Sunday for another term as president of IDESST (Brotherhood of the Holy Ghost and Holy Trinity) Lodge in Sausalito.

Other officers installed at the organization's monthly meeting at the IDESST Hall in Sausalito were Joseph Souza of Muir Beach, vice president; Tony Brazil of Petaluma, marshal; Joseph V. Hedge of Mill Valley, master of ceremonies; Manuel P. Silva of Mill Valley, inside sentinel; John F. Cunha of Tiburon, secretary; Tony Mederios of Sausalito, treasurer; Thomas A. Nunes of Lucas Valley, junior past president and Manuel Brazil of Petaluma and Manuel Almeida of Sausalito, directors.

MIDWEEK RITES

Midweed services will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday each week during the remainder of this month, September and part of October at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 240 Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon, Rev. William M. Perdue has announced.

The services are experimental in nature, somewhat less formal than Sunday services and will provide opportunity for conversations about scripture, faith and life in the 20th Century.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Hiatt, missionaries from Argentina, will be featured in a special service at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Southern Marin Assembly of God, East Blithedale and Sycamore avenues, Mill Valley.

Hiatt will discuss the January 1969 gospel invasion of Western Argentina.

MODERN AUTOGYRO — Those old enough to remember the 1930s will easily recognize this modern version of the autogyro, now called a tyrocopter. It will be featured at the two-day air show, Aug. 16 and 17, at Gnoss Field.

AT GNOSS FIELD

Show Will Feature Many Aerial Events

Sky divers, airplane acrobatics, flybys of military supersonic F106's and many other attractions are planned for an air show from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Aug. 16 and 17 at Gnoss Field, the Marin County Airport north of Novato.

The show is billed as the first air show of this magnitude put on by private companies in Marin County. It is sponsored by the Southern Marin and Novato Kiwanis clubs, according to Burt Freeman, show chairman.

On-the-ground displays will have everything from antique airplanes, Army helicopters, experimental aircraft and the latest in private planes.

"The fliers are all professional fliers with thousands of hours to their records," Freeman said.

Robert Short, with 11,000 hours of flying will do acrobatics with the Citabria, the only fully unrestricted acrobatic aircraft today. These stunts include slow rolls, Cuban eights, barrel rolls, snap rolls, whipstall, hammerhead turns and inverted flight. His home base is Flyways of Oakland.

George Perez of Glen Ellen with 4,000 hours of flying time, will fly a World War II P51. He will do all the standard stunts with the machine including his specialty the "square loop." In doing these stunts, his plane uses 100 gallons of fuel per hour.

For those too young to fly, or who like to do their flying on the ground, the Marin Radio Control Group, under the direction of Ben Ostlind, will have about 40 radio-controlled model planes there.

"These are real planes, capable of doing everything a real plane can do," Ostlind said. Some are scale models of planes in various sizes. Some planes will be on display in the area behind the hangar. Others will be flown to demonstrate radio control. There will even be a radio-controlled glider, Ostlind said.

The Army recruiting office in San Rafael, under the direction of Sgt. Douglas Conley, will have four Army helicopters and a fixed wing twin turbine engine on static display.

These are a Cobra helicopter coming in from New Mexico; a Chinook from Fort Ord; a Mohawk from Fort Lewis, a Loach or low flying two passenger fast helicopter, and a light observation helicopter, both from St. Louis, Mo. There will be pilots at each aircraft to explain how they are used in Vietnam, Sergeant Conley said.

The five sky divers are under the direction of Dean Matthews of San Pablo. They will jump in two groups, one of three and one of two jumpers. These jumpers will have smoke flares so that their falls may be followed by the crowd on the ground.

The 78th Fighter Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base is cooperating by having fly-bys of Supersonic F106's.

Wallace Clark of Novato will be the master of ceremonies.

He has arranged for at least three gyrocopters. These are home-built by the individuals who will fly them, he said. These planes are similar to the autogyro of the 1930's, he said. They operate on a free running rotor while a helicopter has a powered rotor. Gyrocopters get their forward power by a pusher-type prop, according to Clark.

Antique airplanes will be on display. These are reproductions of former great aircraft, built exactly like their predecessors. Ted J. Schuster of San Rafael is in charge of this portion of the show.

World War II vintage planes will be represented by a Stearman, an old biplane; an AT6 trainer, a P51 pursuit plane and a B25 bomber, furnished by Spectrum Air Inc., at the field. The company will also have a Learjet, the latest in executive type jet planes.

"We could not have put on the show without the excellent cooperation of various groups," Freeman said.

He paid special tribute to the Marin County Aviation Commission, the board of supervisors, Gnoss Field personnel, the sheriff's air patrol, Civil Air Patrol, Novato Fire Department, Novato Chamber of Commerce, Marin County Sheriff's Department and the California Highway Patrol.

All proceeds from the show will go to the charitable work of the Kiwanis clubs. These include helping youth groups, scholarships and similar work, and the pre-history museum sponsored by the Novato club.

Half Of Loot Is Left Behind

Two young burglars who were frightened away from half their loot Thursday still made off with goods valued at more than $1,000 from an apartment at Eden Roc apartments in Waldo, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

The burglars, reportedly 18 to 20 years old, fled when seen at 10:50 a.m. by a tenant. Deputies found loot from the apartment of Arthur P. Petty, 22 Ross Drive, hidden in a water heater compartment in the apartment building.

Recovered were stereo equipment, clothes, luggage and a tape recorder valued at a total of $1,700. Still missing from Petty's apartment, deputies said, are a .410 gauge shotgun, two cameras with several lenses and filters, and a suede coat, valued at a total of $1,035.

Burglary Reported

Burglars Thursday walked through the unlocked front door of the Leon Waherman home at 450 Laurel Avenue, San Anselmo, and made off with a stereo turntable, amplifier, tape recorder and two metal strongboxes with miscellaneous papers, worth $400, San Anselmo police reported yesterday.

Novato Panel To Consider Plan For Development

The master plan for the development of nearly four acres at the end of Hill Road will come before the Novato Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the Novato Community House.

Paul Pickart has submitted the plan for the land which lies between Hill Junior High School and the Nave Shopping Center. Pickart has made an agreement with the city on the extension of Hill Road through the property so that eventually it can be a four-lane street to South Novato Boulevard.

The commission will also discuss the lot detail for the Los Robles Mobile Home Park and skirting around the mobile homes in the park at Bel Marin Keys and Nave Drive.

Other items to come before the commission include a request by Edward J. Kraft to keep a greenhouse which has been constructed within five feet of the property line where 16 feet is required at 12 San Juan Court, the acquisition of right-of-way on San Marin Drive and the removal of a tree at 1602 Vallejo Avenue requested by Leo N. Andrade.

Donald Walter wanted desperately to attend commencement exercises at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

His name was listed on the program along with 462 other candidates eligible to receive their associate in arts degrees. But Walter's appearance anywhere outside the confines of his temporary home is forbidden by law. He is an inmate of San Quentin Prison.

Donald Walter got his degree though — in July at the prison in the annual Bayview Schools graduation exercises.

HIS WAS THE first college degree to be awarded at the prison, and it came one year after College of Marin established its "San Quentin campus" program.

The college credit program at the prison will continue as long as funds permit, and according to Berkeley Johnson, assistant dean of instruction and coordinator of the program, could well prove to be the model for similar institutions throughout the country.

With the achievements of two regular semesters and the current summer session, the program has earned the praise of students, teachers, school and public officials and prison administrators.

THE BOARD of trustees of Marin Junior College District has approved an expansion of the curriculum for the 1969-70 academic year.

The program that made possible Donald Walter's degree is an innovation among community colleges that sometimes have been criticized as more responsive to the needs of middle class suburban interests than to those of the economically and socially disadvantaged groups or those in need of rehabilitation.

Colleges across the country are changing to meet that criticism, and College of Marin trustees have been among the first to take direct action.

ALL COSTS for the San Quentin program come from funds provided by the California State Department of Corrections. This money pays for the college instructors involved in the program, for texts and for supervisory administrative costs.

For the fall, 1968, semester, costs for instructors' salaries totalled $3,267, for supervision $316 and for administration $200.

The academic year agreement signed by prison officials and the junior college trustees set an expenditure ceiling of $10,750. According to Johnson, expenses were kept within that budget.

THE CEILING for the 1969-70 academic year has been increased to in excess of $15,000, allowing additional courses and another summer session.

Until the College of Marin program was initiated, convicts hungering for higher education had to content themselves with correspondence courses, according to Keith Hayball, the prison's supervisor of education.

Of the program, he says: "It has had a tremendous impact on the prison, particularly upon the morale of those men directly involved."

WALTER WAS one of 43 inmates to enroll. He had attended college previously and was able to apply those credits gained earlier toward his degree.

He says: "I guess I wasn't serious about education at that time, but I sure am now."

And he adds: "Just to share the same professor who is also teaching students on the free, open campuses gives us a good feeling. To go to classes at a regular time, to prepare assignments, to get marks, just like any other student, gives us a sense of being appreciated and recognized."

NOW 30, Walter believes he has "matured tremendously" after five years in prison.

Before, he explains, his principal interest was in fast cars. That, combined with alcohol and narcotics, landed him in prison.

"It all happened so fast," he says. "You wake up, and here you are, behind the walls. It is a sobering experience and it can give you a futile feeling. You may spend your time dreaming of the years beyond prison when you will be back on the streets. Or you may just let yourself go down the drain."

THE STUDENT-inmates say that they look forward during the day while performing their mundane prison chores to the evenings and their classes.

The 43 students generally take as many courses as they can possibly handle, usually meaning one class meeting per evening.

Grades of the inmates reflect their interest in their classes, with most of them maintaining between a 3.00 and 4.00 grade-point average. Twelve of them qualified for membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma, national junior college honor society, on the basis of their grades.

IN ITS first semester at the prison, the new program offered inmates five major areas — behavioral science, physical science, mathematics, social science and English — plus general curriculum. Behavioral science was the most popular major.

Courses within the various major areas included Sociology 1 (introductory study of man and society), Mathematics B (intermediate algebra), Astronomy 1, English 1A (reading and composition), and History 17A (a survey of economic, social and political history of the United States).

For the spring semester, the curriculum was expanded to eight courses with the addition of English 51 (fundamentals of composition), Mathematics 52 (elementary algebra) and Physics 1.

SUMMER SESSION courses are Statistics, Biology, Health Education and Psychology.

Courses of a more general nature offer the students a better opportunity for later transfer of those credits to a university of their choice, Johnson explains.

Of four inmate-students interviewed, all said they hope to continue their studies to earn a four-year degree if not a master's degree.

MANY OF the San Quentin students already had completed a number of correspondence courses through the University of California.

Cipriano Montoya, a Mexican-American who once ran for U.S. senator in New Mexico, is now at 42 one of the prison's most enthusiastic and articulate college students.

"Why am I thinking of a college degree at my age? Why not?" he asked. "We're not Ivy Leaguers, still making up our minds . . . not me, anyway."

MONTOYA MAY not receive a parole for many years, but he wants to be ready to enter a university and work for that degree when it does happen. He

The Fabric Doctor

Frequently The Fabric Doctor receives suggestions from cleaners who want to serve their customers better, but need some cooperation. We'll pass on to you some of the suggestions for your consideration.

1. Leave in the garment all labels which identify the fabric.

2. Examine garments returned from the cleaner upon delivery or within a reasonable time.

3. Report any dissatisfaction promptly.

4. Keep all sales tickets for garments returned to the plant or on missing articles.

5. Pick up all cleaning within 30 days unless such items have been placed in storage and storage charges are made on them.

Following these simple suggestions will enable your cleaner to serve you more quickly with greater satisfaction.

ASTRONOMY proved to be the most popular class offered by the College of Marin in the first year of its new program for San Quentin Prison inmates. In studying and scanning the universe, says one convict-student, "we can forget for a moment that we are behind walls with all these locked gates lined with guards." At left, Albert Heppe, College of Marin instructor and assistant dean, helps student Edward Costello adjust the lens of the teacher's Questar telescope, prior to peering skywards. Below, the eager prisoners take turns viewing the heavens through the big telescope, following the directions of Heppe. His students, left to right, are Edward Naylor, John Cardile, Michael Lingo, Douglas Burgette and Costello, all men now in prison garb, but eager to better themselves in preparation for the day when they will again be free men.

Marin College Takes Higher Education Inside The Prison

Inmate Classes Meet Evenings Behind Walls Of San Quentin

COLLEGE OF MARIN faculty members such as Williams Edwards, above, find the experience of teaching classes for inmates inside San Quentin Prison a satisfying and challenging assignment. Not only do the courses improve the prospects of the inmates for post-prison life, but they also serve as a welcome relief from the monotony and regimentation of institutional routine. Edwards teaches sociology.

spoke of his seven children and expressed pride that his oldest son would be receiving a degree from the University of California at Los Angeles this year. He hopes to dedicate any remaining years of freedom he might have to working with his people, hoping to "change the image most people have of a Mexican as a little man sleeping under a cactus with a straw hat over his eyes."

Charles Gillespie, a 36-year-old Negro, is taking all the courses offered, and would like eventually to become a teacher of physics or science. He hopes to complete the associate in arts degree requirements, and then go on to a four-year college after he is released from prison.

When? "That is the question. Sometimes the inmates will appear before the parole board and they will look at your record and say 'You haven't had group therapy, therefore parole is denied.' You just never know."

"ATTENDING classes is the one good thing I have to look forward to each day," Gillespie said.

His job at the prison is sweeping the street in front of the prison, and he remarked that, although he works each day right outside the windows, the interview marked his first trip inside the visitors' room during four years at San Quentin. "I've never had a visitor before," he said.

Gillespie taught himself jazz guitar, and his music, like his college studies, is a bright spot in a drab prison existence.

Edouard Deriso, another student, spends his spare moments, not watching television or at any other form of recreation permitted at the prison, but instead in helping to plan the curriculum for the college program and in setting up a library.

"I use mostly books donated by the College of Marin faculty," he said.

HE WORKED HARD to get a special room designated for the library. It is 14-by-56 feet, and he hopes to eventually fill it with 7,500 volumes. A reading area accommodates 20 people and provides a place for research and homework or for completing class assignments.

"If no federal money comes through for this project, we may have to hustle for more book donations," he said.

In addition to texts and reference works, he hopes to add fiction and non-fiction to the collection.

DERISO IS looking forward to a parole this year, after seven years at San Quentin. He hopes to attend the University of California at Berkeley, "if they will accept me."

Of all the courses offered, astronomy was the most appealing, at least romantically, according to the students. They associate the stars and the atmosphere with pretty girls.

Albert Heppe, astronomy instructor, often brought his Questar telescope inside the prison and the class could then take turns looking into the universe.

"We can forget for a moment that we are behind walls with all these locked gates lined with guards," Gillespie said.

PRISON OFFICIALS say the college behind the walls program is a tremendous step in the development of high level prison education. It adds another dimension to the elementary through high school, and vocational and trade oriented programs that were already in existence, according to Hayball.

"This is the first time we have had anything to offer the inmates interested in working for a college degree," he states. "The rehabilitation potential is extremely encouraging."

Although prison officials had attempted to work out such an arrangement with other colleges in the area, they credit College of Marin with making it all possible.

SOME OF the colorful and winsome characters from the Mill Valley menagerie of John and Hideko Porter's Fun & Fancy Products business include, at top, Clarissa Cow, standing 15 inches high, and, in bottom photo, posing with beanbags Lady Bug and Toothy Gator, Speedy Turtle and Red Headed Rooster. Meet The Huggables, Made In Marin And Loved Around World

Mill Valley Couple's Stuffed Animal Menagerie Wins Hearts

By GIL PEARSON

Rainbow's end for you, gentle reader, may be the proverbial pot of diamonds or a round trip to the moon, but in the case of one Marin husband and wife the aspired-to prize is total acclaim for just one of their "Huggable" stuffed animal creations.

John and Hideko Porter have spent the past four years preparing for that creator's dream of a nationwide run-away sale of any one of their delightfully colorful felt cloth menagerie offerings. All are produced from start to finish in the Porters' Mill Valley plant, "Fun & Fancy Products."

Hideko is the designer, John the merchandiser.

"OVER THE years," explains John Porter, "my wife has created hundreds of different animals and she continues to produce new designs.

"These have been whittled down to some 30 offerings that are demonstrating the most appeal in toy markets."

The best sellers in the "Huggable" group are the gold-white Tiny Tiger, brown-gold Larry Lion and green-white Ferdy Frog. These are running (or hopping) at $43.20 the dozen.

Others out front with impressive sales records include Longlegs, the 1969 yellow and mint Easter Rabbit, and as well Slinky Snake in six assorted colors.

ORDERS OF these winsome toys are being shipped to every state and to such foreign lands as France, Switzerland, Central America and Canada. One order which the writer scanned is from Puerto Rico for 14 "Huggable" varieties such as Hips Hippo, Ollie Owl, Moo (the (Cow, of course), Larry Lion and Boxie Bulldog.

Bay Area sales have been rung up with I. Magnin and Swartz.

When large orders roll in, the Porters rent additional sewing machines and hire the needed operators.

AND THEY employ high school and college students because they show exceptional dexterity in doing the tedious and exacting pasting on of such features as eyes, ears, teeth, and faces.

In addition, the Marin Community Workshop in San Rafael participates in production by filling the bean bags, by bagging the toys in transparent wrapping and also by sewing.

HIDEKO PORTER poses with some of the appealing creations from the Fun & Fancy Products plant which she and her husband, John, founded in Mill Valley after settling in Marin County four years ago. Her small friends here are Tatter Tiger, Ballerina Hippo, Gerry Giraffe and Sniffy Skunk. Mrs. Porter, the designer, gets her ideas from cartoons, movies and commercials as well as other sources.

Porter says, "Our challenge is to keep the design simple so that cost won't force our price over that of competitors.

"In the grand old days store toy buyers were contended with a 40 per cent profit. Space age buyers simply don't buy anything they can't sell without a 100 per cent markup.

"So we mush along with a promising acceptance of 30 of our animals in the hope that a day will dawn when one in particular will strike the public's fancy big and becomes a best-toy-seller."

JUST HOW did this couple get into the felt-cloth, hilarious animal business?

Well, the facts are that North Carolina-born John Porter met Tokyo-born Hideko in Yokohama 13 years ago when he was a state-side toy-buyer and she was a Japanese toy shopkeeper. They soon married in Tokyo.

John is a University of California man and Hideko is a graduate of a junior college that prepared her for housekeeping chores. Both, in his and her own way, were drawn into the toy field.

FROM hundreds of stuffed animal designs created by Hideko Porter, Fun & Fancy Products has settled upon some 30 characters, one of which they hope will hit it big as a best-selling toy. Among the candidates are, at upper left, Larry Lion and Ferdy Frog; at upper right, Baby Bear, a security toy to be carried about by tots; at middle left, a lean and long Dashing Dachshund; at lower left, Humpty Dumpty of nursery rhyme fame, and at lower right, the Longlegs line of decorative beanbags that can perch on shelves, beds and bureaus as well as be tossed about. Steadily increasing sales and interest for their products make the patient John Porters optimistic that eventually their line will score a breakthrough into the big-time.

When the Porters settled in Marin four years ago, Hideko had behind her some 10 years experience in designing, sewing and retail shop selling. John had behind him many years of buying and selling toys for department stores and gift shops. His multiple contacts were solidly entrenched.

"WITH THIRD party financing," John explains, "we pooled our resources and aimed at sales on a national wholesale scale rather than a single retail shop base.

"While my wife had made toys from all kinds of materials, we decided to specialize in felt. I like this cloth because it is nice to work with. Our Fun & Fancy Shop stocks felt yardage in over 60 different colors."

Their first sale was for three dozen Ballerina Hippos to Blum's in San Francisco.

They then sent Hippo samples along with Dashing Dachshunds to Page & Rand, toy distributors in New York. Sales developed up and down the East Coast, particularly in New England. And then overseas markets began nibbling. Salesmen are continually advertised for.

WHEN WE interviewed the enterprising Porters we found them in the process of developing their first catalogue. It illustrates toys available in various size lots.

We asked the Porters what they see in their future and were told that they will continue developing new designs, that they want to get a larger plant, and that steadily increasing sales inspire them to be patient in awaiting that "run-away sale" on one given product of the house of Fun & Fancy.

IN DESIGNING her stuffed animals, Tokyo-born Hideko Porter first draws the character on paper and cuts them out to be used as patterns in transferring the designs onto felt cloth. She is shown at work in the Mill Valley plant creating an elephant for her comical menagerie.

Anthony announces a miracle!

We gave it Anthony's nickname—Tony. It's a new concept in pool construction that actually comes with its own built-in cantilevered deck.

Even the price is constructed differently to save money. If your soil and access are good (chances are they are), you get an extra low price. Why should you pay for someone else's construction problems?

The Tony is the world's first mass-produced pool. An exceptionally low unit price is predicated on the sale of more than 500 pools. Who else but Anthony—the world's largest pool builder—could mass produce and wholesale a quality pool?

You save on a Tony because a new concept in tile design eliminates the need for a costly installation of coping, substituting instead, a bonus of 350 square feet of beautiful cantilevered decking.

If you want a big, elaborate, reliable, glamorous swimming pool with a lot of extras and you haven't got much money...what you want is a miracle. What you want is a Tony swimming pool. Fill in the coupon. Or phone.

NEIL McPHAIL WAS 87 when the founder of McPhail's posed in 1950 with sons Graham, center, and John for this photograph taken in front of their new retail store and office building on San Rafael's C Street. The tall, stern Scotsman lived to the age of 92 and saw his company continue to change with the times and to prosper.

From Livery Stables To Fuels, Building Materials, Appliances

Business Neil McPhail Began 85 Years Ago Has Changed With The Times

By HARRY CRAFT

Whenever the name McPhail's is mentioned in Marin or Sonoma counties, it is associated with a variety of products — gravel, sand, cement, building materials, fuel oils and major household appliances.

But when it first became known in San Rafael it was assumed that reference was being made to "that serious young man" who had just opened a livery stable on downtown Fourth Street.

That was 85 years ago. It is a sign of the ever-changing times and the pursuits of men that the present day operations of McPhail's are far removed from the original business venture of the founder.

THE SERIOUS young man was Neil McPhail who came to California from Prince Edward Island, Canada.

He was a big man, accustomed to hard work. Being a farmer, he knew a lot about horses. He first ventured into the livery stable business in Oakland, but San Rafael attracted him as a more desirable place to live. And as a fashionable summer colony, its opportunities seemed much brighter.

Here his first stable was in a two-story building at Fourth and B streets. The horses were kept on the second floor and the ground level was used for parking the rigs. The old Grand Hotel was located next door.

LATER, THE business, known as San Rafael Stable, was moved to 714-716 Fourth Street, near Lincoln Avenue, and eventually to the present McPhail's location on C Street, between Third and Fourth Streets.

At the peak of its activity, San Rafael Stable had as many as 90 horses and a wide assortment of vehicles in use. McPhail's teams worked for the railroad, surveying crews and for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. And there was always a demand for everything from a surrey to a four-horse tally-ho wagon from the Bay Area socialities who gathered at the Hotel Rafael for the summer.

Hotel Rafael ranked high among Northern California resorts during the years around 1910, but later its popularity declined steadily until its destruction by fire in 1925.

ALTHOUGH McPhail became a well-liked and important member of the community, he did not marry a local girl but imported his bride, Katie Ann Murchison, from his home town in Canada. They had three children, Graham, John and Belle, all born in San Rafael.

Graham, the oldest, is chair-

McPhail's—Part Of Marin Scene For 85 Years

A PERIOD of nearly half a century separates these two photographs, both taken on San Rafael's C Street where McPhail's has had its headquarters for much of its 85-year history. The somewhat faded photograph at right shows one of the McPhail Fuel Co. oil trucks, a sturdy Model A Ford that was to accumulate thousands of miles in Marin and Sonoma counties serving the firm's customers. It was parked in front of the fuel warehouse and oil burner maintenance plant on C be between Third and Fourth streets. Entrance to the warehouse and woodyard can be seen at extreme left of photograph. The recent Independent-Journal picture below shows some of McPhail's modern-day rolling stock, a propane delivery tanker, parked at that same scene in front of the modern appliance store and office building opened in 1950. In the picture with driver Leo Stokes, left, are company vice president and treasurer John MacPhail Jr., center, and president David Stephens, right. Some recognizable landmarks from the picture above can still be seen today.

man of the board at McPhail's today.

After Army service during World War I and two years of college, he had gone to sea for a three-months cruise with an uncle who was captain of a lumber schooner. But the "three-months cruise" was prolonged beyond anyone's expectations and it was two years before Graham was to set foot again in Marin. The schooner was wrecked on Sunday Island in the South Pacific and the survivors were forced to make their way in an open life boat to Suva.

AFTER HIS retirement from the sea, Graham's uncle, Neil Murchison, became a city councilmar in San Rafael.

It was John who changed the spelling of his name back to MacPhail, which it had originally been in Scotland. His sons John Jr., Neil and Bruce followed suit — but the rest of the family continued with McPhail and the business has always gone under that spelling.

It was also John who, after completing a 5,000-mile trip in a Model T Ford, persuaded his father to give up horses for trucks and a different type of business entirely. Together the two formed the McPhail Fuel Co. in 1922. At first the fuel was principally cordwood which they bought in Fairfax, trucked to San Rafael and sold for home delivery. Then coal was added, and by the time Graham joined them in 1926, fuel oil became an important part of the operation.

AT THE C Street warehouse, an oil burner maintenance department followed the addition of fuel oil, and it was a natural progression into the sale of heating equipment, then stoves and other household appliances.

McPhail's expanded into the building materials field in 1930. A new aggregate plant was built on the canal side of Francisco Boulevard five years later. That same year the McPhails poured the concrete footing in Marin for the Golden Gate Bridge.

In 1939 they secured the cement contract for the San Rafael overpass. And by 1940 a fleet of ready-mix trucks was delivering cement to construction jobs throughout the county.

MEANWHILE a Santa Rosa plant was added in 1938 to sell appliances and this also served as a northern base for the fuel oil trucks that were already delivering in Sonoma County. By 1946 a Petaluma store had been opened.

The year 1950 was a big year for the McPhails. It marked the opening of their new building and appliance store on C Street, San Rafael. The building utilized the corner lot at Third and C streets and connected with the existing structure to the north.

It boasted wide window areas, huge display sections for gas and electric appliances — stoves, washing machines, dryers, refrigerators, freezers and garbage disposals. An upper floor made ideal office headquarters.

SINCE THEN color television sets have become an important feature of the display and merchandising here.

Neil McPhail, the founder of this expanding business, lived to see and participate in its growth until 1955, when he died at the age of 92. That year also saw the construction of a new bunker and enlarged facilities at the Francisco Boulevard plant and the opening of a plant in Novato.

He was preceded in death by his son John, who passed away in 1953.

HEADED NOW by Graham McPhail, the firm went on to open another appliance store at Mendocino Avenue and Seventh Street in Santa Rosa in 1966 and its own sand and gravel company in Healdsburg in 1967.

At the present time, the only other family member besides Graham who is active in the operation of the business is John's son, John Jr. (Jack), vice president and treasurer. Jack's brother Neil teaches at the Coleman School in San Rafael and his brother Bruce is in the equipment business at Atlanta, Ga.

Belle McPhail, daughter of the late Neil McPhail, is retired from many years as a school teacher in Marin.

PRESIDENT OF the corporation since last January is David G. Stephens, who is not related to any of the McPhails. He has been with the company 22 years and before his promotion to president in January he had been vice president and general manager since 1952.

The McPhail's board of directors has also been expanded to include a number of local men who are not family members: Rex Silvernale, Philip J. McCoy, Albert Bianchi and Ronald Schenck, and a San Francisco resident, David April.

A recent corporation formed by McPhail stockholders to cover the hauling of propane and cement and the hauling of aggregates to the job is Marin Terminal Inc.

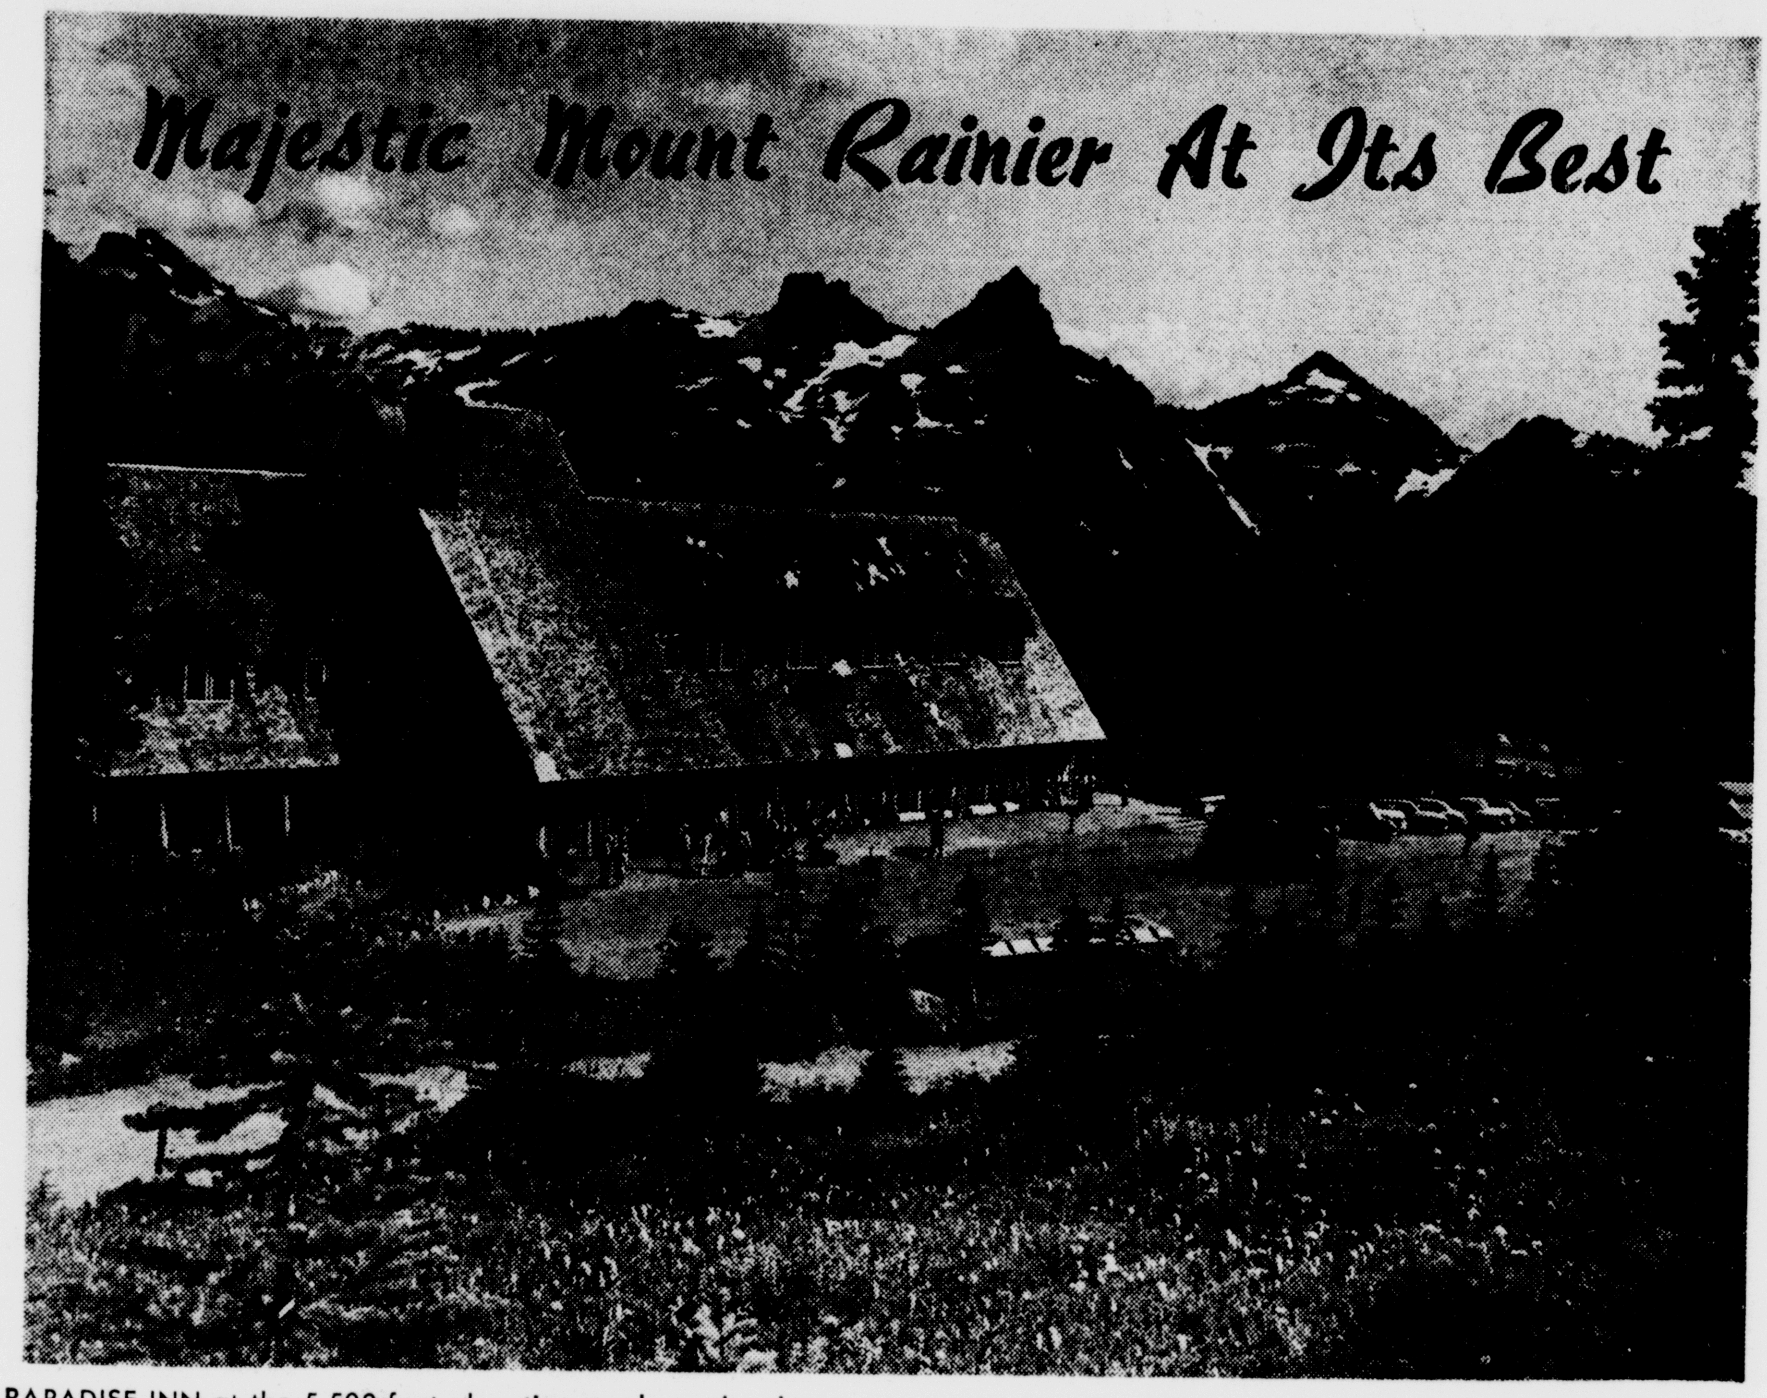
COMBINED operations of all activities in Marin and Sonoma counties now involve approximately 100 employees. Rolling stock consists of 120 vehicles.

And from a gross of less than $2,000 in the first year of business of McPhail Fuel Co. after Neil McPhail and his son John started it in 1922, sales from all operations now average between four and five million dollars annually.

FIRST LIVERY STABLE of Neil McPhail in San Rafael was at Fourth and B streets. Horses were kept upstairs and rigs were stored in this lower section. McPhail is shown at the left. His companion is unidentified. The McPhail tally-ho wagon in the background, outfitted with a refrigerated compartment and a long tally-ho trumpet, was pulled by a team of four horses. The wagon is now on display at the Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich.

McPHAIL MOVED his stable farther east on Fourth Street to near Lincoln Avenue during the early part of the century — probably to be closer to the railroad station. San Rafael at that time was a popular summer colony which drew thousands of visitors from throughout the Bay Area. Neil McPhail is at the right.

Majestic Mount Rainier At Its Best



PARADISE INN at the 5,500-foot elevation mark on the slopes of Mount Rainier is a favorite refreshment and relaxation point for summer visitors to that national park. The Fred Harvey-operated facilities include a 150-room inn, a dining room, a cocktail lounge and a gift shop. Nature provides the spectacular vista.

The August visitor to Mount Rainier National Park finds that Washington wilderness at its best.

The weather is ideal, the alpine flowers are still in bloom and the trails are open for mountain hiking.

Mount Rainier is a landmark in which the whole Pacific Northwest takes pride — a mountain that stands alone, rising out of the foothills on a spreading granite base to 14,410 feet. More than 10,000 feet of that majestic height is free-standing rock, snow and ice.

ITS GLACIERS alone are enough to set it apart. The 26 active rivers of ice grinding down its slopes form the largest single-peak glacier system in the United States except A'aska.

In the park it is easy to see glaciers or even walk to them. One of the largest is Nisqually Glacier. It can be reached over a good trail within a few minutes from where you park your car.

The forests in the park are as virgin as the Indians knew them. Wildflowers carpet the hills, forming an interesting contrast in color to the snow, rock and glaciers. The flowers appear as the snow melts and stay until snowfall in winter.

LIKE ALL volcanoes, Mount Rainier was made by the materials thrown up by its own eruption. Perhaps at one time it may have been more than three miles high. Then, an eruption occurred which blew off the top of the mountain.

The present mountain contrasts sharply with the earlier one, whose origin was fire, and which belched forth hot cinders and molten rock; now its flanks are covered with perpetual snow and ice.

Mount Rainier was declared a national park in 1899, under President William McKinley. Later, in 1931, the park was enlarged.

It is 377.78 miles in area, about 18 miles wide and 20 miles long. A little over a fourth of this total area is taken up by the towering mountain that stands in the center of the park. The remaining area consists of ridges and valleys surrounding it.

THE NEAREST cities to Mount Rainier are Tacoma and Seattle, both of which lie to the northwest. They are 56 and 90 miles respectively, from the entrance.

The finest weather is during July, August and September. The tourist season usually begins in late May and goes into September.

However, there is also a winter ski season. The Paradise Visitors' Center offers skiing facilities, ski rental equipment and food service, which Fred Harvey operates.

Harvey operations within the park include the 35-room National Park Inn, at Longmire, where National Park Service headquarters are located. At 2,700 feet these facilities open in early May and close in October.

THE CENTER of activity during the summer months is Paradise Valley (elevation 5,500 feet) where Fred Harvey also operates the 150-room Paradise Inn, which has a dining room, cocktail room and gift shop.

Paradise Valley, 11 miles from the top, is a favorite starting off place for mountain climbing as well as hiking.

There are more than 240 miles of trails in Mount Rainier National Park, leading to and through some of the most beautiful high country in America.

The Travel Pages

Fashions Reflect Jet Age

One single city — Paris — once set the pace for the whole well-dressed world. But that's not the case anymore.

Today's fashionable woman looks upon the whole world as one wonderful center of wardrobe chic. This year especially, the "in" look is all-out international — with styles brought from around the globe.

Pick up any fashion magazine and you'll get the picture. There's the nomad look and the mad, mad mods. Cossack coats and caftans. Tartan coats and Mongolian fun furs. Saris copied from the Indians of India, and headbands copied from the Navajos of the U.S.

"IN THIS JET age of ours, it was inevitable," comments Mary Gordon, Trans World Airlines travel adviser, "that fashion trends should be drawn from every continent. The more a woman travels and sees, the more international-minded she becomes in her fashion viewpoint, too.

"Of the 845,000 women who applied for passports to travel abroad in 1968, it's safe to surmise that almost all came across at least one fashion find that they just couldn't resist."

Every country has its own outstanding buys.

When touring Spain, you'll be attracted to the marvelous suede and leather outfits in Madrid; in London, look for cashmeres and try on well-tailored suits, and in Scotland, you'll touch soft wools and mohairs, just to name a few.

In her round-the-world travels, Miss Gordon often picks up valuable fashion pointers.

For example, a friend in Bombay taught her how to turn six yards of fabric into instant chic by wrapping it as a sari — no sewing necessary.

"YOU NEEDN'T be worried about going too far over the $100 limit on duty-free shopping," says Miss Gordon. "You can buy a lot of fashion for very little money overseas."

For example, those great Tagaria woven wool handbags cost just a song in Greece. Signature scarves look smashing and are a tempting buy in Paris, as are leopard belts you find in East Africa.

Here's a tip you can borrow from some of the best-dressed women in the world: If you're too far over the $100 duty-free limit, buy fabrics abroad and have them made up at home.

Play It Safe When It Comes To Health

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Don't gamble with your health if you are planning to travel to foreign countries.

A few uncomfortable moments in the doctor's office could spell the difference between a disastrous or delightful holiday.

Earlier this year, the U.S. Public Health Service announced it had dropped recommendation for inoculations against typhoid for Americans visiting Europe and other developed areas of the world "if the traveler stays at the usual tourist accommodations."

BUT THAT was before an epidemic of typhoid fever flared in upper Austria and reached the capital of Vienna before being checked. More than 600 suspected cases were reported in the outbreak.

Austrian authorities blamed it on an ice-cream vendor at a fair in Linz who cleaned his containers in the Danube River.

Fortunately, no deaths were reported. But the epidemic in a country with high health and sanitary standards points up the dangers facing the unwary traveler.

THERE WERE other outbreaks of contagious diseases elsewhere in the spring and early summer. Reports told of an epidemic of paratyphoid in southern Poland; plague in the interior of Tanzania in East Africa; and cholera in northeastern Thailand in Southeast Asia.

At this writing more than 70 Tanzanians were reported dead of the plague in the Arusha region, a popular jumping-off point for safaris into the wild game preserves; one death and more than 150 cases of paratyphoid were reported by Polish newspapers; and six deaths from cholera and more than 500 cases were reported in Thailand.

In all cases, health authorities promptly ordered mass vaccinations and other precautionary measures to help stem spread of the diseases.

BUT THE warning should be clear to travelers. Americans would be well-advised to check on local health conditions in countries on their itinerary and take all required and recommended inoculations before leaving home.

And have them recorded, and validated by health officials if necessary, in the official International Certificates of Vaccinations. The booklet can be obtained when you pick up your passport application or from travel agents, airlines and shipping companies, and local, state and federal health departments.

Inoculations should be taken well in advance of departure date — some are given in a series of shots and take up to three months to become effective.

FOR EXAMPLE, combined typhoid and paratyphoid vaccine is given in two injections, at least four weeks apart. Immunization against plague requires three inoculations, the first two 30 days apart, and the third between four to 12 weeks after the second dose.

For cholera, two injections, with at least seven days in between, are necessary.

Proof of immunization against these and other contagious diseases is generally required after the traveler has come from or passed through a contaminated region. Lack of such proof could result in being refused admission or being held in quarantine.

ALL AMERICANS traveling overseas, with the exception of Mexico, Canada, Bermuda and some of the Caribbean islands, must have proof of vaccination against smallpox within the past three years for entry in many countries and to get back into the United States. Without such proof, the returning American traveler may be vaccinated at the point of entry, placed under surveillance for up to two weeks, or both, even be detained for up to 14 days.

There are other precautions Americans ought to take, including complete physical and dental checkups.

Travelers with chronic ailments should carry a medical report from their physicians, including details of their condition and prescribed treatment.

DIABETICS AND persons with heart conditions, hemophilia, severe allergies and similar medical problems should carry tags, bracelets or cards explaining their ailments.

Tags, etc., may be obtained from the Medical Alert Foundation International at Turlock, Calif., or from the American Medical Assn. in Chicago, Ill. (535 Dearborn Street.)

For additional peace of mind, Americans and Canadians can obtain a directory listing medical centers in more than 70 countries where qualified physicians are available.

THE DIRECTORY is provided free to members of the International Association of Medical Assistance to Travelers (IAMAT). Participating physicians have agreed to a reasonable standard fee for their services.

A membership card, good for three years, and the directory are provided free of charge by IAMAT which has headquarters in New York City (745 Fifth Avenue.)

The Great Gamble Of Admiral Togo

THE EMPEROR'S SWORD by Noel Busch; Funk & Wagnalls, 242 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

On a chill spring afternoon, May 27, 1905, a small boy climbed to a mountaintop above the Strait of Tsushima and became sole spectator to one of the epic naval battles of history.

He saw Russian men-of-war moving up the strait toward the Sea of Japan. He then heard the Russian 12-inch guns open fire on the warships of his countrymen.

Adm. Heichiro Togo was purposely inviting disaster by maneuvering his ships of the line in a U-turn within range of the enemy.

For 15 minutes Russia had a slim chance to halt Japan's surge to world power and rebuild its own failing strength. But Russian ineptness manifested itself in many ways: clumsy maneuvering, inferior weaponry, hapless gunnery and crews near to mutiny.

Togo took his chance and won. His faster warships now paralleled the Russians', and they began a deadly fire.

Within an hour, the top-heavy battleship Oslylaba went under, pulverized by Japanese shells. Soon the battleship Alexander III sank with all of its crew of 900. The Borodino followed, devastated by special mix in Togo's shells that seemed to ignite the very steel in Russian armament and bulkheads. One seaman was rescued by an enemy ship next morning.

The carnage continued that day and the next. Only a few of the Czar's armada of 42 warships escaped temporarily, soon to be captured or sunk in the Sea of Japan.

Author Noel Busch's narrative is told from a Japanese perspective. By doing so he gives insight into the thinking of men like Togo and his aides — and makes them the heroes. At least we are not sorry the Russians lost though we sympathize with Adm. Zinovy Rozhdestvensky. An able leader, he is a tragic figure because he knew his chances were all but nil.

Richard Hough's "The Fleet That Had to Die" has been the definitive account of the Battle of Tsushima. His narrative describes the 18,000-mile, six-month journey of the fleet and the disaster from a Russian point-of-view.

Busch's book is an able complement to Hough's. Busch has a perceptive grasp of water warfare and a trenchant view of the consequences of Japanese victory. He also has a bit of a baggy tweeds prose style which mostly manifests itself at the start and shows up from time to time during descriptions of the battle. But these are small matters; this is a fine book.

A Pair By Professional Ghost-Hunter

LIFE AFTER DEATH: THE CHALLENGE AND THE EVIDENCE by Hans Holzer; Bobbs Merrill, 173 pages, $5.

PSYCHIC PHOTOGRAPHY: THRESHOLD OF A NEW SCIENCE? by Hans Holzer; McGraw-Hill, 116 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Reviews Of New Reading

Hans Holzer, the professional ghost-hunter who has developed a considerable following with his books and television appearances, has produced two more volumes for those interested in the occult.

"Life After Death: The Challenge and the Evidence" is typical Holzer, a stream of accounts of incidents from the investigations and experiences of the author, usually working with professed psychics.

In past books, Holzer generally has been concerned primarily with visits to supposedly haunted houses and other abodes of the supernatural. This time he has a more specific interest — the alleged contracts between the living and the dead.

Holzer is not a debunker but a wholehearted believer, indeed claiming some successful contacts for himself. He is, therefore, considerably less objective and impartial in his studies than he regards himself as being. Most readers will find Holzer's "evidence" less convincing than he evaluates it to be. But for those who share the growing popular interest in the supernatural and related subjects, a new Holzer book always has appeal.

Holzer offers some advice for those who find — or believe — themselves in contact with the departed:

"The living who are fortunate enough to have a deceased relative take an interest in their lives should accept this as natural and live with it. They should not defer their decisions to the spiritual watchdog, of course, but make their own mundane decisions as they feel best. Nevertheless, sometimes the greater knowledge of the ones beyond the Veil can help the living understand their own problems better and thus provide them with ammunition for a better judgment."

"Psychic Photography: Threshold of a New Science?" is Holzer's collection of some 50 photographs supposedly showing wraiths and other supernatural things. Indeed, strange images do appear in the prints.

Holzer says all the pictures were taken under his direction or by him, with strict controls, and that the "paranormal presences" ostensibly were not present at the time of exposure. Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean, after examining the book, assures us that the photos show nothing that could not be accomplished by camera or darkroom trickery or accident if such supervision were not exercised. So I guess it all boils down to how much confidence one has in Holzer's assurances of no tricks.

Anyway, in his accompanying text discussing psychic photography, Holzer hails camera and films as man's "greatest potential tools" for providing a concrete answer to the mystery of life-after-death.

One wonders if man was ever intended to have that kind of an answer. Or if it would even be to his betterment if he were to attain it.

San Rafael's Philip Dick Fascinates

UBIK by Philip K. Dick; Doubleday, 202 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This latest of the score-and-a-half of books by San Rafael author Philip K. Dick reaches a pretty long way past the existing frontiers of science fiction.

Ubik, the reader comes to grasp, is an unseen, mysterious force that seems to try to keep the world from falling apart. Exactly what's making it fall apart becomes a sort of detective story with strong dollops of parapsychology, beyond-the-grave mysticism and the bad dreams that follow a too-heavy meal.

The central character is an anti-hero — Joe Chip, who works for a company that is a sort of detective agency hiring out to keep telepaths and precogs from committing industrial sabotage and the like.

Chip and sundry fellow operatives wind up in an unreal reversed time line of the Depression era when telepathy was unknown. Their boss is dead by foul play and their existence is measured in the mental twists of a dead man preserved by the science of 1922.

I'm always fascinated by the directions author Dick's mind takes. Most science fiction fans should be fascinated too.

Youth Manifesto Rejects Old Values

THE WHOLE WORLD IS WATCHING — A YOUNG MAN LOOKS AT YOUTH'S DISSENT by Mark Gerzon; Viking, 274 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

The very first thing that should be said is that this is a book that adults should read. I think it was written for them.

But at the same time one should dispel certain notions. Forget about long hair, four-letter words, ready-made slang, Communism, and any other stereotyped items as things in themselves. They are symptoms and components but not the whole bag, so to speak.

This book is a manifesto, and before that word turns into a bull's red cape, it's a manifesto in the best sense of the word — a statement of belief, an explanation, a why to all the troublesome whats. It is also a statement of challenge.

It's a curiously uncomfortable book to read, but more than that, it is eloquent, concise, clearly stated and idealistic.

Gerzon, a junior-to-be at Harvard, is simply stating the cause for the euphemistic generation gap, for youth's dissent as it has turned into an all but wholesale rejection of the values of the establishment.

What he is saying, very simply, is that today's youth are not the same as their elders, and refuse to be so, and to expect them to accept old values and tilt with old challenges that are nothing more than ghosts is absurd.

Gerzon describes the campus generation's love affair with existentialism, its psychologically oriented revolt, which is basically an inner-directed trip. He says that adults, who took up the challenges of making a living in a depression and in fighting a world war, should not expect their offspring to take up the same challenges of making it, nor to take up the same patriotism that manifests itself in fighting international bogeymen. He does not put down the adults' challenges. He says they simply do not exist for the young.

One could argue at length with many points in the book — for example the notion that what Gerzon is saying is representative of most of today's youth.

I think, that Gerzon will be in for further disappointment, and that what he finds pertinent and valid in the hippie movement has long since faded.

But the book should be taken as the beginning of a dialogue, especially by adults. It states that it simply isn't good enough to look at long hair, campus violence, drugs and what not, and look no further. It's not good enough to say that kids should know their place, and their time. It is time that somebody at least make the effort to listen with a halfway open mind.

Gerzon's book is as good a place as any to start.

Greece Before The Coup — Its Feeling And Its Meaning

GODS AND HEROES by Herbert Kubly; Doubleday, 437 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

If you can't get away for a trip to Greece, Herbert Kubly will take you there and introduce the people — shepherd, peasant farmer, artist and government official — he came to know on his year's travels through the islands and mountains of the storied lands.

Primarily a writer, Kubly has also been an art and music critic and teacher as well, and all of his interests and knowledge carry his book to a depth that is far beyond the usual travel narrative. Kubly brings to each town and historical site the feeling and the meaning of the civilization of ancient Greece, yet he also analyzes the causes of the poverty of modern Greece.

Written before the military coup that followed deposition of King Constantine, the book gives a political analysis of the popular Papandreau movement and the alienation of the queen mother from the Greek populace.

Kubly describes his meetings and interviews with everyone he meets, from German tourists, guides and shop-keepers to Queen Fredericka herself, and the result is a rounded picture of today's Greece, with its tourist shucks, fast-buck operators, jubilant and spirited peasants, meager soil and overly-divided farms, few fabulously wealthy families and lack of a tradition for social welfare.

Over it all hangs a fascination with the light and the land and the sea, which have impressed every writer since Homer.

THE BOOK PAGES

Two Uphill Battles, One Lost In Court, One Won On Field

By DON KEOWN

THE PROSECUTOR by James Mills; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 245 pages, $5.95.

COUNTDOWN TO SUPER BOWL by Dave Anderson; Random House, 247 pages, $6.95.

James Mills, a Life magazine associate editor, spent some seven months with James Mosley, a hard-nosed yet not insensitive young New York City assistant district attorney, and from his observations has come the book "The Prosecutor."

During that period much of Mosley's time was occupied by the case of four Mafia hoodlums accused of the execution of one of their own venomous killers, a prosecution that ultimately ended unsuccessfully.

The jacket blurb says "this book examines . . . the widespread fear that the balance between the protection of society and the rights of the accused has gone off-kilter."

And because the trial wound up in acquittals so that four of the filthiest examples of the human race swaggered from the courtroom free men, those fears presumably are justified.

There will be those who view the case as fuel for the fire of their attacks upon the U. S. Supreme and appellate courts that they allege have handcuffed police and prosecutors with their rulings to the point where society can no longer be protected against its criminal elements.

That conclusion, however, would be a superficial and a shaky one. A close reading of Mills' book reveals that high court guidelines played small part in the outcome of the trial of the Mafia mobsters.

History, too, supports that conclusion. In all the years before the courts placed these new restraints upon police and prosecution, when were Mafia kingpins ever subject to arrest and conviction? If anything, they stand in somewhat greater jeopardy today than they did before the much-criticized rulings of the Earl Warren-led and Warren-influenced courts.

JAMES MILLS
A lost case

The Mafia has always commanded more muscle — better attorneys, intimidated witnesses, etc. — than the average defendant, and hardly needs the solicitude of the courts.

By necessity, Mosley had to work with state witnesses as disreputable as the men on trial, and thus faced on uphill struggle at the outset.

But the glaring, fatal and unforgivable error committed by the state in this particular case was that it sent one lonely, capable, decent, but badly outmanned lawyer, Mosley, out to do battle with a whole battery of high-powered legal talent representing the Cosa Nostra gunsels and their boss. It was like Wilt Chamberlain, unaided, facing the entire starting lineup of the Boston Celtics, and the result was pre-determined. Mosley never really stood a chance.

James Mills' account of the case as it took shape and of how it finally went to trial is exciting and meaningful. But those who would cite it as another illustration of our coddling of our criminals will find themselves offbase. But then, these aren't really the kind of criminals that create the alarm and near hysteria of today. That concern is directed generally at alienated blacks and young whites. We've grown so accustomed to the obscene faces of the Mafia that they almost qualify as establishment figures.

A POPULAR and effective technique employed by authors to recreate a past event is the use of a whole series of brief, vignette-like flashes that jump from character to character, place to place, showing what different people, some principals and some peripheral, were doing simultaneously while the climactic confrontation drew nearer.

It has been used in recounting assassinations, wars, elections and explorations.

In "Countdown to Super Bowl" New York Times sportswriter Dave Anderson has utilized it to tell the story of a football game. That game, of course, is the Jan. 12, 1969, meeting of the New York Jets and the Baltimore Colts in Miami's Orange Bowl in which the American Football League champions humbled the proud National Football League titlewinners and shocked gridiron fans.

Anderson uses the narrative device in expert fashion, opening with the Jets on board their airliner enroute to Miami to begin training for the big game. From there, he gives us quick glimpses of Jets on the practice field, in the locker room, in their hotels, relaxing, remembering, worrying, exalting, hurting, healing. Sometimes it focuses on fans, league and team officials, the wives and children of the players, the team doctors and trainers, and even gambler and odds-maker Jimmy (the Greek) Snyder.

Not surprisingly, Anderson makes the Jets his principal subjects. After all, they emerged the victors and the heroes. And it was to them he was assigned by his newspaper.

JOE NAMATH
A brash and colorful hero

Naturally, colorful, brash Joe Namath, his image then untarnished by his cheap performance this summer in the hassle with pro football czar Pete Rozelle over his New York bar, is the star of the book as he was of the game. But Anderson does not neglect the lesser players, nor the men and women behind them.

Despite the general effectiveness of the book, complemented by some excellent sketches by artist LeRoy Neiman that capture the dynamic, explosive beneath-the-surface violence of the pro footballer splendidly, one finishes the book with a sense of unease. For while this fast-paced, rather breathless technique for reviving the past is admirably suited to great historical crises, a football game, Super Bowl or not, is something less than momentous. It may seem momentous in the excitement of the pre-game build-up, during the conflict on the field, and in the glow immediately thereafter. But months later, perspective improves and one realizes that it was, after all, just a game, hardly worthy of all this detailed attention.

However, dyed-in-the-wool pro football nuts will not be deterred by such thoughts from enjoying this book which affords them an opportunity for sharing the behind-the-scenes aspects of the sport that has been improved upon only by Jerry Kramer's book.

As for that Super Bowl Game — the major lesson that Anderson imparts is that attitudes made the difference. The Jets took the field full of spirit, seething with determination. The Colts were over-confident, flat and lethargic. And thus the myth of National Football League overwhelming superiority was put to rest.

DOVER HAS out two reprints in the field of Indian lore.

"The Indians' Book" ($4) is a definitive collection of songs and legends of the American redmen, recorded and edited by Natalie Curtis and first published in 1907.

The Dover reprint is a copy of a 1923 unabridged republication and contains 149 songs from 18 tribes in both native language and English. There is a melody for each song.

Myths, too, have been faithfully recorded, and both drawings and decorations by Indians and photographs by the editor are used as illustrations in this book so valuable to students of Indian history and culture.

"Indian Sign Language" by William Tomkins relates the methods by which Plains Indians speaking different tongues nevertheless communicated with each other.

Its author learned the sign language while living among the Indians at the turn of the century. In alphabetical order he has prepared a vocabulary in which the key words are described both verbally and by drawings. Also included is some material on smoke signals and Indian ceremonials.

This smaller book sells for $1.25.

BALLANTINE has issued in a batch reprints of five Ernest K. Gann novels — "Song of the Sirens," "Fate Is the Hunter," "Soldier of Fortune," "Blaze of Noon" and "Benjamin Lawless," each priced at 95 cents. Ex-Marinite Gann now resides in Friday Harbor, Wash.

ELLERY QUEEN'S MURDER MENU edited by Ellery Queen; World, 333 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This annual collection of short stories from Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine, now in its 24th year, tops all its predecessors, and that takes some doing.

The editors have put together 22 splendid and varied tales of mayhem and homicide by the likes of Stanley Ellin, Phyllis Bentley, the late Charlotte Armstrong, Georges Simenon, Julian Symons, Michael Gilbert, Anthony Gilbert and Lawrence Treat.

In this all-star lineup our personal favorites are Ellin's "The Last Bottle in the World" and Miss Armstrong's "From Out of the Garden." Edward D. Hoch's "The Impossible 'Impossible Crime'" and William Brittain's "The Man Who Read Sir Arthur Conan Doyle" are particularly clever little yarns.

If there is a "clinker" in the collection, it has to be Patricia McGerr's "Match Point in Berlin," included, we suspect, largely because it is part of the generally creditable Selena Mead series. But this one is pretty much pap.

The book as a whole demonstrates again that some of our most accomplished and most imaginative writers are to be found in the mystery story genre and in the Ellery Queen magazine pages.

A musical tone consists of the fundamental tone plus several harmonics of the fundamental. These harmonics or overtones all have different amplitudes with respect to the fundamental amplitude. These overtones with their respective amplitudes give the tone its timbre, and this is why all tones with the same fundamental do not sound the same. Each instrument has its own sound. A symphony orchestra may contain as many as 96 players. The musical instruments can be grouped as strings, woodwinds, brass, and percussion.

It is the job of the Component type stereo high fidelity home music system to reproduce all of the basic or fundamental notes together with all of their overtones and in the correct proportions. A violin must sound exactly as it sounds in the concert hall. A listener must be able to hear each instrument in the orchestra. The sounds should not be muddled together. Since the personality of each individual instrument is determined by its many overtones, and since some of these overtones are extremely high, the amplifier must be designed to pass a very wide band of tones or frequencies. Actually, the amplifier must be able to pass frequencies well beyond those that we can hear. It must pass these tones with their original amplitudes and relationships with each other. Of course, no hum or distortion should be added to color the sound.

For several reasons, a commercial home stereo system usually does not have the wide range and low distortion that is found in the Component type systems. In a component system, each individual item, the Tuner/Amplifier, the Record Player, the Stereo Cartridge, and the Loudspeaker System is designed for extremely wide range and for the minimum of distortion.

One of the most critical parts of a component is the amplifier. The power bandwidth of the amplifier is rated at 40 watts per channel, that it should be able to reproduce the entire tonal spectrum of from 30 vibrations to 20,000 vibrations at a full 40 watts evenly throughout that range with less than rated distortion. Good components have rated distortion figures under one per cent. Amplifiers of this type will reproduce the instruments without robbing them of their personalities. Visit us and listen to the rich sound of components.

A Varied And Exciting Assortment Of Discs On The Turnabout Label

By JOHN SUNIER

"MUSIC FOR MANDOLIN AND GUITAR ENSEMBLE" — The Vienna Mandolin and Guitar Ensemble with harp and harpsichord/Vinzenz Hladky, conductor — Turnabout TV 34239:

The practically-unknown composers represented here flourished in the late 16th and early 17th centuries. They wrote not for the mandolin, but for the lute. This music has been arranged for the mandolin ensemble.

Most of the composers were Italian, and one was the father of Galileo. The two pieces of the Frenchman Jean Baptiste Besard are quite distinctive from the rest, with a definite French flavor.

This is altogether a unique and enchanting sound that will please many, and the bargain price adds even more inducement.

BEETHOVEN: Music to Goethe's "Egmont" — Sailer, soprano/Mosbacher, narrator/Symphony Orchestra of the Southwest German Radio/Eduard van Remoortel—Turnabout TV 34262:

This score for Goethe's play was written between the Sixth and Seventh Symphonies of Beethoven. The overture is of course well-known. There are two songs and a final declamation by Egmont. The interludes between acts are surprising descriptive — this might almost be called Beethoven's soundtrack.

A fine low-price LP, boasting good stereophonics.

"FRENCH ORGAN MUSIC OF THE LATE ROMANTIC PERIOD" — Works by Franck, Saint-Saens, and Widor — Saorgin, Raynaud, Darasse, organists — Turnabout TV 34238:

These are organ works in the grand manner — most of the pieces spare nothing in their attempt to equal the full symphony orchestra in their range and power. They are a far cry from the crisp and dry sound of the classic pipe organ playing Bach or Buxtehude.

Frankly, I like these overstuffed things, and the fine stereo reproduction adds to the thrill. Franck's dramatic "Piece Heroique" is included, as well as excerpts from Widor's organ symphonies Nos. 5 and 6.

A massive organ in a church in Toulouse, France, provides a perfect setting for these symphonic organ works.

"JANACEK: "Taras Bulba;" "Sinfonietta" — Czech Philharmonic Orchestra/Karel Ancerl — Turnabout TV 34267:

It is good to have these vital performances, once on the Artia label, back in the catalog, plus at a bargain price. Both are among Janocek's best orchestral pieces.

CARL ORFF: "Carmina Burana" — Soloists/Czech Philharmonic/Czech Singers Choir-Kvaclav Smetacek — Turnabout TV 34266:

Another re-issue, this Czech performance originally on Parliament Records is for me the most exciting version of Orff's wild cantata. The surfaces are much quieter than on the original release, thank heavens.

HAYDN: "Echo Sextet in E Flat;" "Birthday Divertimento in C Major" — Susanne Lautenbacher, violin/Martin Galling, harpsichord, and others — Turnabout TV 34237:

Papa Haydn trying his hand at music especially for stereo! Two groups consisting of two violins and a cello are placed at stage right and left. The echoing of the themes is really a delight. Both of these diverimenti are early period works, but full of the genial good humor we associate with Haydn.

SCHUBERT-LISZT: "Wanderer Fantasy"; LISZT: "Totentanz"; LISZT: Czardas Macabre — Alfred Brendel, piano/Orchestra of the Vienna Volksoper/Vienna Symphony / Michael Gielen — Turnabout TV 34265:

The "Wanderer Fantasy" for piano by Schubert is a very Lisztian piece of virtuoso piano writing. It was natural that it should move Liszt to transcribe it for piano and orchestra. Rather than an improvement on Schubert, which is exciting enough to begin with, Liszt's version provides a fascinating confrontation of two periods and two styles.

A rip-roaring performance by Brendel and good stereo plus two other Liszt piano works round out a fine LP.

STRAVINSKY: "Violin Concerto in D Major;" HINDEMITH: "Violin Concerto" — Ivry Gitlis, violin/Concerts Colonne-/Byrns — Turnabout TV 34276:

Another re-release (with different coupling) of great interest. Both concerti are important 20th Century works and both interpretation and sonics are good, even on the Stravinsky, which happens to be re-channeled stereo.

MILHAUD: "Scaramouche;" DEBUSSY: "Six Epigraphes Antiques;" RAVEL: "Mother Goose Suite" — Walter and Beatriz Klien, duo-pianist — Turnabout TV 34235:

This is a very delectable recital of four-hand piano music in 20th Century French style.

The Milhaud suite is full of jaunty and jazzy good humor, the Debussy pieces little evocations of poems by Pierre Louys, and Ravel's well-known children's suite is heard in its original form (it was orchestrated later).

The Kliens are among the great duo-pianists of today.

RAVEL: "Bolero" (Historic recording conducted by the composer); "Pavane pour une infante defunte;" "La Vallee des cloches;" "Chansons Madecasses" — Ravel, piano with Madeleine Grey, soprano — Turnabout TV 4256:

This historic performance dates from 1928, only a few months after the premiere of the famous "Bolero." The sound is amazingly good mono and has not been tampered with for stereo effect. Even the long crescendo which is the whole point of the piece comes through fine, and this over-done chestnut actually sounds fresh as a daisy! The short song cycle and the two piano pieces played by the composer via piano rolls are also welcome.

"ORGAN CONCERTI" — Haydn: "Concerto in C;" Xaver: "Concerto in F;" Auffmann: "Concerto in G" — Franz Lehrndorfer, organ/Stuttgart Soloists/ — Turnabout TV 34244:

These composers belong to the generation following Bach, when the Church was no longer at the center of things, and their approach to the pipe organ is easy-going and more secular.

Haydn's concerto really doesn't sound very organ-like, but is tuneful as always.

Brixi is part of a Czech family tree almost as important as Bach's. His piece is very majestic and rich.

The short work by almost-unknown Bavarian composer Auffmann is unusually chromatic and tart.

Good organ/orchestral balance and reproduction.

Don't Ignore Indoors When You Garden

Green Foliage Plants Will Lend A Refreshing Cool Touch To Home

This is the time of the year when Marinites are likely to become so preoccupied with their enjoyment of outdoor living and gardening that they forget all about indoor plants.

But no matter how warm or pleasant the weather, we must still spend a great deal of our time inside the house.

That interior can seem awfully drab in contrast to the outside, where lawns are green and plants are abloom.

THE REFRESHING green of a few choice foliage plants, however, can work wonders in livening up the household. And on hot days, they can make the house seem degrees cooler.

Furthermore, they can lend a touch of elegance to your decor.

Dieffenbachia (Dee-fen-bock-ia) is a good foliage plant to illustrate the point.

THE PLANTS grow on a slender, erect stalk with large elongated leaves adorning it. There is a variegated green and spreckled white variety as well as the handsome all green one.

In a container, whose color is coordinated for the room, the Dieffenbachia is a distinctive addition to any room in the house.

A visit to your nearby nursery will reveal a number of semi-erect foliage plants for indoor decoration.

Worth shopping for in this category are unusual varieties of Philodendron which have unusual leaf shapes and varying shades of green. Some are so unusual you wouldn't recognize them as a Philodendron. Happily, this feature doesn't make the plants any more difficult to grow.

SUCH INDOOR foliage plants prefer to be placed where they'll receive diffused or filtered light from a north or east window.

Don't set the plants where direct sun will hit them and avoid placing near a vent for cooling or heating.

There are indoor plants that will tolerate darker conditions. The slow-growing, erect and lacy Neantha Bella Palm is one; the Cast Iron Plant (Aspidistra), with dark green leaves growing in urn shape, is another.

THE CHOICE of indoor plants isn't limited to larger specimens.

The oval-leafed Maranta, deep green and tufted Peperomia and exotic Dracaena are but three to be considered for planting individually in small containers, or combined in a dish garden.

Watering is important for indoor plants. There is no set rule as to frequency, as the plants' demands will vary with the season, as well as house-to-house. Each home has its own "environment," and plants' moisture needs will differ. The main thing is not to overwater.

SOME PLANTS will take more water, hence it is wise to ask your nurseryman's or florist's advice on the different ones.

Nurseries and floral shops now have a large selection of cooling, delightful green foliage plants to perk up any indoor spot. Try yours on the floor, table, mantel, or even in the empty August fireplace, and see what a beautiful difference they make!

THE VARIEGATED Dracaena shown here dresses up nicely a hearth. But there are taller specimens available for corner situations and smaller ones for use on the floor, table or mantel or even inside an unused summer fireplace. (Photo courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen)

Back From Vacation? Better Take A Look At Your Yard

Garden Page

While it is unlikely that vacationers returning home will find their garden has completely "gone to pot," there probably will be certain areas in need of revitalizing.

The California Association of Nurserymen offers the following recommendations to restore such gardens to their former glory.

THE LAWN: Mow and trim the lawn. Even a well-watered green carpet looks unsightly if it's shaggy. After watering thoroughly, green-it-up with a shot of lawn food, followed by good soakings of water. In a matter of days you'll notice a difference in the garden!

TREES AND SHRUBS: Thorough soakings are the order of the day. A thick layer of peat moss or nurserymen's mulch around the roots of shrubs (and over the lawn, too) will help retain moisture.

ROSES: Faded blooms should be cut. A feeding of rose food will strengthen the plants and provide vigor for fall bloom. If insect damage is evident, a spray program should be launched. This time of year in many areas mildew becomes a problem. Apply a fungicide or a combination insecticide-fungicide spray. Nurserymen can recommend specific pest controls for you to use.

SPECIAL PLANTS: Certain other plants will want attention upon your return. Pick spent blooms from annuals and replace unsightly plants with new flowers from nursery flats. Chrysanthemums may need staking, pinch-back Fuchsias and feed with fish-emulsion or other plant food. Camellias, Azaleas and Rhododendrons will want another application of acid type food.

WEEDING: If weeding is required, hand pulling is a sure-fire control; but there are chemicals available to do many weeding jobs. Before using such controls, however, consult a nurseryman for the right chemical for the right weed.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Take long stems when cutting roses so as to renew the bushes. And feed your roses if it has been three weeks or longer since they were last fertilized.
- For quick August color, put out lantanas, giving them the sunniest exposure you can provide.
- Lift gladiolus bulbs after the tops have turned yellow. Dust with a fungicide and insecticide combination and store in shallow trays until spring.
- To add color to the patio or deck, shop for container plants in bloom. White and yellow marguerites are ideal for sunny areas, begonias, impatiens or fuchsias for hanging baskets in the shade.
- If you live in one of Marin's cooler sectors, plant sweetpeas before the end of the month if you want blooms by Christmas. If you live in a warmer locality, wait awhile longer.
- Continue your regular and thorough watering program for the lawn and for garden plants.

Care Of Outdoor Furniture Vital For Longer Use

The normally rough treatment accorded to outdoor furniture and the onslaughts of the weather make it imperative that lawn, garden and poolside chairs, tables and longues receive good care and periodic refinishing.

As with any successful refurbishing project, surface preparation is the most important part of the job. It is especially important when repainting metal.

THE FIRST step is to clean away all dirt, oil and grease with a cloth soaked in mineral spirits. If there is even the slightest sign of rust, it should be removed with steel wool or sandpaper, either or both of which also can be used to get rid of cracked or peeling paint.

A rust-inhibiting primer must be used to cover all bare spots. If any part of the metal still has a high gloss from the previous coat of paint, it should be roughened so that the new coat can hang on properly.

If a large area is glossy, you might consider putting on one of the liquid products which provides a base for the final coat without cutting down the gloss.

EXTERIOR ENAMEL makes an excellent finish for metal. The enamel can be applied with a brush, spray equipment or from a self-spraying can. When enameling chairs and tables, setting them upside down on another table or bench while doing the undersides will prevent backaches.

Aluminum that has lost its sheen or become pitted should be cleaned in the same manner as other metal and then primed with zinc chromate.

New aluminum will retain its shiny appearance if it is immediately coated with clear acrylic or cellulose butyrate lacquer. The better grades of aluminum are protected by a factory-applied lacquer.

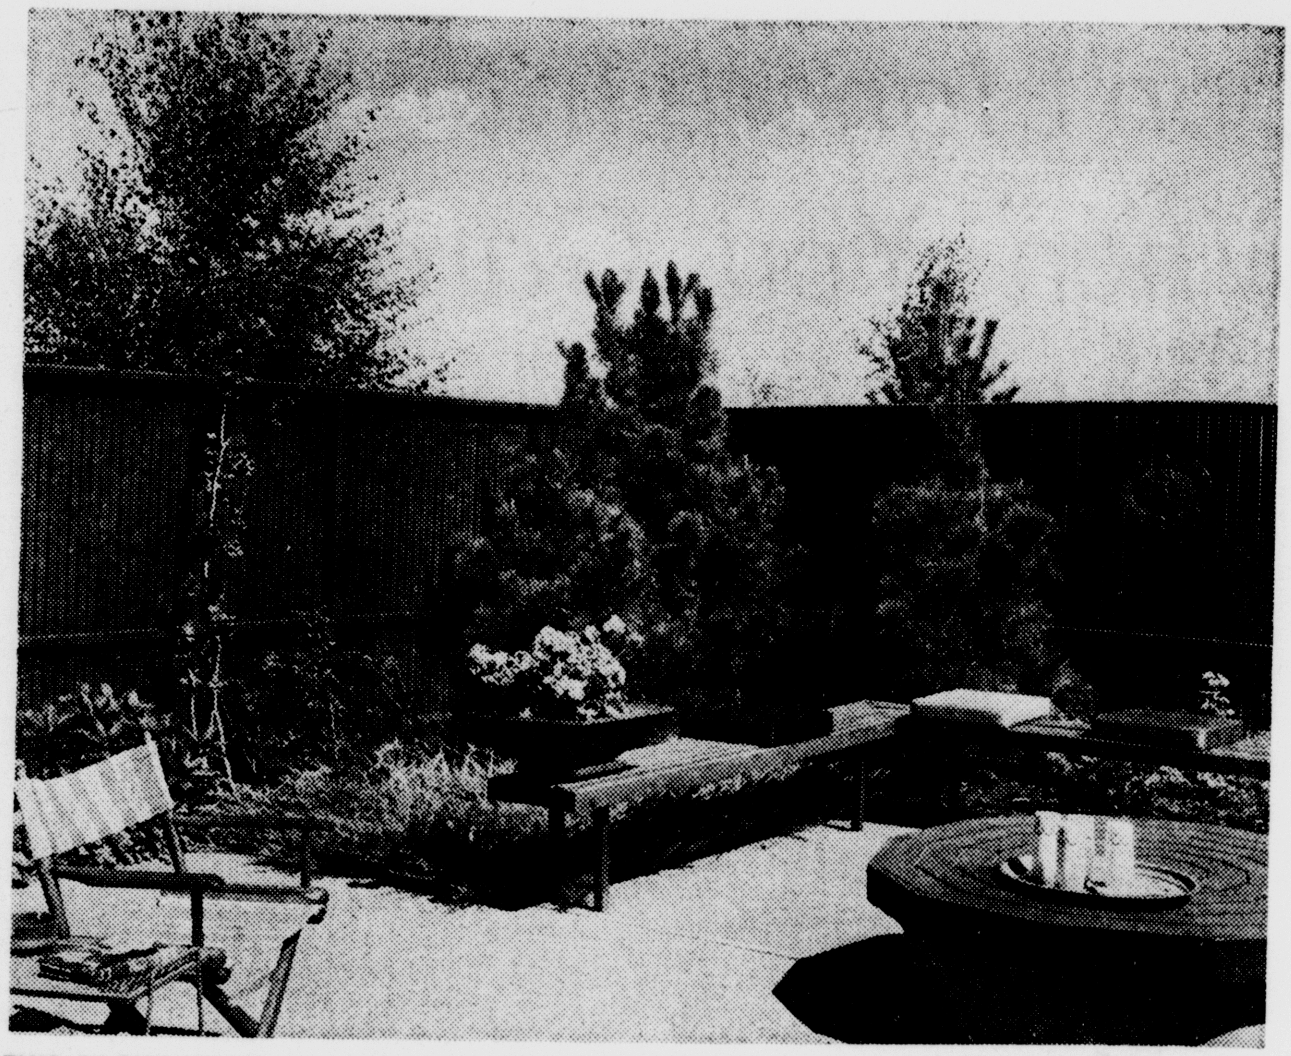
METAL FURNITURE that is left out in the sun in an area where there is no intermittent shade can be very hot, especially when you sit on it while wearing a bathing suit or shorts. Painting the metal with white enamel will go a long way towards eliminating this problem, since it reflects most of the sun's heat.

Almost any kind of good quality exterior paint can be used for outdoor wooden furniture. The same principles of surface preparation hold true for wooden furniture, except that you can skip the primer if the surface is in fairly good condition and you intend to apply two coats of paint.

Wicker and ratten are best sprayed rather than brushed.

REDWOOD AND cedar furniture can be finished with a clear material that acts as a preservative. Some types of preservatives contain coloring if you wish to tint the wood yet retain the natural look.

You can, of course, use regular exterior paint if you wish, since both woods provide an excellent base.



THIS BACKYARD fence relies on clean lines and simple pattern for its handsome appearance. Dark-stained cedar one-by-twos have been face-nailed to the fence rails. Shrub border and low bench form a buffer zone between patio and fence. The table converts to a firepit by removing the top.

To Make Fence Unobtrusive, Use It As A Backdrop

A good back yard fence is one of the best additions any family can make to their home.

Built tall enough, a fence will insure seclusion within the yard and, often, provide screening for house windows, too.

A fence is also the best way to control the comings and goings of small children, dogs, and other wandering critters. And a fence can do even more, such as divert wind and block unattractive views.

BUT MOST important is the matter of economics. With its many accomplishments, a fence returns full ownership of the property, letting you develop and use all that expensive land surrounding the house.

The most frequent questions raised about enclosing the property are whether or not fencing will have the effect of reducing space visually and whether it will be an unsightly, harsh-lined addition to the property.

In both cases, experience proves that the opposite is more apt to be true. The secret of a handsome but unobtrusive fence lies in blending it into the landscaping.

IT MUST always work as a backdrop for something. Usually, that something is a shrub bed, but if a fence abuts a deck, then it should be handled as a wall with furniture arranged against it. The furniture could be a simple garden bench, a table or even container plants.

In a shallow back yard or in a side yard, when patio paving is laid close to the property line, a good scheme may combine several elements.

A shrub bed definitely should be used, no matter how narrow, to cause a step-up in elevations from the flat surface of the paving to the varied heights of shrubs and so up to the cap board of the fence. That lets the eye roam instead of stopping abruptly.

A GARDEN bench built along the patio's edge also helps to create the needed illusion of distance. And such things as planters, sand castings and sculptures can be hung on the fence to add interest.

Style is important to the degree that the fence shouldn't demand attention. This is not the place to try out super-clever designs or a gay color scheme.

Instead, vertical slats, spaced boards, the board-on-board pattern or louvers are suggested.

Resawn lumber -- Douglas fir, white fir, western red cedar, the western pines — supplies excellent texture, weathers well and needs little, if any, attention. An exterior stain finish in natural wood color, driftwood, grayed-green, or dull gold again requires little maintenance.

Some Things To Remember In Handling A Chain Saw

There are a few things to remember about the handling of a chain saw.

First of all, keep the chain sharp. You'll cut faster and with less effort if you sharpen the saw chain cutters after every two or three hours of use.

How do you know when the chain needs sharpening? Look at the size of the chips the saw is making; the bigger they are the sharper the chain.

Also, be sure to lubricate the saw liberally. Distribute oil around the saw bar before you start cutting and oil the chain frequently when cutting and when you are finished.

Make sure the chain is properly tensioned. It's right when it can be freely pulled around the bar while the underside remains touching the bar lightly.

Finally, never let the chain touch the ground; there's nothing that will dull a chain faster than being run in dirt.

Marin Poets' Corner

OBSERVER FROM CAPE KENNEDY

I am just an ordinary frog
living underneath a fallen log,
sheltered from the rain and fog.
I watch egrets and herons fly
in graceful patterns in the sky,
occasionally, an ibis standing by.
Alligators swim close to the shore,
beavers build their dams almost next door,
and a red fox comes to timidly explore.
Then, with sudden crash of thunder
shattering the clouds asunder,
a rocket launches out from under,
and, with swift computered grace
lifts from earth to outer space,
leaves on the sky no vapored trace.

I am just an ordinary frog
living here beneath this fallen log,
but "I have seen the glory" from my bog!

SAN RAFAEL — RUTH MURRAY JONES

CONSTITUTION, 1969

O Capital Ship

Sail along strong lines
With national breeds,
Tho' perilous be your trips.

O Capital Ship

Captained thru' gruelling journeys
Whose waves batter and beat
Against Democracy's hides
Made of man's sinews and Steel transformed Mother Earth.

O Capital Ship

Tremulous be your dips
Steady your cutting edge
That gracefully turn away
Insidious drops denoting
The abysmal plain.

Sail on, my Capital Ship

Voyagers like us
Possess steadfast faith in Your Fate.
